GEOFFROY RETURNS TO CANADA

MADRID (UPI) — Convicted wife-slayer Yves Geoffroy and his bride returned to Canada voluntarily today, 10 weeks after they skipped the country while Geoffroy was on a two-day leave from prison so they could marry.

Geoffroy, a 38-year-old notary, looked grim but his wife Carmen gave newsmen a smile as they boarded a Spanish airliner to fly back to Montreal, where Geoffroy was expected to continue serving a life sentence.

The plane was to land in Montreal at 1:45 p.m. Victoria time.

The couple was accompanied by six Canadian officials, including a crown prosecutor. A Canadian embassy official said they were returning "of their own free will."

China Pact Signed

PEKING (Reuter) — Mainland China and Britain signed an agreement today to exchange ambassadors and close the British consulate on Taiwan.

The agreement raised the level of diplomatic relations between the two countries to embassy status for the first time since the People's Republic of China was founded in 1949.

The appointment of Addis as ambassador was announced at the same time.

The three-point agreement recognizes the government of the People's Republic of China as the sole legal government of China.

It will also pave the way for exchanges of high-level state visits by British and Chinese government leaders.

Meanwhile, in Paris, U.S. Ambassador Arthur Watson and Chinese Ambassador Huang Chen met today for the first in the series of meetings they will hold to maintain contact between their governments.

The meeting at the Chinese embassy lasted 50 minutes and Watson told reporters: "We had a very friendly and warm discussion, and we hope it is the beginning of many others."

BETWEEN THE SHOWERS on another grey, damp Victoria Sunday, three strollers and a dog enjoy a brief constitutional on the tide-lapped sands of Willows Beach. Although the clouds parted only occasionally the temperatures were up in the spring-like 50s and — who knows? — it may not be too long before tots in their teeny bikinis are scampering on these same sands.

Que. Deal 'Vote Ploy' —Bennett

Prime Minister Trudeau gave in to Quebec demands for baby bonus autonomy because "he's in trouble and he knows it," Premier Bennett said today.

Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa said in Montreal Sunday night the federal decision represents "a giant step forward and a triple victory for Quebec, perhaps a turning point in federal-provincial relations."

He said the agreement "recognizes Quebec's legislative paramountcy since we will be able to change the payments ourselves."

As for the other constitutional questions left hanging by Quebec's rejection of the Victoria charter, Bourassa said the Quebec government will decide when it is ready to discuss the constitution.

He said the family allowance issue was the only reason the Victoria charter failed.

NO FEUDING

Trudeau announced Sunday during a television interview that Ottawa had accepted the Quebec demand that family allowances be distributed under terms established by the province.

Trudeau said the move may have brought a new Canadian constitution closer to reality and hinted that the answers to several of the other points of contention were in the offing.

Bennett, who appeared to take the development calmly, said: "I do not want to get into a feud with Quebec and I have no comment to make on the subject."

Then he smiled, shook his head ruefully and added, "Trudeau is in an awful lot of trouble and he knows it. He is just playing games."

Holding out his crossed fingers he said: "Trudeau and Bourassa are just like that."

Again he repeated that he did not want a feud with Quebec.

"My objection to Quebec getting help is an economic one based on the fact that Quebec is a have province. It is not a have not province," Bennett said.

Bennet made much the same comment in an interview last week when he charged that Quebec's resources were being mismanaged under Bourassa and that he would support federal Social Credit leader Real Caouette in the next federal election.

Asked to comment on Bourassa's rejection last June in Victoria of a constitutional charter, until the family allowance demand was met, Bennett said: "All I will say is that Bourassa must have had a fast change of mind after he left here. He seemed to agree with it at the time."

ONLY PROVINCE

The charter rejected by Quebec — the only province to do so — would have created joint federal-provincial jurisdiction over social services. Quebec wanted provincial domination of these as well as of unemployment insurance and health services.

GRIT DEFECTOR CITES BLUNDERS

OTTAWA (CP) — Raymond Rock, 49, Liberal MP for 10 years, crossed the floor of the Commons today "with no regrets" to join the Conservative Party.

Rock said he could no longer support the Liberal government of Prime Minister Trudeau.

Conservatives cheered and Trudeau grinned as the MP walked from his seat on the Liberal side of the House to shake hands with Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield.

Other Conservatives put their arms about him and led him to a seat beside David MacDonald, two rows behind Mr. Stanfield.

Rock said he is turning Conservative because of "blunder after blunder after blunder" by the government. Foremost was in dealing with unemployment.

He described himself in an interview as a "free-enterpriser" who feels the prime minister's office is "out of touch." He was critical of "activist" projects supported by government.

His decision changes the standings in the 264-seat Commons to: Liberal 149, PC 72, NDP 25, SC 13, Ind. Liberal 1, Independent 2, vacant 2.

CLOCK WAR LOOMS

CRANBROOK (CP) — People living in this southeastern corner of British Columbia are girding themselves for a threatened battle of the clocks with the provincial government.

For 40 to 50 years — no one really knows how long — this corner of B.C. has operated on Alberta time because of the close geographical and economic connection with the neighboring province.

The corner has operated on Mountain Standard Time during the winter, putting it an hour ahead of the rest of B.C. In the summer, it operated on Pacific Daylight Saving Time, which was the same as Mountain Standard — the name changed but the clock didn't.

Now, however, Alberta has decided to institute Daylight Saving Time, meaning that Mountain Time will be one hour ahead of B.C. all year round.

That makes it a bit difficult for that little corner of B.C. So to avoid confusion, the executive board of the East Kootenay regional district recently asked the B.C. government for permission to switch permanently to Mountain Time.

Frank Bertoia, secretary and administrator of the regional board, said the board has been told by the attorney-general's department that it has no authority to operate on Mountain Time.

The board now plans to send a unanimous decision to Victoria of the full district board recommending the region use Alberta time.

"If they refuse or ignore us, most of the people I've run into are saying they'll just change their clocks anyway," he added.

NEWS BRIEFS

Head Declared

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Marshal Lon Nol, who this weekend quietly ended parliamentary rule in Cambodia, today declared himself president, commander-in-chief of the armed forces and president of the council of ministers.

Bus Drivers Strike

HALIFAX (CP) — Despite last-minute efforts by a provincial conciliation officer, Halifax's 192-member transit union began a strike against the city at 5:30 a.m. today.

Homes Flooded

LIMA (Reuter) — More than 150,000 persons are reported homeless, at least 36 dead and about 200 injured in the month-long deluge that has swamped parts of Peru.

Trials Secret

PARIS (WP) — The Iranian government has banned all foreign journalists and jurists from attending a continuing series of political trials despite serious indications of torture and procedural irregularities, according to a French lawyer recently returned from Teheran.

Bodies Unearthed

Viet Attacks Up

SAIGON (AP) — Communist forces during the weekend made their largest number of attacks across South Vietnam in three weeks, while in eastern Cambodia, a new 5,000-man South Vietnamese drive made its first significant contact with Communist-command troops.

Davis Pledges B.C. Protection

Times News Services

American pleasure boat owners will have to pay for the privilege of fishing in B.C. waters and coastal areas will be "zoned" to control offshore oil drilling, Environment Minister Jack Davis said today.

In a hard-hitting speech to the United Fishermen's and Allied Workers' Union convention in Vancouver, Davis also charged that Atlantic salmon are becoming an endangered species because of the "greed of the Danes and the callousness of the Norwegians."

He described as an "ecological monstrosity" the proposed Moran flood-control dam on the Fraser River.

FISHING FEE

Starting April 1, American pleasure boat owners will pay a salmon fishing fee of $15 for under-15-foot class boat; $25 for boats 16 to 29 feet; $50 from 30 to 39 feet in length; and $75 for boats 40 feet and over.

There will be no charge to Americans if they are fishing from a Canadian-owned charter or rental boat.

American fish charter boats will pay the same licence fee, ranging from $100 to $400, as B.C. commercial fishermen.

Fees paid by U.S. boatowners will go into a fund to build fish hatcheries and spawning grounds in B.C., said Davis.

The federal and B.C. governments are making progress toward creation of a marine park in the Strait of Georgia. "We have raised our sights" to include islands as well as the sea bottom, he said. The islands referred to could be small uninhabited rock outcroppings in the strait.

U.S. officials are impressed with the proposal, he said, and are considering similar measures.

Davis suggested that the Point Roberts peninsula, part of the U.S. but attached to the Canadian mainland and cut off from U.S. services, could be made an international park.

EXTRA SCHOOL FUNDS REJECTED BY VOTERS

Greater Victoria voters Saturday turned down the school board's bid for extra 1972 operating funds with a paltry 31 per cent voting in favor of the $412,000 referendum.

In Saanich school district, a referendum for construction of a new secondary school and improvements to other schools was approved, but just. With 60 per cent needed to approve the capital referendum, 61.8 per cent of the Saanich voters said "yes."

Irvings Plead Guilty

NEW YORK (AP) — Author Clifford Irving and his wife, Edith, pleaded guilty today to federal charges of conspiring to defraud a publisher with a fake autobiography of billionaire recluse Howard Hughes.

When Judge John Cannella asked the 41-year-old writer to describe what he did, Irving replied:

"It was that I conspired to convince McGraw-Hill that I was in communication with Howard Hughes, when, in fact, I was not."

Conviction on the federal conspiracy charge could mean penalties of up to five years in prison and $10,000 fines.

Also scheduled to appear in court with the Irvings today was researcher Richard Suskind.

The judge asked Mrs. Irving: "What did you do that was a criminal act?"

Mrs. Irving, 36, speaking rapidly and with a German accent, said she had signed certain cheques from the McGraw-Hill publishing company made out to H. R. Hughes, and that she had used false documents.

"I put the money in and out," she said.

"Did you realize that you were part of a hoax?" the judge asked.

"Yes," she replied.

Indira Triumphs

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Supporters of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi won by landslide margins in 10 state assemblies today and led by wide margins in two others in what was turning into a personal triumph for Mrs. Gandhi in last week's voting for state governments.

The results were seen not only as a result of the widespread popular acclaim for her as result of last December's victory over Pakistan, but to a large extent an outgrowth of the iron-willed premier's campaign to strengthen and consolidate her organizational power in the states during the past year.

Mother Killed

BELFAST (AP) — A terrorist's bullet killed a 24-year-old mother Sunday night, shattering a new guerrilla ceasefire and marring blood-stained Belfast's first peaceful weekend for more than a year.

Bernadette Hyndman was cut down on the doorsteps of her home in a Roman Catholic section when gunman fired a volley of rifle shots at a British army patrol.

"She stopped a bullet meant for a soldier standing only a few feet away," an army spokesman said. "Our men did not fire at all."

Toronto Woman Alive; Buried by Snow 48 Hours

DOMODOSSOLA, Italy (CP-Reuter) — A Canadian woman was found alive today by tracker dogs almost 48 hours after being buried by an avalanche.

Police said she was saved by young pine trees which had been dragged down by the snow and had formed a small dome trapping enough air for survival.

Police named the woman as Margaret Randolph Laidlaw, 35, of Toronto and described her condition as "satisfactory" but said she was suffering from frostbite.

Rescue workers had been searching for her since Saturday and this morning one of the tracker dogs found the spot where she was buried.

CONDITION NOT BAD

Police added that she was suffering from frostbite to her feet and other parts of her body but her condition was not serious. A doctor was on hand when rescuers dug her free and gave her first aid, they said.

They said Mrs. Laidlaw and her husband John were among 500 tourists trapped in the skiing village of Macugnaga near the Swiss border for the last few days because of avalanches. Between 120 and 130 are Britons.

Saturday, the Canadian couple, who had by then been in the village three days longer than they intended, decided to try to get out despite warnings that they risked being crushed by avalanches, police said.

The couple drove out but found the road blocked by an earlier avalanche and began walking towards the nearest village, nine miles away.

Mrs. Laidlaw, who was walking behind her husband, was hit by the full force of the avalanche, but her husband, who was 20 yards ahead of her, was only brushed by the mass of snow, police said.

Macugnaga lies at 6,500 feet at the foot of the huge 15,000-foot Monte Rosa range of mountains. The tourists trapped there have plenty of food and medicines but bad weather is preventing helicopters from dropping mail and newspapers.

HATE SEX WAY OUT

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — The problem of overpopulation could be eased by brainwashing people to dislike sex or by training people to hate children, a Queen's University biology professor said at the weekend.

Dr. Rolf Harmsen, president of the Kingston chapter of Zero Population Growth, stressed that these were drastic proposals.

South Sprayed With Plutonium

WASHINGTON (WP) — A U.S. Navy satellite that burned up in the atmosphere eight years ago scattered traces of radioactive plutonium over 12 of the most populated countries of the southern hemisphere.

Worldwide studies just made public by the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission show that the amount of plutonium strewn over the lower half of the globe by the burn-up came to a little less than two pounds.

Even this small amount totalled one-sixth of all the plutonium that fell out over the southern hemisphere from the more than 300 nuclear weapons tests conducted in the atmosphere by the United States and Soviet Union.

"Weapons tests distributed most of the plutonium over the northern hemisphere, mostly because of wind patterns," said Dr. John Harley, director of the AEC's health and safety laboratory. "This satellite happened to burn up over Madagascar and so scattered most of its plutonium fuel over the lower part of the world."

Harley stressed that the mishap had not been a hazardous one, despite the fact that plutonium is one of the most enduring (half life: 80 years) and deadly radioactive poisons known to man.

The plutonium fell on at least 12 countries in the southern atmosphere: Brazil, Argentina, Chile, Peru, Equador, South Africa, Rhodesia, Kenya, Mozambique, Angola, New Zealand and Australia.

New Zealand got the most, almost four-tenths of a millicurie (a measure of radioactivity) per square mile. Brazil was second, with three-tenths of a millicurie per square mile and Argentina third with a dose of one-fourth of a millicurie per square mile.

"None of these readings is hazardous," Harley insisted. "The permissible concentrations for population are more than one thousand times these readings."

Symphony Expertise 'Brilliant'

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

It has become increasingly apparent as this Victoria Symphony season progresses that the responsiveness and technical expertise of the orchestra has advanced to an impressive degree.

Plainly it is not the same orchestra it was even so little as a year ago.

The fact is being dramatically emphasized with the brilliant program previewed Sunday at the Royal Theatre and to be repeated tonight.

Benjamin Britten's Young Person's Guide to the Orchestra is to some extent a fun piece, on the face of it an orchestral ABC.

But it is much more. The Britten score, based on the Henry Purcell theme, is not uncomplicated and in fact the fugue finale is a positive challenge.

The variations open out the orchestra and expose its several parts in a sort of showcase. Thus exposed, weaknesses and flaws, if any, are also made evident.

But Sunday's performance revealed only the complete competence of each section and highlighted the immensity of Maestro Laszlo Gati's achievement in bringing the orchestra to its present pitch.

Special guests for this concert pair are four charming lady harpists from Russia — Chitiri Arpi — and mezzo soprano Phyllis Mailing.

With the string orchestra they perform two baroque concertos — one by Handel and one a Vivaldi arrangement of a Bach concerto for four keyboard instruments.

BREATHTAKING

Superb flexibility and ensemble unity with the characteristic pure and crystaline tone of the instrument blended with the warm string tone of the accompanying orchestra to perfection.

This was baroque performance at its best, and alerted one to the fascinating possibilities of the quartet's recital in which a variety of styles and kinds of music will be played at McPherson Playhouse Wednesday.

The Bach D major Suite with which the program opens also features the chamber orchestra. Except for some imbalance and a tricky moment or two with the brass, this was a clean, spirited performance with some splendid support from Robin Wood providing continuo at the piano.

Manuel de Falla's ballet score El Amor Brujo, thickly scored for the entire orchestra with piano and a vocal soloist, is a pulse-stirring conclusion.

The many moods — languourous love, spectral fear, orgiastic ceremony and gypsy passion — were conjured by Gati and sensitively responded to by the orchestra, which was revealed as commanding a much extended range of color and rhythmic power.

Miss Mailing, Canadian mezzo, has the depth, color and command of phrase which clothes her interpolations with the particular character of the Spanish song idiom. The artist also provides the narrative that accompanies the Britten number.

Tenure System Fails, Students Tell MLAs

University of Victoria students told the legislative committee in a brief on university tenure prepared for delivery today that tenure is not only an inadequate means of protecting academic freedom, but also "a deterrent to the development of the best possible teaching staff at the university level."

Representatives of the UVic Alma Mater Society presented a brief to the tenure committee in which they attacked the concept of tenure and said it should be "an honorary position granted only to members of faculty the university wishes to distinguish."

TWO YEARS

The students, Robert McDougall, Alastair Murdoch and Alan Turner, suggested that other non-tenured professors be hired on the basis of contracts ranging in length from two years upward. The length of the contract would vary with the university's evaluation of the performance.

Contracts should carry no automatic expectation of renewal, the brief said, and decisions on contracts should be based on teaching, research and certain specified "outside activities." The most important criterion is teaching it said.

The students said greater emphasis should be placed on the evaluation of teaching in the university. "The major method of this evaluation should be by a student poll approved by the faculty and administration."

"Lack of degrees should not disqualify instructors from a renewal of contract for which he would otherwise be chosen," the students said.

They recommended that the committee which decided on contracts should be made up of faculty members, students and board of governors appointees. Recommendations to the committee should be made by a student committee and by a faculty departmental body.

Expropriation System Urged

A provincial expropriation board is, in principle, cheaper and faster than the existing system of settling disputes, Richard Gosse of the Law Reform Commission said today.

Gosse is primarily responsible for the commission's report on expropriation reform which is being studied by a special committee of the legislature.

Gosse, also a University of British Columbia law professor, told the committee he believes a single arbitration board to be a quick, efficient, expert and reasonably inexpensive way to settle disputes.

Under questioning from Highways Minister Wesley Black, Gosse pointed out the commission's proposals for settling disputes would not prevent the Crown from taking possession of the land.

The party seeking arbitration of the settlement proposed for expropriation of his property still would have to give it up, Gosse said.

He added that under federal law, expropriation hassles can go before the federal court of Canada, formerly the exchequer court, which has the expertise to hear these cases.

But the commission did not feel a similar court procedure needed to be instituted in B.C.

Gosse said under existing practice of creating ad hoc arbitration boards, the province could spend up to $250,000 a year not counting lawyers' fees just to consider 50 cases.

STICKUP MEN GET BIG STICK

"This is it," said one of two young men as he pointed a hunting knife at grocery store proprietor Reginald Lowe Saturday night.

But that wasn't "it" at all. Lowe picked up a stick and brandished it at the two youths, who ran out of the store at 1023 Cook Street and took off in separate directions.

Not only did the would-be hold-up men flee empty handed, but they were a few cents out of pocket. Twenty minutes before the attempt proper, apparently for reconnaisance purposes, they entered the store and bought a Rolling Stone magazine.

. . . QUEBEC

Trudeau said today the Ottawa-Quebec social services agreement now would be offered to all other provinces for their acceptance. He said it would allow each province to adopt its own family allowance plan.

MAY OPEN WAY

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark indicated Trudeau's decision may open the way for acceptance of the Victoria charter on constitutional reform.

"If this move has the effect of making the constitutional proposals acceptable, probably we would be prepared to go along with that," Loffmark said.

"It appears to be just a carry-over of the opting out situation in Quebec. So what else is new?" Black said.

. . . DAVIS

local real estate into the deal as well . . .

"I suggest that we include Boundary Bay along with Point Roberts to make the two together into an international park . . ."

On oil drilling, Davis said measures must be taken to protect not only the straits but areas further offshore.

"There are degrees of vulnerability. Some waters are more sensitive than others. This suggests zoning.

"Indeed, I would argue that we must zone most, if not all, of our continental shelf. We must zone it with a view to saying where the oil industry, for example, can operate and where it cannot."

The zoning idea was not confined to the West Coast.

"We will be zoning our vast underwater areas off the Atlantic Coast and in the Arctic as well."

MUCH SAFER

He noted that drilling rigs are much safer than oil tankers, which could produce catastrophic results if they discharge oil. There were established practices to minimize the possibility and effects of a drilling-rig accident.

In a brief reference to Fraser Valley flood control, he said a $60-million dike system under construction "will be able to break the back of the worst flood in history."

SOME WANT MORE

"Yet there are those who say that we should build a 700-foot-high dam at Moran in order to look after our flood problem. They would build a monstrous dam in the Fraser Canyon north of Lillooet at a cost of more than $1,000 million.

"A few low-level dams on some lakes in the upper Fraser is really all we need to supplement our diking program. Moran? It's irrelevant from the point of view of flood control. It is a monstrosity from the point of view of our ecology in B.C."

Airline Bomb Threats

NEW YORK (AP) — Bomb threats telephoned to National Airlines offices in New York and Los Angeles and to Texas International Airlines in Albuquerque, N.M., forced searches and led to some delays in service Sunday. No bombs were found.

In New York, an anonymous caller telephoned three times warning that explosives would be placed aboard a New York-to-Miami jetliner and demanding that $800,000 in ransom money be paid at a remote beach.

Police said the caller did not say which flight or airport was involved so terminals and aircraft at Kennedy, La Guardia and Newark airports were searched by officers and airline personnel.

In a second incident, a National Airlines DC-8 flying from Los Angles to Miami was searched during scheduled stopovers in Houston, Tex., and New Orleans, La., delaying its arrival in Miami by about an hour.

The caller to Texas International Airlines told officials that a bomb was planted aboard an airplane destined for Salt Lake City. He did not say which airline was involved.

The official said four planes heading for Salt Lake were diverted and three others, all belonging to Western Airlines, were searched on the ground. As in the other cases, no explosive was found.

Ladysmith Murder Charged

A Ladysmith woman was charged with non-capital murder in Nanaimo county court today after a man was struck and killed by a car in Ladysmith early Sunday morning.

Ladysmith RCMP identified the dead man as Gregory William Wood, 23, of Ladysmith. He died at 1:45 p.m. Sunday.

Charged in court today was Caroline Lorraine Daniels, 22. She is being held in custody in Nanaimo.

The incident occured at about 1:30 a.m. Sunday on First Avenue in Ladysmith.

RCMP would release no further details on the case.

A slow improving trend is indicated for later today and Tuesday as pressures slowly rise over the outer coast. The next Pacific storm appears to be headed northeastward into the Gulf of Alaska. Present indications are that it will spread cloud and rain to north coastal areas tonight but that the south coast will escape most of its fury.

Artist Uses 'Hands' Only to Drive

TORONTO (CP) — Mykola Bidniak, who paints pictures with teeth clenched and lips pursed, is ecstatic about the prospect of taking a driving test — even though he is missing both hands.

Bidniak, who paints by holding a brush in his mouth, will use artificial arms for the driving test he takes Friday.

He can't use the artificial appendages for painting — they're too heavy and indelicate for sensitive brush strokes — but he hopes that by passing his test with them, he can broaden his artistic vista once more.

"Car driving, for me, means transportation to the landscapes, I fell for the landscape, its grandeur, its unsophisticated simplicity. Lately, I've been specializing in landscapes," the artist says.

Now, however, he has been sitting at home a lot as well. His wife used to drive him into the countryside but they now are separated and his car sits useless in his garage.

SUBJECTS VARY

In his living room, the walls are covered with paintings which range from religious themes in the tradition of his Ukrainian father to landscapes which show the influence of the Group of Seven artists.

Born in Toronto, Bidniak was with foster parents in what now is part of Poland during the Second World War.

He lost his arms just as the war ended in 1945, when he was 15.

"I was planting turnips," he says. "It was probably a mine."

When he returned to Canada in 1950, he won a four-year commercial art scholarship to the Alberta Institute of Technology and finished his training with a fine arts course at the Ontario College of Art in Toronto.

Bidniak says he now paints landscapes for "the popular taste" and earns a slim living from his canvases.

Through the Society of Mouth and Foot Artists, with headquarters in Leichtenstein, he sells paintings for Christon relief, I am getting along. I mas cards.

"I do not starve. I am not pride myself on being in a fortunate position. I can work after my own inclinations, be satisfied, be able to survive on it. I am my own exploiter."

Bidniak took driving lessons at the Cosmo and Mississauga Driving School in suburban Port Credit. The school specializes in training the handicapped.

"He will have to do everything, just like anyone taking the test, but he'll be OK. We haven't had a handicapped student who failed one yet," he said.

SATURDAY HOCKEY ON TV FACES DOUBLE EXPOSURE

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Never say die to Hockey Night in Canada.

Now, with the latest twist, Canadians are assured of hockey coverage, possibly even by both CBC and CTV simultaneously from Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto.

Saturday, Harold Ballard, president of the Gardens where the Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League make their home, invited the CBC back to telecast Saturday night home games, but this time camera positions would be secondary to equipment operated by the privately-owned CTV and affiliate Toronto station, CFTO-TV.

There was no immediate comment from the CBC.

Ballard last week kicked CBC technicians out of the rink because they had interrupted the telecasting of Saturday night games several times since they began a series of rotating strikes across Canada against the CBC to back demands for a better contract.

Meanwhile, the radio and TV technicians in Toronto walked out Saturday and were told not to return until Wednesday.

A CBC spokesman said Sunday management not only took over the handling of equipment but also the writing of news, and in some cases, announcing duties.

He said members of the Canadian Wire Service Guild refused to carry out all their normal functions and were told their services were not required.

GUILD STAYS OUT

Phil Calder, president of the national Local 213, CWSG, which has a total membership of 230 across Canada, said in a statement the 90 members in Toronto would not return to their jobs until the CBC allows the technicians back.

He also charged the CBC with slanting management-prepared news reports of the lockouts affecting the newsmen at various points across Canada.

"We are being asked to break our own contracts as a condition to returning to work. We are ready and willing to do our jobs within the terms of the contract signed by our president and the CBC, a contract which runs to 1973," Calder said.

"We also would like the people to know that each Guildsman who reports for work is met by uniformed security guards and asked to agree to working conditions that place him in a position of breaking his own contract, by assisting in work normally performed by the technicians."

The CBC spokesman said the technicians withdrew their services after refusing to feed tape produced by management at the Canadian Curling Championship in St. John's, Nfld. The tape was shown by supervisory personnel instead.

Chicago, Ill.—A free offer of special interest to those who hear but do not understand words has been announced by Beltone. A non-operating model of the smallest Beltone aid ever made will be given absolutely free to anyone answering this advertisement.

Try it to see how it is worn in the privacy of your own home without cost or obligation of any kind. It's yours to keep, free. It weighs less than a third of an ounce, and it's all at ear level, in one unit. No wires lead from body to head.

These models are free, so we suggest you write for yours now. Again, we repeat, there is no cost, and certainly no obligation. Write to Dept. 5145, Beltone Electronics Corp., 4201 W. Victoria, Chicago, Ill. 60646.

TAX TIPS

Tips for filing your 1971 income tax are provided Times readers in co-operation with the department of national revenue.

For further assistance readers may contact the Victoria district taxation office, Vancouver Street, public information service, at 388-3351.

Q. My wife and I both receive the old age security pension. Can we file one return for both of us?

A. No. It is not permissible for people to file joint tax returns. Every person who has a taxable income for the year must file his own income tax return. When filling in your own income tax return you should remember that your wife's old age security pension including any supplement is part of her income when you are calculating your married exemption.

Q. My wife and I were separated last year. What personal exemptions from income tax are allowable in the year of separation?

A. If there was no court order or written separation agreement, you would be entitled to whatever personal exemptions you could have claimed had you continued to live together. However, if there was a court order or written separation agreement, you would be entitled to deduct in that year either the periodic payments made under the order or agreement, or the exemptions you could have claimed if you were not separated, but not both. The exemption you are entitled to claim for supporting your wife in the year of separation is not affected by any income received by your wife after the separation.

Q. Is there a limit below which interest does not have to be reported on my income tax form?

A. No. Interest income of any amount should be reported, even if no T5 slip has been received.

1965 Crown

Getting there wasn't easy. We discovered that back in 1965, when we brought our first Toyotas to Canada.

We started learning what Canadians wanted in a small car. Since then, the Toyota story has been one of consistent improvement and success. Take a look back over the years.

1966 Corona

From the first Crowns, Coronas and Corollas to the newest Celicas. Every Toyota now has better looks, more horsepower and more extras that are standard equipment. We don't believe that staying the same for twenty years is a virtue. And we don't believe in adding the superfluous just for the sake of change.

1972 Corona

Toyotas now have such things as front disc brakes. Overhead cam engines. A high cam, hemi-head, cross-flow 1600 cc engine. Unit body construction.

Rear window defrosters and a long list of other improvements and features which are usually extra cost "extras" on other cars.

1971 Corolla

Of course, improving our cars isn't all we learned. We've kept our dealer network and parts and service organization growing at the same pace as our sales. Consistent improvement, constant development. It's the kind of thinking which has made us what we are in Canada today. First.

The Voters Draw a Line

Property-owning voters of School District 61 said with a clear voice Saturday that they do not want their taxes raised by more than basic expenditures on education. But general voters in a by-election for school trustees elected the only one of the five candidates who urged adoption of the $412,000 referendum for school expenditures over the 8 per cent increase set by the provincial government.

That paradox may be explained by the likelihood that Mrs. Lavinia Greenwood, the winner, attracted a pro-feminist vote to give women another voice on the board. Or it may indicate that a difference in the opinions of property-owners and non-property-owners showed itself in a preference for the candidate willing to spend more on education. The anti-referendum vote, of course, was split among four candidates.

Many voters were willing to give the board the extra money, for this year at least, on the basis that the government did not impose the smaller limit on budgetary increases until salary and other commitments had been made. But the public wish is clear, by a more than two-to-one vote, that the school board must curb its plans and listen to taxpayers who have been pushed to the point of protest.

It will be the board's responsibility to effect economies that will least hamper the educational process. It is not inappropriate that all public spending bodies should have to face the hard facts of finance from time to time, and pare off excesses that may inevitably have accumulated.

In District 63 the $1.68 million building program won slightly more than the required minimum. The need for another high school in that area was apparently explained to the satisfaction of a majority of the electors. But the approved capital expenditure will in turn mean increased operating costs when the school is opened, and it is to be hoped that the voters recognized this when they gave their approval.

The turnout to the polls in District 61 was obviously inadequate. One out of five eligible voters is not good enough representation for a democracy. The location and scarcity of polling places no doubt had something to do with this, for voters were largely limited to those with cars available, and many must have avoided a journey to ballot boxes several miles away. Even at the best of times voting attendance is poor in the Victoria region. We cannot afford any deterrent caused by mere geographical difficulty in getting to the polling booths.

Will the real leader of the Opposition please stand up

Sauce for the Goose . . .

The mixed reaction of the mayors of this community to the provincial government's move to control escalation of their personal indemnities and the salaries of certain other elected representatives and public servants, reveals a familiar pattern. Almost everyone is in favor of anti-inflation action in principle. When the action hits them directly, no such unanimity may be expected.

Mayor Pollen sees the bill introduced into the provincial House as "absurd legislation" emasculating the authority of the lower legislative bodies. Mayor Frances Elford, of Oak Bay, finds no fault with the proposal and Mayor Arthur Young, Esquimalt, agrees in principle with controls.

There is obvious discrimination in the imposition of piecemeal controls. Without universal application, controls affect some elements of the population and leave others untouched.

Yet there is an essential distinction between employees who work for, and are paid by, the public and those who work for and are paid by private interests. Private enterprise has a commodity or service to sell. If the price rises too high, the prospective buyer may go elsewhere or do without.

On the other hand, the taxpayer — who is really a buyer of services — has no such individual option when public services are provided for him and he must pay the cost. He is, however, given a measure of control over the payments he will make when, beyond limits fixed by the government, he can regulate public salaries by ballot.

It may seem anomalous that no such ballot control is extended to the taxpayers in the case of increases in indemnities of provincial members, but the government, by its action regarding the municipalities, invites the suggestion that it should be, on the axiom that what's sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander.

A Most Significant Link

The concept of a channel tunnel to link France and Britain has been a recurring engineering dream since Mathieu Favier suggested it to Napoleon in 1802. Its most recent incarnation began in 1960 when a group of British and French engineering companies banded together to re-examine the matter. As a result of these private efforts, studies on the "chunnel" were started and last July the British and French governments decided in principle to go ahead.

When Queen Elizabeth visits France in May a formal agreement between the two countries will be signed authorizing the private companies "to proceed on final engineering studies and to begin actual construction." The turning of the first sod will be the realization of the great dream and will mark the birth of one of the most remarkable engineering undertakings in history.

But the scientific marvel will be secondary in importance to the feat of psychologically uniting Britain and the continent. The building of the tunnel will be the visible mark of an inward transformation in British attitude and direction and a new era for Europe.

MAURICE WESTERN

Government and Businessmen

OTTAWA — If the new session has a theme, other than the matrimonial adventures of Yves Geoffroy, it is apparently conflict of interest. The term is not very precise, since it can be applied to a variety of situations, but it has been used of late with enough frequency to suggest that the opposition has hopes of uncovering a considerable issue.

But the wonder is not that we are, rather belatedly, hearing so much about it; it is rather that attention seems to be directed exclusively to cases, with little regard to causes and less to the search for safeguards. The problem is not peculiarly Canadian (it has caused much worry in Britain); what seems to be Canadian is our comparative indifference to it.

Conflict of interest does not necessarily involve wrongdoing; that, indeed, may be a rather rare outcome. What it involves is the possibility of wrongdoing and also of clouds of suspicion where none should exist.

We have developed a system, it seems to me, which is almost bound to generate conflicts of interest. Parliament has been less than vigilant in assuring itself that the public is properly protected.

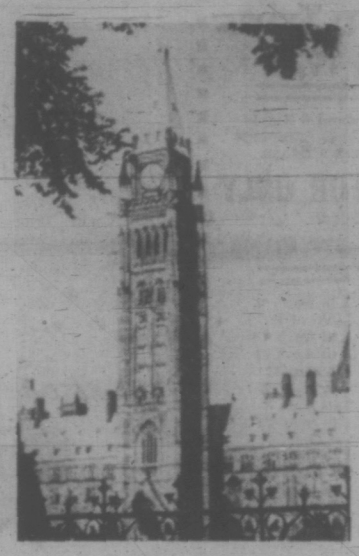
Passive Agent

The expansion of the bureaucracy in recent years has been phenomenal. It is sometimes suggested that government is an essentially passive agent in this; merely responding as best it can to public demands. In certain fields this is true; in others it is false. To a degree, bureaucracy is a vested interest like others, but working within the system to extend its empire. But, more importantly, government is often a most active agent, developing new programs, recruiting self-perpetuating bureaucracies to run them, and selling the services to a half-receptive, half-resistant public.

A major task of the bureaucracies is to administer programs. This consists in many cases of doling out subsidies, open or camouflaged. (The more government runs deficits and inflates the currency, the more subsidies, naturally, it must devise and administer.) Another group of officials concern themselves with contracts, such as that awarded by the post office to ITT Canada Limited, which provoked questions in the House last Friday.

According to the mellow theory of our times, government and business should work in partnership, each dedicated to the same noble ends. Ministers talk of the automobile pact, for example, in the tones of reverence that others reserve for church. In this spirit governments, when recruiting for the new miracle services and agencies — especially when science and technology are involved — look naturally to the ranks of business. The temptation is all the greater when business is reported to be alienated or to harbor suspicions, as it did, notably, in the case of the Canada Development Corporation.

Thus we have, on the one hand, a stream of businessmen into the public service. Mr. X was a successful executive with Y corporation and a well-known patron of worthy causes. The mere fact of his presence in a public agency is an assurance that it will not end up in the mess that would otherwise be expected.



PARLIAMENT
. . . conflict of interest

But as government looks to business, so does business look to government. That, after all, is where most of the business is to be found nowadays. What corporation Y wants is someone who knows his way around in Ottawa; whose understanding of the workings of government is not gleaned from a crystal ball; who can greet many prominent public servants by their first names; who is fully conversant with the thought of the subsidy dispensers; and understands the methods of developing specifications for contracts on which tenders must be based.

Thus it is not altogether surprising to observe that there is another stream in the opposite direction: ex-public servants moving into the field of business.

There is nothing basically reprehensible in either type of recruiting. Government in some cases may have no choice; it makes virtue out of necessity and probably discerns virtue all the more easily in other areas.

Possibility of Abuse

But in such a situation, while abuse may be rare (and probably is), the possibility of abuse certainly exists. There are bound to be cases giving rise to suspicion; not easily dispelled because influence can be exerted in many ways.

To prescribe a remedy, as the British have found, is not easy. There is not the slightest evidence that government is becoming less ambitious or that anything will be done — except perhaps temporarily in austerity periods — to check the growth of bureaucracy or the wooing of excutives to government service. As noted, the criticism of the opposition is directed to cases. But it is improbable that the Conservatives have anything against the recruitment of businessmen. If the NDP have an anti-business bias, they are also desirous of widening the sphere of government activity, and so in practice would in all likelihood seek to attract more talented administrators from the business world. The government meanwhile lives with a system to which it has so notably contributed.

There is no doubt as to the disposition of opposition parties in a pre-election session to make what political capital they can out of apparent cases of conflict of interest. But no one at the moment seems to be interested in constructive proposals for minimizing the risks inherent in the existing system and the current philosophy of government-business relationships. It may be unrealistic to expect them until such time as the subject is seriously studied by a parliamentary committee — asssuming that the matter of public safeguards is one likely to interest a future parliament.

WILLIAM R. FRYE

Moscow Picks a Careful Path

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — One of the principal preoccupations of western chancelleries last week was studying Soviet reactions to the Peking summit. Out of the words and actions of the men in the Kremlin may come the best indication of what the Nixon trip to China accomplished.

In Vietnam: A curious and unexplained lull, at just the time when, if there was to have been a 1972 Tet offensive, it would have had to begin. By April, monsoon rains will make large-scale operations impractical in much of the country.

In the Mediterranean area: A continuing drive to insinuate Soviet technicians into the Arab oil industry; an effort to embrace Libya the way Moscow previously courted Iraq, Algeria and Syria.

On the Indian subcontinent: A major move to consolidate Soviet influence in Bangla Desh (formerly East Pakistan).

In its military posture: Steps to deploy multiple warheads on intercontinental missiles. By the time Nixon reaches Moscow, or shortly thereafter, 100 missiles may have been so equipped.

In Eastern Europe: A pullback from Czechoslovak-type suppression of dissent in Romania; an apparent moderation of pressures on Yugoslavia.

In its propaganda: An effort to play down the significance of the Peking summit; a calculated implication that what happend there was not particularly important.

Fitting the Jigsaw

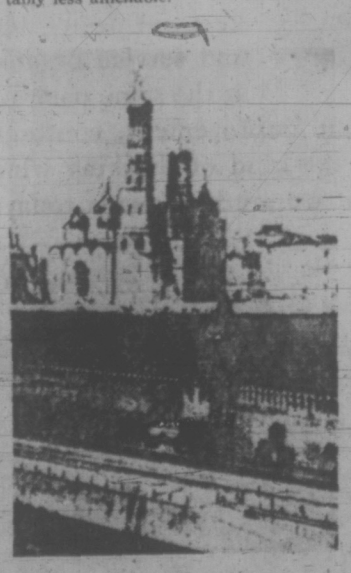
The lull in Vietnam is at least as likely to have been the result of Chinese influence as Soviet. Indeed, it is more likely. And, of course, the quiet on the battlefronts could be temporary.

But if the lull is (or was) even in part Soviet-inspired, it fits with other moves Moscow has made directly toward the United States in recent weeks and months, since the plan for Nixon's China trip was announced.

These include an offer to negotiate the payment of some of the Soviet Union's wartime lend-lease debts, and a strong indication that a partial nuclear-arms pact will be ready for signature when the President goes to Moscow.

The Kremlin thus has appeared, in the bilateral area, to be competing with China for friendlier American ties. What it has done in triangular competition with American interests, however, is notably less amenable.



THE KREMLIN
. . . a softer voice

The agreement to provide Bangla Desh $45 millions in aid, in exchange for ties which approach those of a treaty-bound ally, was wholly consistent with Soviet help in bringing the new nation into being. It was the first dividend on Moscow's wartime investment. But in western eyes, it had the highly undesirable result of spurring a leftward drift in the politics of the Subcontinent.

Moscow's actions in the Middle East and in Cyprus, where the local Communist Party helped President Makarios resist a compromise settlement with the Turkish community, were similarly predictable and similarly disconcerting.

The long-range drive to implant Soviet influence in the Mediterranean area is clearly a high-priority Kremlin objective, not to be lightly diverted by fear of Chinese-American "collusion."

Only in Eastern Europe were Soviet actions out of the expectable pattern. After menacing Romania for months with verbal threats, diplomatic pressures, and actual concentrations of tanks and infantry on the border, the Kremlin began, some time shortly before the turn of the year, to try friendly blandishments.

The military invasion threat was withdrawn. The tone of propaganda eased. And the "solidarity" of "socialist brethren" came once again to include the maverick Romanian leaders, who have successfully maintained friendly ties to China.

Less Conclusive

The evidence is less conclusive of an easing of pressure on Yugoslavia, but in Tito's case, too, there appears to have been a policy decision in Moscow to avoid or delay a showdown. There is not to be another Czechoslovakia on the verge of Nixon's trip to Moscow.

The Russians thus reacted ambivalently to the Peking summit. They refused to abandon major efforts to expand their influence in the Middle East and South Asia, and continued building their strategic nuclear striking power, perhaps in part because these drives may represent bargaining power in future dealings with Nixon.

But they allowed themselves certain gestures to the United States and quieted some tensions in Europe, realizing that to display brutally once again, as in August 1968 and October 1956, their 19th century approach to spheres of influence would have jolted, probably beyond recovery, the likelihood of accommodation with the United States. Indeed, another Czechoslovakia would have made impossible the Nixon visit. And this the Russians clearly did not wish to do.

So the most reasonable conclusion, consistent with the known facts, is that the Soviet Union does wish to compete with China for ties with the United States, but — unless it gets a very great deal, indeed, in return — is not likely to modify its policies in the areas of the world where Soviet and American interests are only indirectly in conflict.

The Megavitamin Treatment

LETTER

An article referring to our group's advocacy of orthomolecular psychiatry, which appeared in the Times of February 23, has been brought to my attention.

The item does a disservice to those of your readers who look to the press for open-minded reporting of scientific advances.

1. We are not a group composed only of schizophrenia sufferers and their families. Some members are simply healthy, concerned professional and lay persons who wish to help "spread the word" on medicinal treatments for "mental" illnesses.

2. We do not claim that megavitamin dosages bring "miracle cure." They do often bring startlingly good, rapid improvements in physical and mental health, either alone or when used in conjunction with other dietary changes and improved living routines.

3. Many vitamins, not just B3 and C, are used by Dr. Hoffer and other leaders in the work.

4. There certainly IS "clear evidence" that the causes of mental disorders are physiologic. There is no clear evidence that the causes are psychologic.

5. There are eight distinct physical syndromes, formerly called schizophrenia, which have been recognised in the past few decades and "separated from the hodgepodge we call the schizophrenias." They are: dementia paralytica, pellagra, porphyria, homocysteinuria, thyroid deficiency, amphetmaine psychosis, Vitamin B-12-folic acid avitaminosis and coeliac disease.

(The quote is from the book: "The Schizophrenias ? Yours and Mine," by Doctors Pfeiffer, Ward, El-Meligi and Cott.)

6. We do not dispute the value of some tranquilising drugs, as used with orthomolecular therapy.

7. Mrs. McCarville did not "claim a recovery rare of 85 per cent in patients treated by vitamin therapy as opposed to 35 per cent recovery in untreated patients." In fact, she quoted the published results of a study which she believed was done at Yale (U.S.A.), but she stated that she would check the source before publication.

8. The statement that Mrs. McCarville's son is schizophrenic is false. He has coeliac disease and was cited to Mr. May as an example of a child with undiagnosed physical disease having been treated by doctors as emotiolly disturbed.

9. Mrs. McCarville stands by her actual claim that her son's life was saved by massive doses of a wide range of vitamins, including B3 and C, and minerals and a high protien diet.

10. Megavitamin therapy is not new. Research was started in the nineteenth century. It has been in clinical use since at least 1952, and follow-up studies prove its worth and also that there are no adverse effects.

Those (including doctors) who wish for further information will like to know that our next meeting will be tonight at Central Junior High School, Victoria, at 8 p.m. Inquiries will also be welcomed at the address below or to Victoria's "Crisis Line." — S. C. W. Stokes, Co-chairman, Victoria Chapter of the Canadian Schizophrenia Foundation), Box 8, R.R. 1, Cobble Hill, B.C.

The End Is Coming—Pass the Seed Catalogue

RUSSELL BAKER

Well, it appears that the world really is coming to an end. It used to seem like a joke. Those people who walked the crowded Market and Broad and Main Streets of America bearing placards urging us all to prepare ourselves for the imminent arrival of doomsday kept cartoonists in pocket money even during the Depression, when doomsday was not as unpleasant to visualize as it is nowadays.

Now it appears that it wasn't a joke after all. The world really is coming to an end. We have it from a computer, which has examined or processed or done whatever computers do to, or with, or at, a mathematical model of the world. (How typical, how depressing that most of us, dependent upon a computer and a mathematical model for news of doomsday's imminence, don't even know what a mathematical model is, or what a computer does with it, or to it, or at it.)

The grim news comes from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where they know their computers and mathematical models, and grim news it is. The study concluded that the world must come to an end in a catastrophic collapse of human society unless we quickly stop economic and population growth. When we reflect that we haven't even been able to stop the growth of hair on young men, our ability to stop economic and population growth on the entire planet seems most unlikely.

About 250 men who hold important jobs and titles met at the Smithsonian Institution the other day to talk about the bad news. They did not take it as a joke when informed that the failure of the world would occur within a hundred years unless growth could be stopped and a world-wide equilibrium in distribution of the planet's goods and services could be established.

"The mind boggles," said Elliot Richardson, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, who was there. He was right. Just reading about the prospect from a safe distance is enough to make the mind boggle.

And yet, the mind stops boggling very soon, absorbs the fact — "Yes, the world really is coming to an end this time" — and resumes functioning on the old anti-doomsday assumption that everything is going to come out all right in the end.

What makes us turn our backs on the promise of doom and open the seed catalogue with the feeling that everything is going to come out all right in the end? There is no sensible reason for, heaven knows, very little ever does come out all right in the end.

Disaster, failure, heartbreak and death are man's fate, along with flowers that rarely live up to the promise of the seed catalogue, baseball teams that finish seventh if at all, and worlds that come to an end suddenly and leave you mercilessly exposed in the dead world's ideas, necktie width, slang, morality, politics, ethics, hopes . . .

This perverse refusal to admit reality about our fate may be what sustains us through so many ends of the world. It is foolishness, and the fool as survivor, of course, is one of literature's most familiar figures.

Typically, on the day the 250 men with important jobs met to hear about the end of the world, the news that made the front page, the "hard news," as editors call it, dealt with a vision of the world in which man would go on forever.

The Senate finance committee, the papers told us, had that day approved action which, if enacted, would require every American child on reaching the age of 6 to be fitted with a Social Security number. This assault on human identity was only incidentally an attempt to prepare the next generation for orderly sorting in an ant-heap world.

Its chief purpose was to make it harder for welfare swindlers to cheat the government. The aim of the welfare swindler, of course, is to achieve an equilibrium with the well-to-do in the distribution of the world's goods and services. Thus, the Senate finance commitee is moving ahead not only on the assumption that population growth will continue, but also to prevent establishment of that economic equilibrium which the computer says is all that can save us.

Another story on the same day reported the launching of Pioneer 10, a spacecraft that will carom off Jupiter and sail out into the inexpressible infinity of galactic space bearing a message that it is the work of man and woman and listing directions by which remote citizens of the universe may locate us here on earth.

It would take perhaps 80,000 years, perhaps 150,000 for Pioneer 10 to reach any place with the remotest possibility of intelligent life capable of intercepting it, reading its message and initiating correspondence with earth.

An answering message might be radioed back here within 10 or 15 years. Thus, the shot from Cape Kennedy on the day the end of the world was being discussed in Washington assumed that there would be somebody here to listen to the radio in A.D. 81,982.

That indeed is hope, and foolishness. The mind boggles. Even doomsday seems trivial in these scales. And the seed catalogue — yes, this year, this year perhaps, the flowers really may turn out to be just as enchanting as the pictures.

Brazil's Push for Latin Dominance

By JAMES NEILSON
The London Observer

BUENOS AIRES — Brazil's runaway economic growth has drastically altered the traditional balance of power in Latin America. Argentines have always seen their country as the equal of Brazil, and have comfortably assumed they were the natural leaders of South America in every field.

Brazil's potential was acknowledged, but in the past its produce was tropical and exotic, while Argentina's was that of a temperate zone and found ready markets in the northern hemisphere. Compared to Argentina, Brazil has been — and still is — poor and backward. In the future, perhaps, things would change, but that day seemed a long way off.

Argentina Stagnant

Brazil's progress, chiefly in industry but also in farming, has rudely dented Argentine complacency. Brazil's future dominance looks uncomfortably close when seen from Buenos Aires, and by the end of the decade Brazil's per capita product could well outstrip that of Argentina.

The manifest self-confidence of Brazil's ruling elite contrasts with the demoralization of middle and upper-class Argentines, and many in Buenos Aires fear that Brazilian domination of the continent is merely a matter of time.

There is every indication that the Brazilian advance will continue, while Argentina has been stagnant over two decades. Brazil's population is burgeoning: there are already more than 90 million Brazilians, in less than 30 years there will be more than 200 million.

Argentina's population, on the other hand, is growing at a north European rate: there are 23 million today and there are less than 40 million in prospect for the year 2000. Large-scale Brazilian immigration into Argentina's northern provinces is a feared and much-discussed possibility.

To combat Brazil's drive towards continental hegemony,

MEDICI
. . . confident

the Argentine government is doing its best to persuade the other Spanish-speaking nations of Latin America to join it in forming a cordon sanitaire. Since seizing power less than a year ago President Alejandro Lanusse has met Salvador Allende of Chile, Colonel Hugh Banzer of Bolivia, General Alfredo Stroessner of Paraguay, Pacheco Areco of Uruguay, Velasco Ibarra of Ecuador and Velasco Alvarado of Peru. Lanusse plans to travel to Colombia and Venezuela this month and he has also scheduled a visit to President Garrastaziu Medici of Brazil in order to clear the air.

By undertaking this complicated series of trips Lanusse scrapped the doctrine of "ideological frontiers" fathered by his predecessor-but-one General Ongania.

This doctrine, still dear to the Brazilian leadership, held that the military and democratic governments of the region should join forces to meet the "Communist threat" radiating from Cuba.

Argentina and Brazil have been engaged in a tug-of-war for influence in Bolivia, Paraguay and Uruguay for over a century. Uruguay was created as a buffer state — by Britain in 1828 — to divide the Spanish-speaking River Plate and the Portuguese-speaking Brazilians, who were penetrating southwards. Most Uruguayans firmly believe that Brazil is determined to annex their country should the chance occur.

Just over a year ago, when the Tupamaro urban guerrillas kidnapped Brazilian consul Aloysio Dias Gomide and then British Ambassador Geoffrey Jackson, the Brazilian army held threatening manoeuvres on the Uruguayan border.

Invasion Rumors

For a few days the air was thick with invasion rumors. Buenos Aires stayed silent, but it was assumed that Argentina would counter any Brazilian move by sharing the burden of keeping law and order. Uruguay, a democratic enclave sandwiched between two relative giants ruled by military dictators, helplessly resents the idea that it is disputed territory, and tries hard to remain equidistant from both.

Brazil's shadow also falls over Bolivia. Statements a few months ago by a Brazilian general about his nation's future role as continental gendarme caused a furore in La Paz but failed to prevent the Bolivian government turning towards Brazil for economic aid and ideological understanding.

Buzzes of Coup

Paraguay, for years regarded as an Argentine satellite, is also being drawn into the Brazilian orbit. Major hydro-electric projects are being jointly undertaken. Most of the energy produced will flow into the dynamic industries of Sao Paulo, the real motor of Brazilian expansion.

Lanusse's attempts to block Brazil is hampered by the instability of most Latin American governments with the significant exception of Brazil. His own tenure of power is insecure and Buenos Aires is once again buzzing with coup rumors. Ecuador's Velasco Ibarra was thrown out shortly after meeting Lanusse and his successor promises to adopt a radically different foreign policy.

A year ago Bolivia was ruled by the populist General Torres, and a rash of "peasant and worker Soviets" seemed about to replace more orthodox assemblies. Torres was overthrown by Banzer, but several plots aimed at reviving Torre's socialist experiments have been denounced.

Apart from Bolivia, Paraguay, Uruguay and Chile — which is uninterested in either Argentine or Brazilian spheres of influence — all the nations of Latin America are far closer geographically to Brazil than to Argentina. Peru, Colombia and Venezuela share the Amazon basin with Brazil and stand to gain from Brazil's ambitious attempt to develop the vast and partly unexplored region.

The West Coast nations, furthermore, are also dreaming of a wider Pacific community. Argentina's efforts to keep pace with its traditional rival are hampered by the very need to find allies. Brazil is quite big enough to go it alone.

Brazil's diplomatic successes have not been restricted to Latin America. At the end of 1971 a large and high-ranking delegation of Japanese businessmen visited Buenos Aires before proceeding to Brasilia. They proved most reluctant to invest in Argentina, and were plainly frightened by the recurrent waves of xenophobia that reduce the prospects of foreign investors. In Brazil, however, they blossomed with plans for joint enterprises, and for weeks Argentines were treated to a spate of articles describing the new Tokyo-Brasilia trade axis.

Power radiating out from new capital of Brasilia

Garrastazu Medici's 1971 visit to Washington was equally disheartening for Argentina. President Nixon publicly approved Brazilian aspirations to a larger role in the world. The prospect that the Group of Ten industrial nations would become the Group of Eleven with the incorporation of Brazil was hopefully, if prematurely, aired in Sao Paulo boardrooms.

Nixon's assertion that whatever happened in Brazil would determine the future of Latin America offended Argentines, especially as Lanusse has been angling for an invitation to Washington ever since he grabbed power last March. In desperation he asked for, and was granted, a telephone conversation with Mr. Nixon during which a stream of platitudes was exchanged.

The spectre of Brazilian hegemony shows no signs of going away, and all Argentine's efforts to exorcise it have so far proved vain.

The Bombs Keep Falling

THE NEW REPUBLIC
An Editorial

If you see things that way, there was nothing particularly unexpected in reports that American B-52 bomber attacks in Indochina reached an intensity of 27 missions in the 24-hour period just before the lunar new year.

In fact, though, it was a record — the highest number of missions flown by B-52s since the U.S. command began keeping statistics back in 1960. In the 24 hours before that, 19 missions were flown, and before that, 12.

It's difficult to compare these figures with those of the past, for although there were no more than 10 missions a day during the height of the 1968 Communist Tet offensive, in those days more planes went out on each mission.

But it's clear enough that bombing during the week before this year's Tet was approaching the saturation level. For the 24 hours of lunar new year's day, bombing inside South Vietnam was suspended, though it continued in North Vietnam and Laos, and was resumed on a full scale afterwards.

A survey of five newspapers that generally oppose the administration's war policy (Washington Post, New York Times, Boston Globe, Los Angeles Times, St. Louis Post Dispatch) revealed that during the week in question (Feb. 7-14) none commented editorially on the stepped-up bombing.

They had other things to deal with: H. R. Haldeman, for example, and after that, the president and his personal advice to critics that they should take care to "review their public statements and really consider whether they believe that they are going to help the cause of peace or hurt it, whether they are going to encourage the enemy to negotiate or encourage him to continue the war." All this had to be analyzed in editorial columns.

Then, too, bombing is an old subject as old as the war and just as persistent. Like everyone else, editorial writers are weary of hearing bombing runs described by the Pentagon as "interdiction," or as they were last December as "limited duration reinforced protective reaction."

Even without this verbal camouflage, bombing is difficult to treat with precision: so many of the statistics are classified or unavailable, and those that are available are often ambiguous, and who knows how many are being killed or who they are, or where?

Twenty-seven missions, for example, could mean as few as 27 sorties (each sortie being one plane on one attack), or as many as 135 sorties, or more. Furthermore, bombing is not defended as policy, but as tactical necessity, which gives military logic an advantage. If the U.S. command and the president announce that emergency conditions prevail, and that bombing enemy camps is the only way to save American lives, who will dispute them and how often?

The repeated arguments, the insistence on pragmatism, the bloated terminology are part of another bombardment campaign — one that deadens the subject and buries it.

There are enough facts in the open, however, to show that the U.S. is dropping more bombs on Indochina now than it was a short while ago. According to Pentagon statistics, 50,644 tons were dropped in November, and in December 61,838 tons — an increase of more than 20 per cent.

Another way to chart the pattern is to compare the monthly figures on "protective reaction strikes," which are easier to obtain but in some ways are less meaningful. (Although there were five days of intensive bombing last December, called "reinforced protective reaction," the Pentagon has counted them as a single strike.) The number of protective reaction strikes last November was 15, in December, 25: a total of 40. For the corresponding period in 1970 the total was two, and in 1969, one.

Now that we've had Tet, but no offensive, U.S. strategists in Saigon are developing a new analysis. The New York Times quoted a "United States military source" who speculated that the enemy might not make a move until June or July, and that "as long as we assess the enemy threat to be as great as we do today, we can expect that kind of air activity we have now to continue."

A NEW LIFE

THE GLOBE AND MAIL
An Editorial

When is a person old — at 30, 50, 65? Psychiatrists say it depends on one's outlook and attitude to life.

Who says you can't start a new career at 73? Not Pauline Vanier, wife of the late Governor-General George Vanier.

Mrs. Vanier, patroness and co-founder of the Vanier Institute of the Family, chancellor of the University of Ottawa, a great lady with a distinguished record of service to community and country, has given up a well-ordered, comfortable life to join her son, Jean, in work at a community he founded for the mentally retarded near Paris. She typically plays down her decision.

"All I'm doing is getting rid of some luxuries I don't need with the permission of my children, and using the money to help the poor in general and my son's work in France, England, India and Canada."

We admire her courage and dedication, and applaud her rejection of what her son calls "velvet-cushion Christianity."

We're Not Perfect, But We're Trying: PM

MONTREAL (CP) — People should not expect Utopia from the government, says Prime Minister Trudeau.

"All we can do, and it will have to be done in conjunction with the other sectors of the economy, is to try to establish guidelines which will respond to a certain number of priorities," he said in an interview.

"Industrial strategy" means different things to different people, he told Michael Barkway, publisher and editor of the Financial Times of Canada.

It could mean economic growth, or providing more jobs for a growing labor force, or a program to meet the problems of regional inequality.

Should it be based mainly on "the need to determine your own economic environment rather than letting foreign investment do?"

QUESTIONS LINKED

The prime minister said all the questions are interwoven.

"The government never promised that it would suddenly, quickly, bring in an industrial strategy which would meet all these goals."

The total answer for society, he said, can only be given, not by the government, but by the government plus all other sectors of the economy.

"All we can do is discuss the right questions with them and come up with answers which are acceptable to the majority of Canadians. . . .

"Many things have to be done by private enterprise, many decisions will still be taken by them, and the kind of society we will have will be the result of what governments want and what business is willing to do and what the consumer desires."

MUST BE CAUTIOUS

Mr. Trudeau said that although greater development in secondary manufacturing is needed to absorb more of the labor force, Canada should not go overboard in that priority in the long run because values may change.

People may want more leisure or more services and less from secondary industry in the way of consumer goods, he added. It was a problem that would have to be worked out by government, management and labor.

Carefully emphasizing that his government is concerned about the plight of the unemployed, Mr. Trudeau suggested "there is perhaps a different work ethic emerging in our society."

"Perhaps there is a growing percentage of people, though I'm sure it's still very small, who don't want to continue looking to work in the traditional sense in order to fulfil themselves as human beings.

"Our statistical definition of unemployment does include a certain number who don't want jobs or have actually refused jobs. If we try to gear the economy to a pitch which will absorb this kind of person, we will obviously gear it wrong."

HITS COMPLAINERS

The prime minister criticized businessmen who complain about government restrictions. In the modern world business leaders had to consider the community—"its preoccupation with consumer protection, with anti-pollution, with fair advertising and so on."

"If governments don't try to deal with these problems, if we try to sweep them under the carpet, business may be relieved for one or two sessions or the duration of one government or one Parliament. But these problems won't go away just because the government has not tackled them."

Mr. Trudeau said business, government and labor had to get closer together. Canada cannot afford "the kind of waste that exists" by confrontations that go on between the three sectors.

"I'm sure more and more we will be pressed by our competitors in the world markets to be a little less wasteful in our productive processes.

"I'm sure that governments and management and labor will have to find ways of at least hanging together more if they don't want to lose their markets to third countries who do manage to solve their problems better than we do."

BLACKS ADOPT MILITANT VIEW

Times News Services

GARY, Ind. — The first black national political convention to be held in the United against forming a separate against forming a separat political party and against endorsing any candidate for the presidency.

The total agenda adopted by the 3,456 delegates for political, social and economic action was so militant it seemed a certainty no white presidential candidate could endorse it.

The agenda was adopted after a stormy session that included a bomb scare which forced evacuation of delegates from the high school gymnasium for 25 minutes.

The last day also was marred by a walkout of a majority of the Michigan delegates, who wanted to dalay voting for up to 90 days.

By voting not to endorse any candidate for president, the meeting avoided a showdown on whether to support black Rep. Shirley Chisholm (D — N.Y.), who is seeking the Democratic nomination.

A controversial resolution was adopted condeming busing of school students as obsolete and dangerous to black people.

"We condemn racial integration of schools as a bankrupt, suicidal method . . . based on the false option that black children are unable to learn unless they are in the same setting as white children," the resolution said.

70 Tourists Plucked From Suspended Car

INTERLAKEN, Switzerland (AP) — Seventy tourists spent a night suspended over the craggy slopes of Mount Scholthorn in a cable car. They were picked off the roof Sunday by helicopters and flown two-by-two to the foot of the mountain.

The 100-passenger cablecar got stuck when a cable fouled in a pulley as the cabin was gliding down from a lodge at the top of 9,742-foot Mount Schilthorn Saturday evening.

The passengers, reported to be all Swiss, spent the night in good spirits, cheered by hot tea carried up the mountain in a snow buggy and lifted into the stranded cabin by rope.

Hanging 750 feet aoove the mountainside, they took turns resting on blankets pulled into the cabin by rope before nightfall.

"But of course no one slept a wink," said Walter Uhlmann, one of the rescued passengers. "Thank heavens, the cold was not unbearable, if only for the reason there were simply too many of us in the gondola."

Two mechanics were flown in Sunday morning and lowered to the cabin. They struggled with the tangled cables for two hours without success.

The helicopters then began winching passengers from the roof. Each of the 70 passengers was tied into an emergency seat and reeled into a helicopter hovering above.

Slow World Tour

HOBART, Tasmania (Reuter) — Two Frenchmen and a cat arrived here Sunday on a round-the-world voyage which so far has taken 33 months. The yachtsmen, Gerard Janichon, 26, and Jerome Poncet, 25, set out from La Rochelle, France, May 29, 1969. They have stopped at ports in Iceland, Greenland, the United States, West Indies, Brazil, Argentina and the Antarctic.

Offshore Drilling Topic

Oil spill safety programs of Canada and U.S. will be discussed in a session of the fourth Offshore Technology Conference to be held May 1-3 in Houston.

The conference is sponsored by 11 international engineering and scientific societies and is reputed to be the world's largest annual meeting on ocean research, exploration and technology.

Its technical program will include presentation of 200 papers, two of which will be U.S. Geological Survey engineers on regulation and practices for offshore Pacific and Gulf of Mexico oil drilling operations, including Santa Barbara Channel.

A representative of the Canadian energy, mines and resources department will participate in a panel discussion on safety.

A session on safety in offshore resource development will contain three papers dealing with current technical capabilities for drilling, pipelining and relocating equipment.

Cream

Work on Buttle Lake claims of Cream Silver Mines Ltd. by Western Mines Ltd. is expected to continue this week, part of the second year of an exploration option agreement.

The property is located to the south of Western Mines operations on Myra Creek, and offers Western a chance to bring Cream claims to production.

New Dimension

Toronto-based New Dimension Resources Ltd. has entered a northern Michigan oil and natural gas play by taking a 12½ per cent working interest in four offset wells in the Sage Dundee field.

The sites are adjacent to three producing wells brought in by Trico, one of several major companies active in the state.

New Dimension also has obtained permits to explore in West Montreal and Gaspe areas of Quebec.

Domtar

Improved business activity in 1972 is forecast by Domtar Ltd., which had lower operating results in 1971 than in the previous year.

The company said net income was $10.5 million ($17.6 million) before extraordinary items and $1.8 million (eight cents a share) after extra deductions, vs. $1.17 a share in 1970.

Writedown of investments in two Italian companies was chiefly responsible for the $8.7 million reduction in net earnings, along with closing facilities in Toronto and Cornwall.

Sales at $516.4 million compared with $484.9 million, with pulp and paper production accounting for 65.6 per cent.

Oro

Three wells in the Greenan gas field of Saskatchewan have been contracted by Oro Mines Ltd. to Precision Drilling Co. The first two will be offset to wells with tested open flow of up to 46 million cubic feet a day.

The third will be offset to an oil well which produced an initial 88 barrels a day.

The farmee will get 100 per cent of his drilling costs from initial production, with subsequent proceeds divided 60 per cent to Oro and associates and 40 per cent to Kal Resources Ltd.

CPI

CP Investments Ltd. reports net income of $35.8 million (62 cents a share) for the year ended Dec. 31, compared with $39.3 million (69 cents) in 1970.

The company said net income from oil, gas, hotels and restaurants increased, while timberlands and real estate earnings remained at the 1970 level.

Net investment income, including equity in Cominco Ltd. and Great Lakes Paper Co. Ltd., declined sharply as a result of weak markets and higher value of the Canadian dollar.

Economy Needs Ottawa Priming

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Neil V. German, president of The Canadian Chamber of Commerce, said today that if the Canadian economy is to enter a period of strong expansion there is a need for further fiscal stimulus by the federal government.

Mr. German, addressing the Rotary Club here, said the additional stimulus should include both personal and corporate tax cuts and, "in certain circumstances, direct grants to industry."

"Business would need assurance that the special tax measures would continue for an extended period in order to carry out modernization and expansion projects through to completion," he said.

Mr. German said recent legislation, the government's foreign investment policy yet to be announced and the current international economic environment has "put business in a very cautious mood with regard to capital investment."

However, Mr. German warned, our monetary policy must not be so expansionary that it contributes to an excessive degree of inflation.

"Government policies to prevent further appreciation of our currency may be necessary because of the hardship already incurred by many sectors of the economy," he said.

"The overriding challenge in the coming year will be to bring about a significant reduction in unemployment without producing excessive inflationary pressures."

Mr. German said the "preferable" way of achieving this is through fiscal and monetary policies designed to stimulate the private sector of the economy rather than by undue expansion of the government sector.

A text of Mr. German's address was released in advance of delivery.

Drilling Declines

CALGARY (CP) — The search for petroleum and development of finds slowed slightly during 1971 with the drilling of 3,175 wells.

In 1970, the industry drilled 3,210 holes and in 1969 there were 3,537 tries.

However, the success rate improved with 1,550 wells striking either oil or gas last year compared with only 1,161 in the previous 12 months.

The petroleum association said total footage was down 3.8 per cent to 11,831,519 feet from 12,306,146 feet.

The petroleum interest remained where it has been during recent years with 3,010 wells in western Canada and 165 in the east, including those offshore.

The western total includes the 75 attempts in the Arctic and Northwest Territories, six more than the previous year, which yielded three gas producers and one oil.

Bank Attitude On Loans Change

The Canadian Press

Remember the old joke about how you went to the bank to borrow money only when you could prove that you didn't need it?

That's all changed now and the banks are in the consumer loan field in a big way. Latest figures show people owe the banks five times as much as they did 10 years ago.

The banks made relatively few consumer loans up until 1954, mainly because they were not permitted to take chattel mortgages as security. Revisions in the Bank Act that year permitted such security and the banks started to move aggressively into the consumer loan field.

Since then an interesting trend has appeared in the pattern of consumer loans. The Canadian Bankers' Association notes that the chartered banks now are the largest source of consumer credit, accounting for nearly half the total.

It wasn't always that way. Twenty years ago the banks held less than about 20 per cent of the total and other financial institutions, such as finance companies, had almost half. In 1960 the banks had managed to gain just over 20 per cent but the financial houses had close to 54 per cent.

But now the banks hold 47 per cent of the business while the financial institutions have dropped to 40 per cent. Retail outlets — such as the stores that carry their own credit — have the balance.

COVER WIDE RANGE

Consumer loans are made for a wide variety of purchases, such as to finance a new car, household appliances, to pay medical bills or vacation costs, or to put a son or daughter through college.

Generally, they are made for a term of 36 months or less.

The bankers association says the proportion of loans for other purposes is increasing rapidly, but loans to buy cars have risen at the fastest rate and account for about one-quarter of the total.

All told, the banks had consumer loans totalling $6.53 billion outstanding at the end of 1971, up from $5.28 billion a year earlier, $2.87 billion in 1965 and $1.20 billion in 1960.

The association estimates consumer credit per capita now is about $550, up from $535 a year earlier, $226 in 1960 and only $89 in 1950.

When considering only those in the labor force, consumer credit now works out to about $1,560 a worker compared with $1,361 in 1970 and $627 in 1960. Those figures are just a shade under those in the United States.

The true origin of the magnificent architecture of ancient Rome was a mystery for those living during the Dark Ages which followed the collapse of "the Empire." As difficult as it is for us to believe, early Medieval Man did NOT recognize these huge structures as the work of human beings. They believed that the buildings were the creation of ancient Demons and regarded them as natural phenomena, much like we do mountains.

We're certainly come a long way in identifying and understanding our surroundings.

The Research Department of Richardson Securities of Canada is continually examining the latest investment information. Our analysts, each a specialist in his field, evaluates in which direction a particular set of circumstances will lead an industry or a company within that industry. JET HIJACKED TO AID SISTER

MILAN (AP) — Attillia Lazzeri, the pistol-packing Italian woman who hijacked a jetliner to West Germany, was charged in Italy Sunday with abduction and illegal possession of arms.

German police in Munich reported that Mrs. Lazzeri, who observed her 55th birthday Sunday, was examined by a neurologist and found to be mentally sound. Italian authorities have asked for her extradition, the Germans reported.

In Rome, Interior Minister Mariano Rumor called in his national police chiefs and ordered rigorous security at all Italian airports.

Mrs. Lazzeri, short and greyhaired, said she hijacked the Alitalia Caravelle Saturday to protest her sister's confinement in a mental hospital in Rome.

The plane, with 31 other passengers and a crew of five, was commandeered about 20 minutes after it took off from Rome for Milan.

Franco Jorio, a passenger, said the hijacker got up from her seat about 10 minutes after takeoff and went to the rest room.

"She came out with a pistol in her fist yelling that she wanted to go to Germany" Jorio said.

In Munich, she allowed the passengers and the crew to leave the craft while she remained on board alone. Mancuso later returned to the plane and talked her into surrendering.

Hellyer's Recipe for Canada—Controls

Control of monopoly power, such as trade union wage increases and profits of monopolistic corporations, is the only way the country can curb inflation, Paul Hellyer, former Liberal cabinet minister, said Saturday.

Speaking at the Oak Bay Junior Secondary School auditorium, the leader of Action Canada explained his economic policies, claiming they would eventually eliminate unemployment, the shortage of housing and the nation's economic woes.

Basically, he said, mandatory guidelines for controlling inflation would be to control the excesses of monopoly power. This could be accomplished by seeing that increases in union wages did not exceed the average increase in real output (productivity) of the entire labor force.

On the other hand, profits of certain large industries would not be allowed to exceed the long term (20 or 30 years) average return on capital invested in that industry.

"Our whole economic system is topsy-turvey," he said. "If we don't stop inflation by the end of the century a loaf of bread will cost $1.08."

ENVIRONMENTALISTS KNOCKED

Hellyer was enthusiastically applauded by a crowd numbering about 450. A few people left the auditorium after hearing Ian Mahood, a Vancouver businessman, denounce Ottawa's economic policies.

Mahood is running as a candidate for Action Canada in the forthcoming federal elections. At the Truck Loggers Association of B.C. January convention in Vancouver he condemned citizen groups for opposing some of the practices of clear cutting by the forest industry.

Conservationists are seeking to stop the practice of clear cutting banks of salmon streams and lakes.

Earlier businessman Erif Butler said he would seek the Action Canada nomination in one of the two Greater Victoria ridings.

MONEY WOULD LEAVE

Hellyer also said tax cuts, plus the lowering of the interest on loans and bonds would increase money supply and create jobs for the unemployed.

"But," said one member of the audience, "if you lower the interest rate on loans and bonds, the people will invest their money in other countries."

Hellyer replied that he was confident that other countries would follow Canada's example and lower their interest rates.

Hellyer also thought racial differences between French- and English-speaking Canadians could be resolved if Quebec's economic problems are solved.

In his opinion, the Quebec problem is mainly an economic one.

One member of the audience asked him if he thought Canada Council grants are being wasted and not put to their best use.

He was mildly critical on this. "I think there should be a little better selectivity," he said. "Many artists have benefitted from the council grants. There is more irresponsibility in other areas of government."

One person told Hellyer it was the first meeting he had attended which had not started with the singing of O Canada.

Letters In CODE By 1974

A sophisticated code system for handling mail, already in use in some parts of Canada, will be used in the Greater Victoria area by 1974.

Post office spokesman Ken Stofer says the system, known as CODE, will allow speedier handling and delivery of mail.

In conjunction with the CODE system, mechanized sorting of mail will be installed.

An automated sorting complex, designed to handle only coded letters, will be installed a year later, after CODE has undergone a familiarization period.

CODE was started in Ottawa April 1, 1971, introduced to Manitoba in late 1971 and Saskatchewan early this year.

It will be introduced in Alberta this spring, in the rest of Ontario next spring, and in Quebec in the summer of 1973. In early 1974 it will be installed in British Columbia, the Atlantic provinces, the Yukon and the Northwest Territories.

Stofer says no wholesale layoff of postal employees is anticipated when the mechanized sorting system is installed.

The machinery will be introduced gradually over a period of many years, and the post office will be able to cut down on staff by not replacing those who resign or retire.

Or, he says, employees now doing work that would become mechanized could be transferred to other jobs.

The CODE system is capable of specifying the destination of a letter to a given address. The U.S. zip code specifies only the city of a letter's destination.

Death Penalty

JAKARTA (Reuter) — An Indonesian Communist leader, Supono Marsudidjojo, 52, was sentenced to death Saturday by a military court on charges of rebelling against President Suharto's government after the 1965 Communist coup attempt.

MONEY BAR — Bills in a variety of denominations adorn wall of bar behind Don and Irene Gilliland at their lodge in the tiny mining village of Germansen Landing.

CREDIT RATINGS NAILED TO WALL

GERMANSEN LANDING (CP) — Your credit is good at Gilliland Lodge as long as your money is stapled to the wall behind the bar.

Don Gilliland, owner of the lodge in this tiny mining community 125 miles north of Prince George, set up the "northern credit" system in his bar two years ago. He heard of the pay now, drink later scheme from two prospectors who carried the idea south from Alaska.

The system involves signing a dollar bill and stapling it to the wall.

"You put your name and date on the bill," explained Mr. Gilliland. "Any time you come into the bar broke and want a drink all you do is point out your bill and we give it to you so you can buy a drink."

Mr. Gilliland said there was about $125 on the wall.

"In Canadian money we have everything up to $20 bills. There is one bill from Brazil, another from Australia and a $10 bill from Hong Kong."

And that is a lot of money for this small community. Mr. Gilliland figures in the 30 miles between Germansen Landing and Manson Creek there is a total population of 60 persons this winter.

So far no one has collected on the northern credit in the bar and by the time miners and prospectors start moving through the area this spring the value of the wall should go up considerably.

"It seems to be a matter of pride to put the bill up there and see how long you can leave it," said Mr. Gilliland, who has lived in the area since 1937.

"One guy sent another in to collect and I sent him away. You have to collect it yourself."

Players Contrast Families' Problems

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

Two plays that had things to say concerning the generation gap provided the second evening program of the Greater Victoria Schools Drama Festival.

Presented at St. Ann's Academy, Saturday, the plays also suggested that nothing has changed in regard to family communication difficulties in the past few thousand years.

North Saanich Junior Secondary's entry, Genesis, by Gretchan Bogan, was concerned with Adam and Eve and Cain and Abel, while Highrock Junior's Childhood, but Thornton Wilder, dealt with a modern family.

The plays presented a contrasting idea of familyhood, said adjudicator Clara Hare.

WHOLE CLASS USED

She was impressed with the fact that the director of Genesis, Q. M. Russell, had apparently used all his class. Besides the four main characters there are three choruses and altogether 18 young people were involved.

Mrs. Hare said she felt this was a difficult play, partly because of the biblical language, and partly because of lack of development of the theme.

Wilder, in Childhood, takes the same idea but extends it further, making it easier to do.

Genesis is a choric drama and of the two groups of speakers, Mrs. Hare praised the leader of group I, Pat Sanders, for her stage presence and generally "very competent performance."

Group II — Spirits of the higher order — were inclined to get caught up in words. "There was no joy in their creation," she commented.

She especially liked the four devils — Donna Eichhorn, Jocelyn Logan, Anna Marie Fisher and Lee Ann Marks — who she said moved well and used every means available to interpret their roles.

Marnie Eyford as Eve had a strong voice and forceful personality but needed more contrast.

The two boys, Daryl Wingerter and Michael Carter, had done quite nicely as Cain and Abel, but the adjudicator felt that Cain should have had a lot more to do in order to fill in the role.

Others in the cast were Jan Maegaard, Liz Ireland, Lisa Graham, Alison Sutcliffe, Sandy Ash, Chris Maude, Chtamkaur Cheema, Pat Evans, Valerie Boyd and Kelly Green.

Childhood, directed by Jack Christian, invoked a strong audience response, and one character — the father played by Mickey Odowichuk — was described by Mrs. Hare as giving the highlight performance of the evening.

"He has excellent concentration and a wonderfully natural delivery of lines," she commented.

The children — Meighan Lindsey, Jennifer Keziere and Steve Fairburn — did quite well but needed "business" to help them with their hands, Mrs. Hare suggested.

Lorrie Rossiter as the mother had a difficult role but she improved in it as the play went along.

Tonight at Oak Bay Junior Secondary, both Oak Bay Junior and Senior schools will present plays as well as Central Junior.

Tuesday afternoon session takes place at Frank Hobbs with Hillcrest, Fairburn and Campus View elementaries on stage. The evening session at Mount Douglas Senior will include productions by Glenlyon and two by Mount Douglas.

Baron Named in Art Smuggling Charges

FLORENCE, Italy (UPI) — Florence authorities indicted one of Switzerland's best-known businessmen and four other persons today on charges of smuggling art treasures valued at $1 million out of Italy.

The indictments followed investigation of a case which began in mid-1969 when police said they had broken up an international art smuggling ring.

One indictment named Baron Hans Heinrich Thyssen-Bornemisza de Kaszon, 51, an internationally known art patron and collector and president of dozens of banks and businesses.

He was charged with conspiring with two Italians to illegally export art treasures, including a 13th-century crucifix described by Italians as "invaluable."

DOUG PEDEN - EDITOR

VANCOUVER — University of Victoria Vikettes did everything "just right" on Sunday to collect the combined British Columbia and Canadian senior "A" women's basketball championship at the University of British Columbia's War Memorial gymnasium.

And Vikettes did it all with a 41-39 upset victory over the powerful UBC Thunderettes, handing the home squad its third loss of the season.

Both Vikettes and Thunderettes entered the final with three wins and no losses in the five-team, round-robin tournament. The UBC squad had posted a 15-1 record this season en route to the Canadian intercollegiate title.

But Vikettes put a second black mark on the UBC record at the right time on Sunday, just as they did in Victoria only a month ago, 56-50.

Thunderettes also suffered a single loss to Victoria Maplettes in an Inter-City Senior Women's League game to finish with an over-all 15-3 record this season. Vikettes are now 29-5.

Gail Carlson led Vikettes with 11 points and UVic led 23-19 at half-time. Rose Jossul and Yvone Letellier each added 10 points in the Vikettes' cause.

Terri McGovern led UBC with 12 points.

Miss Letellier, Mrs. Jossul and Dierdre Ogden broke the UBC press consistently with excellent dribbling and passing.

MIKE GALLO
. . . had team at peak

"Our game plan, which we stuck to 100 per cent, was to keep the ball outside and slow the game down to our pace," said jubilant coach Mike Gallo.

"We can't run with that team," he added.

COACH'S PRAISE

Bench strength proved to be a major factor with the loss of Laury Atkinson, Lorna McHattie, Miss Letellier and Miss Carlson through fouls in the second half.

"They didn't panic and kept the ball outside," said Gallo in praise of the bench.

Gallo also had some words of approval for other players:

"Yvonne Letellier got eight of her 10 points from the free-throw line — and they were key free shots . . . Gail Carlson was outstanding throughout the game, hitting from the outside and finishing five for six from the free-shot line . . . Dierdre Ogden completely tied up Janice Gee, their big centre, and held her to only one point in the entire game . . . Pam Henson did a good job along with Rose Jossul in settling our team down. They kept the ball outside and stopped their team from running — because you can't run with UBC."

COMPLETE STALL

"With six minutes to go the score was as it ended," said Gallo. "We wouldn't let them get the ball and they wouldn't let us shoot."

In the final analysis, Vikettes forced UBC into playing their style of game.

"They became extremely over-anxious to get the ball," Gallo added. But for about 70 per cent of the game, Vikettes retained possession and the advantage.

Thunderettes were hampered with 9:54 remaining in the game with the loss of Miss McGovern, who led UBC scoring all season.

She tore the cartilage in her left knee during a fall. In addition, Joanne Sargent and Miss Grant fouled out late in the game to further stymie a possible UBC comeback.

Vikettes compiled a 55-30 victory over Edmonton KGs on Saturday after opening the tourney with a 59-51 win over London Grads, and a 58-41 triumph over St. John Alpines on Friday.

FOUR FOR FIVE

Gallo substituted freely in the Saturday contest and Vikettes enjoyed a 27-12 advantage at half-time.

In other Saturday games, Thunderettes blasted St. John 70-18 and Edmonton, 64-30.

So, for the fourth time in five years, the Canadian women's title resides in Victoria. Victoria Rawlings won it in 1968 and retained possession under the label of Maplettes in 1969. Maplettes were also the defending champions this season.

Saturday

VICTORIA (55) — Mary Clarkson 5, Laury Atkinson 4, Rose Jossul 10, Yvonne Letellier 8, Gail Carlson 4, Judy Pearson 4, Pam Henson 4, Eva Van Wouw 2, Dierdre Ogden 6, Lorna McHattie 6.

EDMONTON (30) — Lois Kirk 8, Gail Bamford 9, Marg Thompson 6, Darlen Anderson 1, Nancy Depner 3, Lil Stefure, Maro Case 2, Barb Kina, Ellory Bantarossa, Hilda Schweitzer 1.

LOADED WITH TROPHIES after upset triumph over University of British Columbia Thunderettes Sunday in Vancouver are these three happy members of University of Victoria Vikettes. Pam Henson (left), Yvonne Letellier and Rose Jossul (right) hold trophies emblematic of British Columbia and Canadian senior women's basketball championships, won by Vikettes with 41-39 triumph over Thunderettes, the national collegiate queens who lost only two other games this season, including one to UVic. Other was to Victoria Maplettes in Inter-City League. (Irving Strickland photo.)

Canadians World Champs After Titanic Struggle

MANILA (CP) — Canada won the third men's world softball championship Sunday night by defeating the United States 1-0 in 11 innings in a titanic final contest.

The Canadian team, the Richmond Hill (Ont.) Dynes, showed great pitching as it ousted New Zealand 1-0 in a semi-final Sunday and then toppled the U.S. by the same score in a three-hour game.

Richard Hames was the winning pitcher and batted in the lone run as Canada dethroned the U.S. It was sweet revenge for Canada, which lost 4-0 to the U.S. in the last game of the second championship in 1968 at Oklahoma City. The fourth championship will be held four years from now in New Zealand.

New Zealand finished third and Mexico fourth in this year's 10-team tournament, played at Marikina, a hilly shoemakers' town about 10 miles east of this Philippines capital.

Hames came up in the 11th inning of a scoreless game with the bases loaded. The U.S., represented by an Iowa team, changed pitchers at this point. Richard Brubaker, who had been on the mound for 4½ hours Sunday, was relieved by Richard Stephen.

Hames hit Stephen's second pitch into centre field, scoring Adrian Smith from third. Smith had singled and advanced on walks given by Brubaker to Lester Downing and Brian Ferry.

Canada had finished first in the preliminary round-robin with an 8-1 record and the U.S. third with a 7-2 mark. To reach the final against Canada, the U.S. team defeated Mexico 5-0 and New Zealand 4-1 in Sunday's showdown games.

The championship game drew a capacity crowd of 10,000.

Leafs Boost Playoff Edge; Seals End Rangers Streak

By The Canadian Press

The top teams in the established East Division of the National Hockey League along with Chicago Black Hawks and Minnesota North Stars in the West grabbed most of the attention during the season.

But with the schedule drawing to a close, the weaker teams in both divisions are providing most of the excitement as they do battle with each other and the stronger teams to gain playoff berths.

Toronto Maple Leafs, in a late-season struggle with Detroit Red Wings for the final playoff spot in the East, moved five points ahead of the Wings during the weekend by tying the North Stars 2-2 Sunday afternoon and edging California Golden Seals 2-1 Saturday.

PENGUINS BEAT BRUINS

In the West, where the final two playoffs spots still are undecided, Pittsburgh Penguins indicated they are not yet ready to lie down by defeating the powerful Boston Bruins 6-4 Saturday night and playing them to a 4-4 tie Sunday night in Boston.

And California Golden Seals, in fourth place in the West, two points ahead of the Penguins, crushed New York Rangers 7-3, ending a 16-game unbeaten streak of the team that is second to Boston in the East.

In another game Sunday afternoon, Chicago edged the Red Wings 3-2.

In games Saturday, Chicago and Montreal Canadiens played to a 1-1 tie, New York beat Detroit 4-2, Los Angeles Kings downed Buffalo Sabres 5-3 and St. Louis Blues defeated Philadelphia Flyers 4-2.

The St. Louis win moved the team alone into third place in the West with 59 points, two ahead of the Flyers in fourth place, three ahead of fifth-place California and only five in front of Pittsburgh in sixth place. Los Angeles is last with 43 points.

The Maple Leafs, who have won six straight games and tied one since King Clancy took over as coach from the ailing John McLellan, got goals from Norm Ullman and Ron Ellis Sunday to tie the North Stars.

Ullman's goal, a power-play effort in the third period, came about six minutes after J. P. Parise glanced a shot off Leaf goalie Bernie Parent's pads to give the North Stars a 2-1 lead.

The North Stars, who had goalie Cesare Maniago injured Wednesday night, also lost the services of Gump Worsley Sunday when he caught a rebound shot on the nose. Goalie Gilles Gilbertt, just called up from Cleveland Barons of the American League, was pushed into action.

The Golden Seals, fresh from their 2-1 heartbreaker the previous night to the Leafs in Toronto, skated undaunted into Madison Square Garden and dumped the Rangers who are involved in a battle of their own with the Bruins for first place in the East.

Rookies Reg Leach and Stan Gilbertson each scored two goals to pace the Seals as California won its first game ever in the Garden. Leach's first goal, a 40-foot slap shot, put the Seals in front 2-1 in the second period and it started a string of California goals.

VICE-PRESIDENT JOINS IN TRIBUTE TO HOWE

DETROIT (AP) — United States Vice-President Spiro Agnew flew to Detroit Sunday for a special tribute to Detroit Red Wings hockey great Gordie Howe.

Howe, forced by arthritis to retire this year after 25 years with Detroit in the National Hockey League, was honored before the Wings' game against Chicago.

Howe was born nearly 44 years ago in Floral, Sask.

Howe's No. 9 jersey was retired and owner and president Bruce Norris announced a scholarship fund in his honor. A $1,500 grant will be awarded each year to a high school graduate excelling in hockey.

Agnew read a letter from President Nixon which said in part:

"When most men retire they're put on ice but there isn't a hockey fan in America who wouldn't want to put you on ice again to enjoy your wizardry."

First Time Was for the Title, Citrus Win Was for the Money

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — The conversation took place on the 18th fairway during Sunday's final round of the $150,000 Florida Citrus open golf tournament.

"When I won at Akron," loose and easy-going Jerry Heard said to Lee Trevino, "that's what I wanted to—win. It was the first one. This time I want the money."

It was more than simple avarice on the part of the budding star from Visalia, Calif. He was in debt and pressing and admitted the financial problems had bothered his game.

He had a one-stroke lead at that stage, while he and Trevino waited to hit their second shots to the green on the final hole at Rio Pinar Country Club, and Heard used that picture swing to lift his shot to within about nine feet of the flag.

He rolled in the putt for a birdie three, a 69 and a two-stroke victory at 12 under par 276. And he picked up $30,000 for first place—a check that solved the money worries.

NOW HE'S EVEN

"This will do it," the 24-year-old said. "I'm flat even. I can tell you it's a big load off my mind."

Bobby Mitchell, who bolted out of the pack with a string of five consecutive birdies on the back nine, closed with a 66 and second at 278.

Jim Jamieson, 70, and Leonard Thompson, 69, were next at 279 in the tightly-bunched field. Chris Blocker, who shared the lead at the end of three rounds, slipped to 73 and 280. He was tied with George Archer, Rod Funseth, Bob Murphy and Australian Bruce Crampton.

Jack Nicklaus, 69, and South African Gary Player, 66, were next at 281. Trevino went one over par on the first hole and never really got it going. He had a 74—282. Arnold Palmer didn't make the cut for the final two rounds. Neither did any Canadians.

Heard won the American Golf Classic last year in Akron, Ohio —his first tour title—and had yearly earnings in excess of $100,000.

But he decided to buy out his backers, a group of 10 Californians, and go on his own. He had to go into debt to do it and didn't get out until this victory.

HILL IN FOURTH WIN, SHARES CURLING LEAD

HAMILTON, Ont. — Moe Hill of Victoria is making a strong bid to retain the title he won last year, but his RCMP rink was forced to share first place, going into today's fifth round of the Canadian police curling championship despite four successive victories.

Matching the British Columbia representatives with four wins in four starts were Dave Gerlach and his Calgary municipal police quartet and a Winnipeg RCMP rink skipped by Roy Gislason.

After downing Yukon Territory 11-9 and nipping the Saskatchewan representatives 8-7 in Saturday's opening rounds, the Victorians followed with two more triumphs Sunday in the 12-rink, round-robin event.

In third-round play, B.C. beat Nova Scotia 10-4.

Hill coasted to a 16-0 triumph over Quebec in the fourth round as Gislason topped Northern Ontario 9-5 and Gerlach blanked New Brunswick 15-0.

Hoop Saints Were Super In National Men's Final

By The Canadian Press

Winnipeg St. Andrews Super Saints maintained their unbeaten record with a 74-63 victory Sunday over Vancouver Villas to win the Canadian senior men's basketball championship at Vancouver.

Vancouver, the defending champions, held the visitors to a 35-35 tie at the half.

The Saints jumped into a five-point lead midway through the second half.

Guard Ted Stoesz led the Saints with 22 points — 12 from the foul line — and Jerry Barney and Ross Wedlake scored 12 each.

Gary Smith, Al Birtles and Bob Brazzuol got 13 points each for the Villas, who were without playing-coach Brent Watson, relegated to bench duty only Saturday with an ankle injury.

In Edmonton, University of Manitoba Jay-Vees won a second straight Canadian junior men's title with a 58-55 victory over University of Alberta Manitoba finished the five-team round-robin tournament with a 4-0 win-loss record. Alberta was second with 3-1.

Vancouver IGA finished third with two wins and two losses.

In another national final at Halifax, University of Winnipeg Wesmanettes nipped Hamilton Athenas 48-46 to capture the junior women's crown.

Victoria Swimmers Post Wins

VANCOUVER — John Van Derboor and Briony Penn of Victoria won individual events as 11 Flying "Y" swimmers competed in the Renfrew Swim Club's spring meet at the weekend.

Van Derboor won the 100-metre butterly for boys 13 and 14, 1:19 while Miss Penn finished first in the 11 and 12 girls backstroke in 1:24.7.

Van Derboor took third place in the 200-metre individual medley and sixth spot in the 100-metre freestyle.

Island Bantam Crown Captured by Yarrows

DUNCAN — Victoria Yarrows trimmed Duncan 31-22 Sunday to win the Vancouver Island bantam girls' basketball crown.

Linda Saunders scored nine points, and Alix Bawlf, chipped in seven points in the final for Yarrows who advanced to the provincial finals this weekend in Salmon Arm.

Janice Turner and Pat Graham of Yarrows were named to the first-all star team while Debbie Knowles and Miss Bawlf made the second team.

The Victoria team downed Campbell River 46-36 and hammered Saanichton 58-17 in Saturday's action. Nanaimo was the other entry in the five-team tourney.

Phils Support Strike Action

Times News Service

Philadelphia Phillies joined at least four other major league teams Sunday night by voting unanimously to strike if current pension plan negotiations with club owners do not reach some accord by the expiration of the current agreement March 31.

"The vote was 28-0," said Terry Harmon, the team's player representative to the Major League Baseball Players' Association.

Cincinnati Reds, Chicago White Sox, New York Mets and Pittsburgh Pirates also have reported unanimous strike votes.

Minnesota Twins voted 30-0 earlier Sunday to reject the players' pension proposal made by major league baseball owners, player representative Jim Perry said.

Perry said Twins players will meet later to decide whether to strike if that becomes necessary.

UNANIMOUS VOTE

The Pirates voted unanimously Saturday to support the proposed strike.

Relief pitcher Dave Giusti, the Pirates' player representative, disclosed the team's vote after a meeting Saturday with Marvin Miller, council for the player's association.

Miller is touring major league baseball training camps and asking for a vote of support in his pension battle with the owners.

First United Club Romps To Provincial Hoop Title

Victoria First United Raiders defeated Saanich Peninsulas 26-13 Sunday to win the Vancouver Island and B.C. midget girls' basketball championship.

The Victory was the fourth straight for the Raiders who romped through the seven-team tourney at Victoria High School undefeated.

The teams effort was rewarded individually as four starters were named to the all-star team. Gail Anderson, Vicki Fitzpatrick, Margaret Barber and Leslie Cross were Raiders players on the team while Jolene Robertson of Nanaimo was the only other player to crack the starting five.

Meanwhile the boys' provincial event was also held at Vic High and Vancouver College thumped Chinatown Lions 41-15 in Sunday's final game.

Charlie Fisher was the only Lion player to crack the all-star team dominated by College. Dave Negrin of College was named outstanding player and was on the all-star team with clubmates Kevin Konar, Rick Simitas and John Doughty.

Raiders reached the final stopping Comox 27-18 and edging Peninsulas 15-14 Saturday. The Lions bowed to College 26-22 in a Saturday game but downed Osoyoos 45-32 and Prince Rupert 41-27.

Paul's Step Back Into Top Berth

Hoped-for assistance from city "friends for a day" didn't arrive Sunday and Victoria West-United was booted out of first place in the Pacific Coast Soccer League.

Victoria Gorge Molsons, West-United's rival for soccer supremacy between the two Victoria entries, failed to find the scoring target or success on defence at Vancouver's Empire Stadium and were blanked 3-0 by Paul's Canadians.

OPENING FLURRY

Victory boosted the Vancouver squad back into the top berth one day after United had moved in front by whipping University of B.C. Thunderbirds 2-0 before 324 fans at Royal Athletic Park.

Next time, United won't be looking for outside help. The club gets a shot at the lead next Saturday at Athletic Park in a head-on clash with Paul's.

Victoria continued to run and play good positional soccer and their efforts payed off for another goal at the 31-minute mark as Ron Thompson turned an intercepted pass into the second tally.

With Forrester troubled by a leg injury, some of the punch was missing from the Vic-West attack, but the Birds were shackled by the persistent checking of Ray Telford, Jim Irvine, Ranjit Dillon and Howie Anderson, who provided superb protection for goalie Barry Sadler.

Unfortunately for Gorge, rookie Darryl Wallace was back in goal for Paul's, after missing two games, to record his fifth shutout in six games.

Royals Batter Vikings To Share Soccer Lead

A three-goal performance by Rudi Kuebler combined with the shutout goaltending of Danny Wilmshurst powered Cosmpolitan Royals to a 5-0 victory over University of Victoria as the Victoria and District first division soccer leaders clashed Sunday.

Victory vaulted Royals into a first place tie with UVic. Kuebler's goals were his 24th, 25th and 26th of the season — tops in the league. Gil McIlraith and Theo Van Den Bergh added the other markers.

In other games, London Boxing shaded Roadrunners 4-3, Vic West blanked Village Green 4-0 and Gorge outscored Oak Bay 7-3.

Boxers got goals from Dave Peffers, Barry Robbins, Bill Hamilton and Jos DeBruins to stay five points back of the leaders in third place. Lucas Dafonseca had a pair of goals and Robert Gutrierrez scored once for Runners.

Mike Beaulac scored twice while Don Head recorded his shutout in Vic West's triumph. Jim Lynch and Graham Kennedy added West's other goal.

Marvin Diercks and Denis Magee fired two goals apiece and Vic Escude, Peter Brett and Dunc McCaig scored singles for Gorge. John Hughes, Stan Wiseman, Jaroslov Hrasky replied for Oak Bay.

In second division action Sunday, UVic Norsemen retained a four-point bulge atop the standings by blanking Vic West 4-0; Lake Hill nipped Gorge 2-1 and Labatts tied Prospect Lake 1-1. Saanich Braves and Century Inn had their games postponed because of poor field conditions.

In third division play, Dave Way scored five goals as London Boxing whipped Stein 6-0 after a 3-1 triumph over East Saanich Saturday to hold an eight-point bulge in first place.

Bulldozers, Bombers In Scoreless Battle

Esquimalt Carson's Bulldozers and Burnaby Bombers failed to resove a scoreless deadlock in the opening game of the best-of-three B.C. women's hockey final Sunday at Pearkes Arena before ice time ran out — despite a five-minute sudden-death overtime period.

Defending-champion Bulldozers and Bombers next meet in Burnaby Winter Club on Sunday with the third game scheduled back at Pearkes on March 26.

Meanwhile, at Fuller Lake Arena the same day, Esquimalt Lions handed Chemainus Leasons a 3-2 loss in the opening game of a two-game, total-goal bantam girls' semi-final for the Vancouver Island title.

Schmidt Takes Buckeye Crown

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Kurt Schmidt of Fort Wayne, Ind., came up with strikes on three of his last four rolls Saturday to defeat Nelson Burton of St. Louis, 255-248, and win the $60,000 Buckeye Open ten-pin tournament.

Schmidt, 39, earning $7,000 for his second Professional Bowlers' Association crown, made Burton, an eight-time champion, his fourth victim in the televised finals of the four-day competition.

Cougar-Taming Sobchuk Giving Pats Full Value

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

The nicest thing to happen to Regina Pats during the 1971-72 Western Canada Hockey League season was the fact that Ernest McLean shifted the Bruins' franchise from Estevan, Sask., to New Westminster.

Had the Bruins remained in the Wheat province, Dennis Sobchuk would have never made it to Regina.

That was the point Regina manager Del Wilson made Saturday after the big, 17-year-old centre scored two goals to power Pats' 5-3 victory over Victoria Cougars at Memorial Arena.

"That makes it 52 goals and 107 goal-posts," said Wilson at game's end, also acknowledging the piping that Sobchuk clanged twice during the match.

He also killed penalties.

All in all, Sobchuk showed the brilliance that established him as one of the league's outstanding payers. Yet this is a rookie who has two more years of junior eligibility.

McLean struck "a hard bargain" before giving up Sobchuk's playing rights to Regina for five players.

"I guess the big reason McLean let him go was because he knew he would have a hart time getting Dennis to come to New Westminster. Plus which, Dennis' brother Gene played for the Pats.

"But if the Bruins had stayed in Esteavan, I don't think we would have got Sobchuk."

Sobchuk put the skids under a game gang of Cougars with his two goals. His 31st scoring shot, on a power play, tied it 2-2 and his 52nd iced proceedings when it appeared the Cougars might force the issue to the wire.

Scott Smith, Al Barrett and defenceman John Dobie scored Regin's other goals to help Pats complete a sweep of all four games with Victoria this season.

Carl Cureatz, dealt to Cougars by the Reginans, was Victoria's big gun. He scored twice and passed to Tim Struch for Victoria's third goal.

But Cougars, standout was goaltender Darryl Fedoruk. He came up with several brilliant saves to keep Cougars in contention.

The Cougars out-shot the Pats 18-13 over the first two periods then lost their firepower in the finale. The Cats managed only four direct shots on Regina goalie Bernie Germaine in the final period.

The shooting failures, plus an inability to take advantage of Regina penalties, hurt.

The Cougars enjoyed a manpower edge seven times but failed to score. The Pats, thanks to Sobchuk's persistance, made good on their lone power-play situation.

The Cougars now turn their attentions on New Westminster (at the Arena on Wednesday) and close out their home schedule by entertaining Edmonton Oil Kings on Saturday.

Neale Going Great

By The Canadian Press

Brandon Wheat Kings received a scare early this month when Robbie Neale and Ron Chipperfield, their two top forwards, were forced to sit out a game with injuries.

But the pair has returned to the ice wars of the Western Canada Hockey League and Neale in particular has been proving that you can't keep a good man down.

For the third consecutive game, he scored three goals and it was enough to give the Wheat Kings an 8-7 win over Calgary Centennials Sunday. It was Brandon's first victory against the western division leaders this season.

And while Neale was in overdrive in Brandon, the Pats in Regina were finally snapping a losing streak against Edmonton Oil Kings. The eastern division leaders beat the Kings 3-2 for their first win over Edmonton this season. Edmonton is second in the west 12 points behind Calgary.

In other WCHL games Sunday Saskatoon Blades, in second place in the east, clipped Swift Current Broncos 5-3, Medicine Hat Tigers chewed up Vancouver Nats 8-1 and Winnipeg Jets nipped Flin Flon Bombers 5-4 in overtime.

Saturday night the Bombers beat the Jets 4-3 in overtime.

Neale's nine goals since his return to action increased his season's production to 50. Chipperfield scored two goals, his 58th and 59th of the season, before he sat out the third period because of a nagging shoulder injury.

James Bay Squad Grabs Rugby Lead

James Bay Athletic Association blanked Cowichan 18-0 Sunday in a four-point match at Macdonald Park to take over sole possession of the Victoria Rugby Union first-division lead.

Greater mobility in the forward line and better handling by the backs helped bring the Velox victory. Centre Chris Hall scored two trys for Velox while single trys were added by Bill Walton and Danny Wallis. John Howe kicked two converts and a penalty goal.

Oak Bay lost the services of both Bob Oughtred and Buddy Scott through injuries and finished the match with only 13 players.

In second-division struggles Sunday, Nanaimo nipped Castaways 13-12 at Carnaryon Park, University of Victoria Saxons edged Velox 14-13 at UVic, James Bay Athletic Association tripped CFB Esquimalt 10-6 at Macdonald Park and Oak Bay Wanderers hammered Cowichan 29-0 at Cowichan Bay.

Junior Crown To Lansdowne

PORT ALBERNI — Lansdowne of Victoria captured the Vancouver Island junior high school boys' basketball championship, symbolized by the, Totem Trophy, with a 57-40 triumph over Elizabeth Fisher of Langford Saturday in the final of the eight-team tournament.

Lansdowne gained the final of the two-day tourney with a 66-50 win over Cedar Hill of Victoria while Elizabeth Fisher defeated Oak Bay 58-57 in the semi-finals.

Bays earned third place with a 71-58 triumph over Cedar Hill while Mt. Klitsa defeated A. W. Neil 48-44 in an all-Port Alberni battle for fourth spot.

In earlier consolation tussles, Mt. Klitsa downed E. J. Dunn of Port Alberni 53-46 and A. W. Neil tripped Quamichan of Duncan, 53-40.

MOSHER SETS PACE

Doug Mosher, who scored 30 points in the semi-final victory, again paced Lansdowne during the final by pumping in 26 points.

Malcolm Moscrop counted 20 points for Elizabeth Fisher, picked as the tourney's most sportsmanlike team.

Dave Gawley and Kevin Wallace scored 21 and 18 points to pace Oak Bay's win over Cedar Hill, which was sparked by a 26-point production from Mike Gains.

APPEARING as guest speaker tonight at fifth annual Victoria Sports Celebrity Dinner will be Jim Duncan (above), coach of Calgary Stampeders, Grey Cup football champions. Other guests at event, scheduled to start about 6:30, will include Joe Kapp, Byron Nelson, Dale Tallon, Ken Sugerman and Herb Capozzi.

CUBS OUST NANAIMO BUCCANEERS AFTER 29 MINUTES OF OVERTIME

NANAIMO — Winger Earl O'Hara and goaltender Rirk Tkalcic shared the hero's role Saturday night as the scrappy Victoria Cubs claimed the Vancouver Island junior "B" hockey championship for a second straight year.

Tkalcic held the fort and O'Hara finally put the finishing touch to a gallant Victoria comeback as the Cubs edged Nanaimo Buccaneers 6-5 in a marathon overtime battle before a capacity crowd at the Civic Arena.

Cubs thus swept the best-of-five series in three straight after winning the first two games 6-4 and 10-6.

The Keith Lawrence-d coached Cubs, defending provincial champions, now face Nor-West Caps in a best-of-three Coast final, scheduled to be played in North Vancouver next weekend. Winners of the Coast crown will host the B.C. final later this month.

O'Hara was the Cubs' man-of-the-hour when he scored his second goal of the night to end the game after 29 minutes and 39 seconds of overtime. Mel Bridgeman, Mark Thomas, Chris Riddell and Mark Purdy scored Victoria's other goals while Bill Bestwick and Lindsay Thompson each scored twice for the Bucs.

Tkalcic helped fashion victory with a brilliant stopping display. Nanaimo took a 5-2 lead just before the second period ended, then Tkalcic shut the door to spark Victoria's comeback.

Riddell and Thomas, used extensively by Lawrence, also figured prominently in the victory.

Claremont Wins Rugby

Claremont won the Greater Victoria senior high school invitational rugby tournament Saturday by defeating Centennial Centaurs "B" 16-0 in the final at Macdonald Park.

After bowing 12-6 to Mt. Douglas, Claremont went through the next three matches in unbeaten fashion to snatch the title. Centaurs downed Victoria High and Claremont "B" en route to the final.

Braves Pad Win Skein On Way to Island Title

Saanich Braves boosted an unbeaten streak to 23 games this season and captured the Vancouver Island bantam hockey championship Sunday with a 5-0 shutout of Comox in the final game of the round-robin tournament at Pearkes Arena.

Braves, which have won 16 league, three Lower Island playoff and three Island playoff games, now advance to the B.C. championship tourney in Revelstoke next weekend.

Brad Maxwell, Bill Adkin, Wayne Larsen, Daryl Borden and Doug Vincent scored for Saanich in the last game. Dan Rogers earned the shutout by parrying 25 shots in the Saanich net.

In other Sunday contests, Comox laced Port Alberni 6-1 and Fuller Lake nipped Port Alberni, 2-1. Kevin Woodman, Guy Johnson, Steve Jones, Bob Beehler, Dean Collier and Doug Dirkson counted for Comox while Joey Peterec replied for Port Alberni. Gene Wrigglesworth and Greg Chadwick scored for Fuller Lake and David Burgoyne supplied the lone goal for Port Alberni.

Braves downed Fuller Lake 6-2 and bounced Port Alberni 6-1 on Saturday.

Maxwell led the win over Fuller Lake with three goals and joined Robert Ferguson to pace the victory over Port Alberni, each scoring two goals.

Golden Bears March To Collegiate Final

EDMONTON (CP) — University of Alberta Golden Bears won the right Sunday to represent Western Canada in the four-conference intercollegiate hockey championship scheduled next weekend at Sherbrooke, Que.

Bears defeated University of Calgary Dinosaurs 3-1 in the final of the four-team series between the Canada West and Great Plains division of the Western Canada Intercollegiate Hockey League.

Calgary defeated the University of Winnipeg 6-5 Friday in overtime and Golden Bears downed the University of Manitoba 6-2 Saturday.

COUNTY RUGBY TITLE

LONDON (CP) — Gloucestershire defeated Warwickshire 11-6 Saturday in the Rugby Union county championship final.

Saanich Peewees Win

POWELL RIVER — Saanich Braves tripped Victoria 4-3 here Sunday to capture the Vancouver Island peewee hockey championship in the final game of the four-team, round-robin tournament.

Braves were undefeated in the tournament, tripping Comox 5-4 and Powell River 9-3 on Saturday. Victoria downed Powell River 5-2 and edged Comox 6-5 in other Saturday games.

Bruce Rollick Tops Macdonnell in Final

TORONTO (CP) — Bruce Rollick of Vancouver won the men's singles title in the Canadian closed badminton championships Sunday and combined with Rolf Patterson, also of Vancouver, to capture the men's doubles crown.

In women's play, Nancy McKinley of Toronto won the singles championship while Judi Rollick, wife of Bruce, and Mimi Nilsson of Vancouver took the doubles title.

Rollick beat Wayne Macdonnell of Vancouver 15-12, 15-8, in the men's final after topping Mike Epstein of Vancouver 15-9, 15-3 in a Saturday semi-final. Macdonnell reached the final by downing Jamie Paulsen of Calgary 15-7, 2-15, 15-10.

Rollick and Patterson won the men's doubles by defeating Paulsen and Pare 4-15, 15-11, 15-10.

WOMEN'S FINAL

Miss McKinley beat Barbara O'Brien of Ottawa in the women's final 11-12, 12-10 and 11-1, after beating Susan Cutmore of Calgary in the semi-finals 11-2, 11-8. Miss O'Brien had defeated Mrs. Rollick in the other semi-final 10-12, 11-5, 11-5.

In the women's doubles, Rollick and Nilsson beat Shedd and Barbara Welch of Toronto 15-6, 13-15, 15-12.

ENGLAND WINS RUGBY

LONDON (CP) — England defeated France 45-10 in an international Rugby Union match.

T-Birds Clinch Rugby Crown

VANCOUVER — University of British Columbia Thunderbirds were flying high on Saturday.

Unbeaten this season, the T-Birds clinched the Northwest Intercollegiate Rugby Conference title with a 32-7 romp over defending-champion University of Victoria Vikings.

Vikings, holders of the crown for the past three seasons, now have a 3-2 record for this season.

T-Birds led 13-7 at half time on two trys by Lee Hilliard as well as a penalty goal and a convert kicked by Ray Banks.

The much fitter UBC squad raced away in the second half with trys by John Mitchell, Barry Leigh and Robert Burns. Banks added another penalty goal and two converts.

Shawnigan Wins Overtime Battle

SHAWNIGAN LAKE — Shawnigan Lake Boys' School nipped Brentwood College 2-1 in overtime Saturday to capture top honors in the annual independent schools soccer tournament.

Inside-right Gordie Creamer emerged as the individual star in the four-team tourney, scoring Shawnigan's first goal in the opening half of the final and then putting Ron Solmer in position for the winning goal in overtime. Derek Sharpe scored for Brentwood and knotted the score 1-1 before half time.

In earlier matches, Shawnigan edged St. George's of Vancouver 1-0 and Brentwood downed St. Michael's University School of Victoria 3-1.

St. George's won the consolation final with a 4-0 shutout over University School.

Volleyball Champs

BURNABY — B.C. Olympics of Vancouver captured the provincial junior women's volleyball championship Saturday at the British Columbia Institute of Technology after compiling a 14-game unbeaten streak in the tournament.

Grosvenor placed second in the eight-team, round-robin affair with an 11-3 record and was followed by Victoria "Y" (9-5).

Vancouver Roadrunners won the five-team "B" tournament for the Burnaby championship with an 8-0 record. Vancouver St. Vincent de Sales Knights were runners-up at 5-3, finishing ahead of Victoria "Y" (4-4).

Brentwood Captures Race Honors

VANCOUVER — Brentwood College captured the open division title at the B.C. independent schools cross-country championships here Sunday with a considerable margin over runner-up St. George's of Vancouver.

Brentwood, with six runners among the first seven to cross the finish line, accumulated 26 points under the reverse-scoring system. St. George's gathered 72 points while third-ranked Shawnigan Lake collected 91.

Jim Robson of Brentwood emerged as the individual winner while clubmate Duane Vaneeuwan came third behind Al Lechtzier of St. George's.

WEDNESDAY, 10:45 A.M.
The phone rang. (See Yellow Pages)
It was Mrs. Grimley. Hysterical.
"My mink bikini," she sobbed.
"Give me the bare facts, ma'am."
"Pinched at the pool," she cried,
By a bald eagle!"
A bandit bird! This was a job for the Branch Manager.

THURSDAY, 2:30 P.M.

FRIDAY, 11:00 A.M.
Paid Mrs. Grimley's claim. Her Wawanesa Homeowner Package Policy carried floater coverage for furs. Client happy. Case closed.

U.K. Navy Spy Gets 21 Years

WINCHESTER, England — A Royal Navy officer was sentenced to 21 years in prison today after he was found guilty of selling secrets to the Soviet Union. Court was told Sub-Lt. David Bingham, 31, a torpedo expert, had peddled naval secrets to cover time-payment debts, house expenses and a new car. Attorney-General Peter Rawlinson said Bingham had earned about $6,000 for 18 months' espionage. It started in the summer of 1970, when the officer and his wife were discussing how they could pay off their debts. The wife suggested Bingham go to the Russian embassy. After they expressed interest, the officer sold secret information about allied ship movements and manoeuvres which "had a value to a potential enemy almost beyond price."

SAN FRANCISCO — Rabbi Abraham Feinberg, a 72-year-old singer and revolutionary, was installed Sunday as "rabbi in residence" at the Glide Memorial Methodist Church here. Amid rock music and clapping by 300 parishioners, the former Toronto rabbi stood on the altar waving a black and white cane. "I want you to know that I received this cane from Ho Chi Minh," he said. "I am a revolutionary. I'll always be one. I am backing Angela Davis for her moral courage and intellectual freedom representing all peoples of the earth."

TOKYO — Hiroko Sato, wife of the Japanese prime minister, has told a magazine she confemplated hanging herself after giving her husband a worldwide reputation as a wife-beater three years ago. "In the early days of our marriage he often beat me, for I am very childish in my thinking," she told the weekly magazine Shukan Sankei — repeating her famous remarks of December, 1968, to another magazine. Recalling that earlier interview, the 64-year-old prime minister's wife said: "He became famous worldwide as a wife beater. As I had put my husband to great shame at that time I really thought about hanging myself."

NEW ORLEANS, La. — Two Italian seamen, describing six days on a raft without food and water after their ship sank, said Sunday they had just about given up hope when they were finally saved.

The two, rescued Saturday from a raft in the Gulf of Mexico, were the only known survivors of the tanker San Nicolas, which went down a week ago. They were picked up Saturday by a passing ship and flown to hospital here Sunday for examination and treatment.

MADRID — A Basque who doused himself with gasoline and set fire to himself in front of General Franco has been sentenced to seven years in jail. Jose Felix Elosequi Odriozola, 56, was found guilty of illegal propaganda, arson, and causing injury to two police officers who were burned when they detained him.

VITORIA, Brazil — Helido Rocha, a former policeman accused of belonging to the notorious Death Squad, was convicted of nine homicides and sentenced to 198 years in prison in a marathon trial. Two other officers await trial. Vitoria is one of the cities in Brazil where the Death Squad, a vigilante group of off-duty policemen who eliminate petty criminals, has been active. More than 1,500 person in Rio de Janeior, Sao Paulo, Salvador and Vitoria are estimated to have died at the hands of the Death Squad in the last decade.

SAN FRANCISCO — Johnnie Walters, the top man in the U.S. Internal Revenue Service, says his return was audited last year "and I had to pay a small deficiency assessment."

But the top U.S. tax collector isn't nervous about it, saying: "No taxpayer should really object to being audited. After it's done, you know that what you've done is right and correct."

BALTIMORE — Charles Edward Giles, a 31-year-old blacksmith, has won a divorce from his 88-year-old wife Victoria in Baltimore Circuit Court. In his testimony, Giles said his wife got up "on a Thursday morning and said this was finished."

"What is finished?" Giles said he asked her.

"She didn't make no answer."

Giles testified a truck backed up to their home one Saturday night and the wife loaded "everything that belonged to her and moved it out."

Godfather—Riches and Fame

NEW YORK (AP) — Now the book The Godfather is a movie. And a game and a book about the making of the movie.

The best-selling novel about a Mafia family now has come full circle with the "confessions" of author Mario Puzo in the forthcoming The Godfather Papers.

In the beginning, there was the novel. Puzo says he wrote it to make money; "I was 45 years old and tired of being an artist. Besides, I owed $20,000. . . ."

It made money. Puzo got $410,000 for the paperback rights alone. The book has earned more than $1 million to date.

COST WAS HIGH

In the foreword to The Godfather Papers, he writes: "The Godfather is my least favorite novel, but I hate it when it's knocked simply because it was a best seller. And it's not a lucky best seller but the product of a writer who practised his craft for nearly 30 years and finally got good at it."

Shooting of the movie—after nearly a year of preparation—began March 23 a year ago, breeding difficulties from concept to cast. At completion, it cost about $6 million—well above the originally intended $1 million to $2 million.

Puzo went to Hollywood to write the screenplay. Francis Ford Coppola was chosen to direct—and helped write the screenplay. Coppola is listed as co-scenarist.

Then the Italian-American Civil Rights League protested and producer Al Ruddy announced that all references to the Mafia and Cosa Nostra would be eliminated from the screen version of the novel about a Mafia or Cosa Nostra family. The league pledged its co-operation in the making of the film.

ROLES SOUGHT AFTER

Puzo says the incident showed Ruddy was a "shrewd bargainer because the word 'Mafia' was never in the script in the first place."

Roles in the film were perhaps the most sought after since Gone with the Wind.

The title lead went to Marlon Brando.

Singer Vic Damone, cast as singer Johnny Fontane, quit before he started because, he said, the picture was "not in the best interests of the Italian-Americans." Al Martino took over the role.

Now, there's a paperback of the movie script and reports say another behind-the-scenes book about the making of the movie is about to be published.

And the Godfather game? It's a game of chance for adults; the winner is the one who takes control of the most parts of New York City. It comes in a violinshaped box.

Fiji 'Tinpots' Rapped

Leader of Fiji's parliamentary opposition Siddiq Koya called for a complete overhaul of the department following its refusal to let Zenti, of Port Alberni, into Fiji. Zenti is a director of Fiji wood products companies, Union Woods of Fiji and Union Industries of Fiji.

Immigration officials refused to let him back into the country when he returned from a New Zealand trip.

Koya described the situation as "scandalous" and spoke of "tinpot" members of the department who had become "kings."

Crash Claims 12

KHANSI (Reuter) — Twelve persons were killed and 25 were injured Sunday when a bus carrying a wedding party crashed 30 miles from this central Indian town.

Most Expect Wallace To Take Florida Vote

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Senators Hubert Humphrey and Edmund Muskie, criss-crossing Florida in the last full day of campaigning, say they still have a chance of defeating Alabama Gov. George Wallace Tuesday in the second 1972 presidential primary.

Wallace, however, predicts he'll top the 11-man Democratic field and says he has an excellent chance of capturing a majority of the state's 81 delegates to the Democratic national convention.

Senator Henry Jackson of Washington, who is making Florida a major test of his presidential candidacy, says he has a good chance of pulling ahead of Muskie and Humphrey and finishing second.

And New York Mayor John Lindsay, appearing on a television interview show predicted Wallace "may not get as big a vote as everybody seems to think . . ."

WALLACE FAVORED

All of the candidates had busy schedules today as they campaigned in the complicated contest in which victories will be judged both on the relative standing of the contenders in the statewide vote and on how many delegates each wins by finishing first in one of Florida's 12 congressional districts.

Wallace remains the heavy favorite. Most observers consider Humphrey and Muskie competing for second, although Jackson says his polls put him neck-and-neck with them. Lindsay and McGovern are believed contending for fifth, though some Lindsay aides see him finishing higher. Also on the ballot: Representative Shirley Chisholm of New York, Representative Wilbur Mills of Arkansas, Mayor Sam Yorty of Los Angeles, Senator Vance Hartke of Indiana and former Senator Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota.

In the Republican primary, conservative Representative John Ashbrook of Ohio campaigns in the Miami area in what most observers consider a doomed bid to defeat President Nixon for the state's 40 Republican convention delegates.

Resort-Plan Opponents Outnumber Supporters

CALGARY (CP) — Hearings into the controversial $30 million development plan for a resort centre at Lake Louise in Banff National Park ended Saturday with opponents outnumbering supporters by about two-to-one.

Originally scheduled as a two-day event Thursday and Friday, the hearing was expanded to include two evening sessions and another Saturday to accommodate the overwhelming response.

About 450 briefs were presented on the proposal by Village Lake Louise Ltd. to provide facilities for about 10,000 persons in an upper village catering mainly to skiers and another centre on the valley floor with additional motel and hotel accommodation, resort facilities and stores.

The hearing itself was criticized by Calgary Mayor Rod Sykes, and the Committee for an Independent Canada said the question was of national importance and hearings should have been held in centres across the country because it involved national parks.

J. H. Gordon, senior assistant deputy minister of the Indian affairs and northern development department, chairman of the hearing, told the audience there was no guaranteed agreement between the federal government and the developers on the project and that the opinions voiced at the sessions would have an effect on the government's final decision.

But Mayor Sykes, in a telegram to Prime Minister Trudeau, said the hearing was being conducted by a "jury of civil servants, sitting in judgment on their own policy."

Mr. Gordon's report will be submitted, together with the submitted briefs, to his minister, Jean Chretien. It is expected to be several weeks before the material is studied and a decision made.

Share Deal Made

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta Health Care Insurance Commission has agreed to share in the salary costs of doctors involved in the recently-opened methadone treatment clinic, it was announced.

In making the announcement, Dr. L. H. Le Riche, clinic director, said the clinic has delayed dispensing methadone to heroin addicts because it wanted to do so under strict controls.

Ottawa Attacked

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta's new Progressive Conservative government has served notice that it isn't interested in any new federal cost-sharing programs and "will resist the federal presence seeping into every move we make."

"We want a clear-cut division of powers and the taxing rights to do the job," Don Getty, minister of intergovernmental affairs, said in a harsh legislature attack on "Ottawa's desire to get involved in every social and economic area."

Air Link Set

WINNIPEG (CP) — Transair Ltd. of Winnipeg has announced that agreement has been reached with Norcanair Ltd. of Prince Albert, Sask. to assist in the operation of a North-south commuter air service between Regina, Saskatoon and Prince Albert.

Transair said in a news release that Norcanair will operate a scheduled air service between the three cities on a five-day week basis with a minimum frequency of two times daily.

Join-Up Favored

WINNIPEG (CP) — Education Minister Ben Hanuschak said he personally favors a system in which private and separate schools in Manitoba joined the public school system, protected by certain cultural and religious guarantees and eligible for public funds.

Hanuschak told a graduating class of St. Paul's College students that the public school system should be redefined to "be broad enough to have room within it for a variety of types of programs to meet a variety of types of needs."

Ex-Mayor Appeals

EDMONTON (CP) — Former mayor William Hawrelak is appealing an Alberta Supreme Court ruling ordering him to pay the city $72,197.

The notice of appeal said Hawrelak will move for a reversal of Mr. Justice W. J. C. Kirby's decision Jan. 18. Hawrelak was president of Sun-Alta Builders Ltd. which became involved in a land deal with Chrysler Corp. in 1963. Mr. Justice Kirby said Hawrelak violated the rule governing persons in positions of trust.

Judge Talks Tough

EDMONTON (CP) — People convicted of breaking and entering will soon be going to jail for their first offence, provincial judge George Forbes said.

Commenting before sentencing a 16-year-old boy charged with breaking, entering and theft to nine months in jail, Judge Forbes said the problems of break-ins has become so serious "it's getting so no one's home is safe in this city anymore."

'Obstinacy' Hit

SASKATOON (CP) — Howard Pawley, minister responsible for Manitoba's autopac scheme, took issue with "those people who still refuse to accept the evidence" of the virtues of public automobile insurance.

Making passing reference to the news media and private insurance agents, Pawley told a Saskatchewan government insurance office agents convention the pockets of obstinacy reminded him of the "flat earth society's refusal to accept that the earth is round, after viewing space shots."

Mazda's exciting new RX-2 powered by the revolutionary rotary engine.* The car that Road Test Magazine called "... not only the import car of the Year, but probably of the Decade."

But we've got a problem. Canada's quota for the whole of 1972 will probably be no more than 5,000 award-winning Mazda RX-2's. It's not enough to go round. And nothing is more frustrating than getting that great new car feeling then finding you can't get the car you want.

So we've started a waiting list. The first five thousand people to send in this coupon will get first chance to check out and test drive the new Mazda RX-2. Once you've tasted the rotary experience you won't settle for anything less.

So fill out the coupon today. While you're waiting we'll send you a brochure describing the Mazda RX-2, its amazing rotary power plant, and all the features that led Road Test Magazine to write:

"In all the world there's no car like the RX-2 for the sports car enthusiast with obligations. The coupe fits a family with three sprouting children and the sedan will carry five people of almost any size in day-long comfort."

Mazda's rotary-powered RX-2. Sedan or Sports Coupe. They're worth waiting for. And too good to miss.

A Queen Beats a King —Sort of a Love Story

It's surely just a matter of time now before the Canadian literary world will finally get around to fully recognizing the genius of Shirley Faessler, of Toronto, our finest writer of short stories. Shirley, herself, couldn't care less. "So who needs it?" she might say.

If Shirley aspires to any acclaim, I suspect, it would more likely be the recognition that she is the world's best player of the game known as Indian Poker. It is the tribute that I, the world's second best player of Indian Poker, intend to give her today. I'd give her roses, but I can't afford it.

Shirley's latest piece in The Atlantic is called "Can I Count You In?" a story that concerns the classic compulsion of the card player. It's nothing short of perfection. You couldn't add or subtract a word without bruising it.

Like Bernard Malamud, her idol, Shirley's writing seems so effortless, so direct, so simple, that, when you've come to its end, you sit there stupefied, wondering what in the world made you laugh and cry. It is the ultimate magic of writing, and it ain't easy.

She is a tiny little woman, a Jewish elf. She is either 110 years of age or maybe 42. It doesn't matter. She's beautiful. Guys fall hopelessly in love. She came late to writing after years of running a fabled theatrical boarding house, the motheriode for many of her stories. She has the heart of a lion, the tongue of a stevedore, the wit of a Rabelais. She is wise, intelligent, sentimental. "They threw away the mold when they made her," another writer once said. He was killed dead on the spot for the cliche, but it was true.

Only a woman with this incredible combination of gifts could possibly be the world's greatest player of Indian Poker. I should have realized it before I taught her the game, thus salvaging my ego and my bank balance. As it turned out, I lost both.

With mutual friends we'd played together in penny-ante games of seven-toed stud and so I knew that she was that rarest of creatures, the consummate female poker player. Then I fell off a train. My left leg was encased in cement all the way to the hip and I was consigned to my bed. Shirley was among the friends who dropped by occasionally to cheer me up. It was on one of these visits that I taught her Indian Poker.

The game is a sort of raw, even brutal distillation of the poker you know. As in orthodox poker the skill involved is in knowing when to stay, when to depart. As in orthodox poker the bluff is the weapon that, whatever the cards, makes a winner a consistent winner and a loser a consistent loser. It is poker so reduced to savage, naked confrontation that players must check their knives at the door. Yet it is a game that calls for all the subtle, intuitive, cerebral cunning that makes poker what it is.

I am the dealer. We alternate the deal with each hand. I deal just two cards, face down. One to you. One to me. We pick up our cards — without looking at them! — and we each hold our card up to our forehead, facing outward, the gesture that gave the game its name. Now, then. I see your card but I cannot see my own. You see my card, but not your own. High card wins. Since I dealt it is your first bet. The game has begun. May the better man emerge victorious.

Shirley's eyes hooded ever so slightly as I explained the rules. It may have taken her all of 30 seconds to grasp the ramifications of it.

"Sick," she said thoughtfully. "Beautiful, but sick."

"Make it a nickle limit," I shrugged, wondering if I ought to confess that I was the world's best Indian Poker Player, thinking of all the logging camps and military barracks where I had fleeced the patsies.

"A game worth playing is a game worth playing seriously," said Shirley. Her eyes were Little Orphan Annie's eyes. "We'll make it a quarter limit."

I dealt. Shirley held up a ten of spades. She bet a quarter. I raised a quarter, testing. She bumped back. I called. I had a nine. Delicately, sweetly smiling, she drew the dollar and a half to her side of the bed. She patted my cast. "You'll never be lonely again, Schnook," she said.

★ ★ ★

I think back now with a kind of child-like wonder upon that long Toronto winter when the shards of my leg fused together and the shards of my bank balance flew apart. I think of those countless times when I held aces or face cards and, looking deep into Shirley's honest eyes, read the unmistakable message that I held a four or possibly a five. I think of the times when, with manic bravado, I bulled the pot with raise after raise, only to find that I'd been betting with a three of diamonds at my forehead. I think of this tiny woman's range of histrionics, the small, revealing smile playing about the lips, the expression of uncertainty or confidence that could be either genuine or thespian, but never the same twice in a row.

Our last game was at a farm north of Coburg on Rice Lake — "Nice Lake," as Shirley chose to call it — where we spent Christmas with many friends. The whole festive tribal dance went on around us, but Shirley and I sat in a corner that weekend holding playing cards to our forehead, oblivious to what went on about us, locked in mortal combat.

It was all over by noon of Christmas Day. I raised myself on my crutches and announced to the assembly: "Shirley Faessler, ladies and gentlemen, is the greatest Indian Poker Player of all time. I make this statement freely before I go upstairs to open my wrists."

They knew I wouldn't, of course. Who'd be crazy enough to leave when there's another Shirley Faessler story to be read?

The PUBLIC Says 'No'

The BOARD Says 'Cuts Will Be Made Where They'll Hurt Least'

The OPPONENTS Say 'Quality of Education Is Never Equated With Money Itself'

Victoria Times

MONDAY, MARCH 13, 1972 19

SECOND SECTION

By BRIAN BUTTERS
Times Staff

Greater Victoria voters overwhelmingly rejected Saturday the school board's appeal for $412,000 in operating funds above the provincial limit.

Only 31 per cent of those who voted supported the extra spending, well below the 60 per cent needed to approve the bylaw.

School board chairman Allan McKinnon said today the $412,000 will be cut out of the 1972 budget within the next week and that the cuts will be made "with almost no exceptions" according to the formula agreed upon by trustees when the referendum was advertised.

Failure of the referendum leaves the school board with $22,218,131 for 1972 operating costs. This represents an increase of 5.61 per cent over 1971 spending.

Voter turnout Saturday was poor, with only 22 per cent of eligible owner-electors casting ballots. Greatest opposition to the extra spending came from the western part of Saanich and from Victoria where support for the referendum was only 26.2 and 27.9 per cent.

Esquimalt owner-electors voted 35.6 per cent in favor of the referendum, Oak Bay 34.6 per cent and the eastern part of Saanich 33.9 per cent.

In total, 8,816 persons voted against the proposed extra spending and 4,006 supported it.

McKinnon said he was not surprised with the result of the referendum but said he was surprised at the great amount of opposition. "I thought support would have been closer to 50 per cent," he said.

He said Greater Victoria parents need not worry about the effects of the decision. "We're not going to close any schools or have any classrooms with no teacher.

"The board gave great consideration to the areas where cuts would be made," he said. "They will be made in the areas where they will hurt the least."

McKinnon said the board will not be adamant in sticking with the cuts they proposed before the referendum, but that any changes will likely concern minor details.

F. E. Wright, the man who spearheaded opposition to the referendum, said today he is "absolutely delighted" by the referendum's defeat and said he is convinced the reduced budget will not seriously affect the educational quality of the school district. "I am sure the quality of education is never equated with money itself," he said.

Dr. George Stocker, spokesman for the School District 61 (Greater Victoria) Parents' Association, said the referendum's failure can be attributed to the public's disillusionment with elected officials.

He said this dissatisfaction extends from government in Ottawa through B.C. and on down to the school board level.

Plans are being made, he said, to keep the parents' group in operation as a liaison between the school board and the public. One of the group's biggest jobs is going to be to restore confidence in the school board, he said.

The school board meets tonight to discuss the referendum and the necessary budget cuts. A new budget will be submitted to the provincial government for approval, based on the amount of money the voters supported Saturday.

Going, Going, GONE?

Following is a list of the budget areas the Greater Victoria school board has proposed will be cut as a result of the defeat Saturday of the $412,000 referendum for 1972 operating expenses:

After Greenwood Win, Calls for the Old Way

Mrs. Lavinia Greenwood was elected Saturday to the Greater Victoria school board, defeating her nearest opponent, Ted Robbins, by more than 500 votes.

Today, Robbins and another unsuccessful candidate, Joe Richards, issued a call for a return to the old system of representation by municipality on the school board.

Mrs. Greenwood, 687 Mount Joy, becomes the fifth trustee on the nine-member school board from Oak Bay municipality. She polled 3,553 votes to 3,010 for Robbins and 2,769 for Richards.

Frank Preston got 2,613 votes and Karel de Roo 837.

Voter turnout was a poor 19.4 per cent in the Saturday byelection, necessitated by the resignation in January of Dr. Donald Shorting. Mrs. Greenwood's term on the board is until Dec. 31 of this year.

Robbins and Richards said the byelection results indicate voters want a return to the old system of trustee elections.

Richards said he was pleased with the support he got from the polling stations in the western half of the school district but said the locations of the polling stations left something to be desired.

Richards led the polls in three of the five polling stations — Esquimalt, Victoria and the western part of Saanich — but still finished third. He drew little support in Oak Bay and the eastern part of Saanich, where Mrs. Greenwood and Robbins made solid gains.

"The results of Saturday's election give a strong indication that the voters of Greater Victoria school district wish to return to representation by municipality compared to election at large," Richards said.

Robbins said the fact there is now five trustees on the board from Oak Bay "is not healthy."

"The school board should recognize this and do something about it," he said.

The board voted in its February meeting to retain the at-large system of trustee elections.

Mrs. Greenwood said she was surprised that she had been elected and was especially surprised with the amount of support she got in Oak Bay.

She said she plans to promote public participation in education as much as possible but said she has "a lot to learn" about board activities.

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

An angry army of Oak Bay residents will storm Oak Bay council's B committee meeting tonight to demand action on what they consider a hazardous flooding situation on Henderson.

They are the residents of the 70-odd homes in the area that have been badly flooded, some as many as five times, this winter.

They've already asked retribution from council for the losses of expensive rugs and furnishings in the lower rooms of their homes.

Tonight they will be demanding something more — confirmation that they won't be stricken with disease as an aftermath of the flooding.

Soaked rugs, lifting tiles and clammy chaos in the lower part of the house bear evidence of repeated soaking. So does an undefinable odor.

He has written Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, chief medical health officer for the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Health Board, asking the board to check out the situation.

His concern is that if the situation isn't remedied — and soon — the stage is set for an outbreak of typhoid, paratyphoid or hepatitis.

Whitbread said that he was considering asking his health inspector in Oak Bay to carry out an investigation.

"I have a little sympathy," he said, "but this year's storms are an act of God. People shouldn't be too upset if once in 10 or 15 years they get water in their basement."

New School Approved In Saanich

The doors will open in September, 1973, on the new McDonald Park senior secondary school in Saanich school district following approval by 61.8 per cent of the voters in Saturday's referendum for expenditure of $1.68 million on capital construction.

Saanich school board chairman Jack Armstrong expects work to begin this summer on the North Saanich school which will house grades 8 to 12.

Armstrong praised the efforts of referendum committee chairman, trustee Rubymay Parrott, and her hard-working co-worker, trustee Ann Foerster, who organized a busy eight-week session of public meetings to explain the referendum.

In former years, this school district has hired a public relations expert to "sell" a referendum but this time trustees and staff members were the salesmen.

Directed by Mrs. Parrott's commitee, each trustee was assigned a public relations job with information prepared by the district administrator's staff.

An army of 300 volunteers phoned every parent in the district just before voting day, every school student distributed pamphlets and Saanich Teachers Association volunteered public transportation on Saturday.

The first reports on the voting were negative with polling stations in Saanich and Central Saanich showing only 56.8 and 55.7 in favor of the bylaw.

Rubymay Parrott said the strain of waiting for results at the time was "like having a baby. But the gloomy picture brightened when North Saanich and Sidney pulled us out of the fire," she added.

North Saanich voted 66.8 in favor and Sidney, where school overcrowding is especially evident, voted 71.4 in favor.

Provision of the new high school on McDonald Park will allow the present North Saanich junior high to be converted to another elementary school serving students who at present bus out of Sidney each day.

Chest Report Action Near?

Action on a long-dormant report dealing with social service agencies in Greater Victoria was recommended Saturday by member agencies of the Community Chest, following a day-long seminar.

Delegates to the meeting agreed that as the provincial government does not appear to be acting on the report, prepared some 15 months ago, the chest itself should begin implementing some of its recommendations.

Commissioned by the Capital Regional Board in 1969 and published in December, 1970, the report dealt mainly with the feasibility of the board taking over social services in the region.

SOME OPPOSED

Among its recommendations were that the Community Chest, as much as possible, should stop providing funds for services which were also provided by the government; and that other agencies should be streamlined to avoid duplication of services.

Some agencies, notably the Family and Children's Service, opposed the recommendations, while Rehabilitation Minister Phil Gaglardi said flatly that administration of social services was not a function for regional districts.

The report has never been implemented.

However, Community Chest president Allan Cox said the 50 delegates to Saturday's seminar agreed that the chest has the "muscle" to persuade agencies to implement the recommendation, because it has control over the funds it allocates.

Cox said the chest will go through the Community Council report on an agency-by-agency basis, meeting with the appropriate officials to discuss the recommendations. But he stressed that the chest has no intention of going on a "witch hunt" against any of its member agencies.

Delegates also agreed the Community Chest funds should not be going to programs which are also provided by the government.

Elderly Man's Body Found in Harbor

An eight-week search for a partly blind, 83-year-old man ended at the weekend when city police identified a body found in the Inner Harbor as that of Stephen Campbell Bresenham, of 60 Bastion Square.

The badly-decomposed body was found Friday night near the east jetty of Victoria Flying Services Ltd. Police said death appeared to be by drowning.

Bresenham, a pensioner and diabetic, last spoke to relatives Jan. 4. One of them was to pick him up at his residence Jan. 9, but Bresenham was not there.

Best Blind Date

DEAR ABBY: I know a man who took his wife and recently widowed sister in law to a baseball game. No sooner had the three of them sat down in their reserved seats when in came a gentleman and his young son, and sat right beside them. The man who had brought the two ladies happened to know the late entry, so he introduced him to the women.

The gentleman, who happened to be a widower, had the seat right next to the widowed sister in law. The two of them hit it off very well. Six months later they were making wedding plans!

Not until then did the widow learn that her brother in law had bought ALL FIVE TICKETS, and seated her right next to his friend.

Wouldn't you say this was a lot better than trying to arrange a blind date? It Happened.

DEAR HAPPENED: Much! Had the brother in law asked his friend if he wanted to meet a nice widow, the friend would probably have said, "No thanks, I know enough widows."

And if he had asked his sister in law if she wanted to go out with a nice gentleman, she probably would have asked, "How tall is he?"

DEAR ABBY: As a man who takes pride in his cooking ability, I think you blew it in your answer to "NEW IN TOWN," the hostess who served a delicious dessert and didn't want to give out the recipe. (You said, "Share!")

To an accomplished cook, a special recipe is very much like a "secret formula" for a masterpiece. By giving it to cook because her formula may fall into the hands of someone who is totally lacking in the art of cookery.

Her answer should have been a decisive, "I never give out my recipes!" Jamil S.

DEAR JAMIL: I disagree. I say, give the recipe to whomever wants it, and if the recipient is "totally lacking in the art of cookery," he will cook his own goose — in schmaltz!

Closet works better than pantry.

Somewhere You Can Can

By PAULINE GRAVES

In the good old days when kitchens were spacious, and the family gathered around the stove as the heart of the house, there were separate pantries for the canned fruits and vegetables that mother used to "put up". Or perhaps she had shelves in the basement, which meant running up and down stairs for supplies.

Few of us can afford a separate pantry, and not many of us "can" any more, but we do need a large, convenient cupboard for canned goods and staples that we like to keep on hand.

Such a cupboard is shown here, but because of good planning, it is more than a cupboard, it is more like a condensed version of a complete pantry. Every inch counts.

"U" shape shelves, wider on the sides than in the back, put every can right at hand. Additional shelves, six inches deep, installed on each door, fit into the open space of the "U" when the doors are closed. Otherwise that center space would go to waste.

Reserve supplies fill the hard-to-reach upper shelves, and for unloading groceries, there is a wide counter mounted on drawer glides so that it can be pulled into the room.

Two lower shelves, also mounted on drawer glides, are spaced so that the upper shelf holds soft drink cans, and the bottom shelf, bottles. One-by-threes border the shelves and prevent the cans and bottles from tumbling out. These shelves share the space with ventilated vegetable containers and a slotted section for trays.

Family Togetherness At Manor Ceremony

At the formal dedication of Craigflower Manor last week, three descendants of the man who built the gracious old home were among the guests. His great-grandson, Alexander Barker Craft, who sat with other dignitaries on the dais, a great-great grandson, Dr. Thomas Mackenzie Craft, and a great-great-great grandson, 15-year-old Colin Mackenzie Craft.

They came from southern California for the ceremony and stayed on until yesterday so the senior Mr. Craft and his wife Catherine, also in the party, could renew friendships with long-time residents, including Mrs. Duncan McTavish and Fred McGregor.

The Crafts proudly claim relationship to Kenneth Mackenzie through his second daughter (and second eldest child) Jessie. She married Alexander Watson, pioneer treasurer of Vancouver Island and their daughter Mary was the senior Mr. Craft's mother.

Wore Tartan

On the day of the dedication he wore a Mackenzie tartan vest that once belonged to his great-grandfather and came to him through his mother, Mary Watson.

Mrs. Craft attended the ceremony in a dress and jacket ensemble of flame pink silk brocade. And that material too, has a place in the history of Craigflower Manor.

Anyone who has visited there in the past few years will remember seeing a ball gown in the same flame pink brocade that once belonged to Miss "Goodey" Mackenzie, youngest child of Kenneth.

It was a custom in the 1850s and 60s for prominent families in Victoria sometimes to send "back home" or to France for fine materials. Delivered here by sailing ship, the silks and satins were made into beautiful gowns for wives and daughters.

This must have been true in the case of the gown now preserved in Craigflower Manor. For some of the yardage was treasured down the years and finally reached the Crafts.

It was kept in tissue paper in that home until Catherine Craft decided to have it made into an ensemble for last week's historic dedication.

Hard to Believe

Touching the material today, seeing the brilliance of the color, it's hard to believe it must now be at least 100 years old.

During a brief visit with Alexander Craft at Craigflower Motel following the dedication I learned he was born, educated and grew up in California.

As a young man he entered the banking business in San Francisco and soon was sent to Victoria to join the Bank of British North America on lower Yates Street.

"I used to take the street car to the end of the Douglas line, and walk around the edge of Swan Lake to the Christmas Hill place to spend weekends and holidays," he told me.

Loved to Hunt

In those days Craft loved to hunt and he remembers on one occasion shooting a deer out at Goldstream, bringing it in on the train and dumping it behind the bank on Yates Street.

Then he went out to Christmas Hill, persuaded "Goodey" Mackenzie to hitch up the horse and waggon and drive back to town with him to pick up the animal.

Mr. Craft's memories of those days include buying sweepstake tickets, over the counter, in Salmon's Cigar Store on the north-west corner of Yates and Government.

Also of a theatre "somewhere near by" (it could have been the first Pantages which was at Government and Yates), where two shows were presented daily. The first was an unexpurgated version and the second well censored for feminine eyes and ears.

Clerks Attended

The bank clerks usually attended both — the first to see what should be censored and the second to see if it had been blacked out.

"If we were asked by anxious husbands and fathers to give our accessment of the show, we were well enough informed to do so," said Craft with a grin.

Eventually Craft was called home to the United States on draft after the Americans went into the First World War. When it was over he settled in Chicago where he met his wife, who is descended from English pioneers.

He went back for awhile with the Chicago Bank of Montreal, but finally moved to reconstructive finance with the government where he spent the last 25 years of his active business career.

The senior Crafts have visited Victoria on several occasions, last time about 10 years ago. This however is a "very special visit."

Not only because of the Craigflower Manor dedication which brought them much pleasure and excitement but also because they are celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary.

Into the bargain, it was Mr. Craft's 81 birthday last week.

'Retriement Isn't a Shock'

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP) — A group of Cornell University sociologists have debunked the old saying, "It's not age, it's retirement that kills you." The researchers found that most Americans, both men and women, adopt easily to retirement and don't find it a shock.

WENDY DEY - EDITOR

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — It will be four years on April 10 since Judy LaMarsh left the Parliament Hill stage and her often controversial role as a minister of the Crown.

Today, the 47-year-old former health and welfare minister and state secretary has settled into a comparatively prosaic career as a small-city lawyer—handling the usual variety of criminal and civil cases, lunching and talking shop with colleagues in a restaurant across from the court house and enjoying a seemingly uncharacteristic anonymity.

However, the outspoken public servant who had all Canadians aware of her Ottawa presence and opinions has not, as just another of the more than 100 practising lawyers in St. Catharines, taken her sharp eye off the world around her.

In a wide-ranging interview, she talked, among other things, about government, the law, crime and punishment, Quebec, youth and herself.

Miss LaMarsh, as is natural after her eight years in federal politics, maintains a special interest in the Ottawa scene—and she isn't sure how Prime Minister Trudeau, whom she was once heard to refer to as a "bastard," would fare if a federal election were called this spring.

"I have serious doubts about what would happen in an election," she said. "I think they (the Liberals) could easily be defeated. I think there's going to be a minority government."

Bury Economy

The economy is really a "bread and butter issue," she said, and if the government is able to bury that "they'll do far better."

But, she added, the final test of any election is leadership, and on that score she doesn't think the Progressive Conservatives or the New Democratic Party have made sufficient impact to win the race.

She said the Trudeau government's handling of the Quebec crisis with the imposition of the War Measures Act in October, 1970, was a disastrous mistake —a "sorry record" in terms of the number of arrests made and the long periods of incarceration suffered by many people.

Turning to the LeDain commission on report on the non-medical use of drugs, Miss LaMarsh said she takes the view that "it's probably true that more harm is being done to young people by the law than by marijuana."

But from her own observations, the "frequent use of pot is a crutch which deprives people of the ability to carry out any kind of project."

Miss LaMarsh believes there have been a lot of changes in the legal profession since she left her Niagara Falls practice in 1960 to enter politics. Nowadays, she lives in Niagara Falls but much of her law practice is conducted out of her office here.

"It's much more money-oriented. Most lawyers seem to be more concerned about how much money they're making than about the kind of service they're giving.

Thorn in Side

Another thorn in her side is the size of fees paid by the province of Ontario in legal aid, especially for divorces.

"Legal aid divorces have all kinds of schmozzles that other types don't have, partly because a lot of these people haven't kept any papers, any indication of where their spouse is. Many of them have had all sorts of liaisons."

She said the whole area of family law has many inequities, and one solution would be to bulk everything involved in marital breakdown into a new domestic relations court.

Less Demand

Outside the practice of law and her opinions about it, Miss LaMarsh still is in demand as a lecturer-and after-dinner speaker, although requests have dropped to about two a week from as many as 30 during the first two years after she left the federal cabinet.

As for the present and future, Miss LaMarsh said she would not be prepared to re-enter federal politics. Nor would she accept a judgeship, which it was rumored she was eager to do after leaving the cabinet.

A judge's life is "very lonely —you virtually drop your friends and everything else."

"In the legal profession, I can keep working at trying to pay off the debts I got in politics."

'Paranoid' Man Loses Custody Appeal Case

TORONTO (CP) — A German-born immigrant, who once appealed to Queen Elizabeth and the Pope for support in his fight to gain custody of his two young sons, has been turned down by the Ontario Court or Appeal.

Heinrich Cordes-Saathoff, also known as Henry Cosa, had asked the court recently to overturn a family court ruling that placed the boys, Robert, 2½ and Roy, 6, in the care of the Catholic Children's Aid Society for the last two years.

Best Interest

Mr. Justice F. G. MacKay, senior judge on the three-man panel, said in his ruling it would not be "in the best interest of the children to terminate the wardship at the present time."

The panel was told during a hearing that Mr. Cordes-Saathoff had appealed for help from everyone, including local politicians, the Queen and the Pope, and had attacked in widely-distributed leaflets anyone who did not support his cause.

The panel heard that Mr. Cosa nailed posters to walls and trees in his attempt to fight what he called "the Jewish society who run the world today in government, law, business, education, police force and religion."

He wrote threatening and insulting letters to Judge William Little of Family Court, involvied at one time with custody proceedings.

Dr. Andrew Malleson, psychiatrist at the Queen Street Mental Health Centre who at one time treated the mother, testified that Mr. Cordes-Saathoff would not be a first-class parent because he is a paranoid and much too unbending and authoritarian as a result of his orphanage upbringing in wartime Germany.

Mr. Justice J. W. Brooke wrote that on the basis of the evidence about Mr. Cordes-Saathoff's rigid personality, and a report from the CCAS that said Roy needs a strong, stable, supportive home, he could not terminate custody.

Society Acted

"Society acted to place these children in the hands of a third person, because of their mother's unfortunate condition, when it was important that this be done," Justice Brooke wrote.

Flora DeMarea Varela of Costa Rica married Mr. Cordes-Saathoff Sept. 30, 1968. She already had a son, now known as Roy. Early in 1970 when the family was living in Winnipeg after the birth of Robert in Dayton, Ohio, Mr. Cordes-Saathoff, then unemployed, disappeared, the hearing was told.

The family then moved to Toronto, and shortly after May, 1970, the CCAS entered the picture when it learned the boys were not being properly cared for and that the mother was in such a state that she needed psychiatric treatment.

Traced Wife

In March, 1971, Mr. Cordes-Saathoff returned from Europe, traced his wife to Toronto and tried to see the children, who by then had been placed in foster homes by the CCAS.

CCAS officials finally arranged for the two parents to visit the boys together for an hour, but when the time was up, both parents grabbed a boy and police had to be called to pry them apart, court was told.

Court also was told that the fosterparents who have had Robert since he was eight months old now want to adopt him, but not until all right of appeal by the parents has expired.

Theoretically, the parents can appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada, but only with leave from the court after it has studied all the details.

Richer Health Cereal Has Crushed Walnut Base

By MARY MOORE

"It stays with you all morning" was the claim of Beth's college chum. The health cereal below was what he was referring to and is our second effort on behalf of determined health addicts.

This variation makes a smaller batch than our Health Cereal given here February 15th and is richer for it calls for crushed walnuts and much less rolled oats.

As I mentioned before you can buy the fresh wheat germ and sesame seeds at the seed store but will have to go to the health store for the shelled sunflower seeds.

GRANUTOLA
(makes 9 cups)

1½ c. shelled sunflower seeds.
½ c. unsweetened chopped cocoanut.
1½ c. walnuts or pecans (crushed in blender or chopped very finely).
1½ c. rolled oats.
½ c. dark rye flour
½ tsp. salt.
½ to ¾ c. raisins.
½ to ¾ c. chopped dates or dried apricots.

Into a large-sized baking dish or small roasting pan measure the seeds and nuts, wheat germ, oats, rye flour, salt and fruits and mix dry. Add boiling water to honey and stir until blended (OR if honey is solid stir until honey dissolves). Stir into dry mixture along with the safflower oil, mixing well. Bake at 200 deg. Fahr. stirring every 15 minutes for 2 to 2½ hours. BUT take note: At this low temperature the heat in some ovens is not steady. One of my friends baked this for 4 hours. I baked it for 2½ hours and if it had been baked longer it would have been overdone because of its high honey content. So watch it and taste it as it bakes and be sure to remove it from the oven when it is golden.

Cool and store in double plastic bags. Serve as you would a packaged cereal but with milk only, for its is self-sweetened.

Free for the Asking

By HARRIET HART

Honey comes in many colours and flavours. Normally, the lighter the honey the milder its taste. Honey keeps well, when stored at room temperature in a dry place. In a freezer it can be stored almost indefinitely.

Since honey makes baked foods stay fresh longer, many homemakers like to use it instead of sugar. If you want to replace one cup of sugar by one cup of honey, remember also to reduce the liquid by one quarter. In most recipes it is best to replace only half the sugar by honey.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Singer Pearl Bailey, 53, has been discharged from hospital where she underwent coronary care during her stay of nearly a week, hospital officials announced during the weekend.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Forecast for Tues., March 14, 1972

By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You get what you need by being a self-starter. Those around you now tend to procrastinate. Adhere to your own style and pace. Be positive without attempting to impose your will. Subtle approach brings results.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Emotions fly high — you know what you want and strive to get coordinated. Key now is to relieve yourself of tensions. Until you do, you will be at standstill. When you do, there is progress — and happiness.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You may be victim of another individual's fantasy. Means one who should know better is seeing through misty eyes. Key is to be yourself. If person in question really cares, focus will be clarified.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Strive for factual information. Be aware of subtle nuances. Get to heart of matter. Emphasize what is solid. Reject notions which are based on wishful thinking. Aquarius plays important role.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Be wary where investments are concerned. There is difference between gamble and calculated risk. Changes for better are due. You are provided with valuable hint. Utilize rather than waste it. You will understand.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Accent is on closing transactions. Be positive about legal ground. Family counsel can be valuable — if you listen. Be diplomatic and receptive. One who cares is trying to aid. You will know.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You are drawn in many directions simultaneously. Confusion could reign. Key now is to perceive, analyze and correct. Pisces person is very much in picture. Be moderate; avoid excesses. Situation will be clarified.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Refuse to risk something of value for nothing in return. Obtain hint from Libra message. Avoid basing actions on impulse. Know where you want to go — and why. Reject superficial explanations. Be on guard.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Be sure of facts. You get called on assertions, statements or claims. Take long-range view. Don't be in too much of a hurry. Conservative course now works in your behalf. Act accordingly.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Information given you in secret may not be accurate. Double-check. Obtain hint from Sagittarius message. Do some personal investigating. Puzzle pieces can be put in place. Be persistent.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Share knowledge. Learn by teaching. Follow through on hunch. Budget needs reinforcing. Not wise now to lend or spend excessively. Element of deception is present. Be aware, alert. Check quality, price.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Social activity is spotlighted. Accept invitations. Leave details to others. See picture as a whole. One who talks much may actually have little to say. Know this and respond accordingly.

Multi-Use Nitinat Urged

duncan cowichan

By DONNA CLEMENTS
Times Staff

DUNCAN — Past Cowichan Valley regional board chairman and school board chairman Bruce Devitt feels that the Nitinat Triangle should be set up as a fully integrated resource use area and should not be put into a single-use national park.

Devitt says it would be a mistake if this is done. "I feel we are missing a bet by not making this area a buffer zone, if you like, between total park use and forest-use by making it a faully integrated resource use area for the purpose of developing and integrating policies and management guidelines for the purpose of demonstration," he said.

Devitt has sent letters to Indian Affairs and Northern Development Minister Jean Chretien, Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston and Recreation and Conservation Minister Ken Kiernan urging them to consider his suggestion.

Copies have also gone to all regional districts in the province and Cowichan Valley mayors to solicit their support.

PROBLEM 'HIDDEN'

In his letter, Devitt, who is forester in charge of the B.C. nurseries in Victoria, living in Glenora, three miles south of Duncan, said: "The current storm over this area while perhaps necessary in our democratic way of doing things has tended to hide an ever greater problem facing the people of British Columbia. That is the development on a non-emotional basis of a responsible integrated land and resource use plan."

Although in the past five or six years there have developed several agencies, such as the federal government's ARDA and Canada Land Invenotry program, the provincial government's land-use committee for non-urban land and regional districts concept for urban areas, Devitt feels "we are still in the . . . muddling-through stage."

He noted that there is much improvement needed in such areas as public education and acceptance, free flow of information between agencies, testing of theories and finding practical solutions and adequate inventory information.

While there does remain a lot to be done, Devitt feels there is also a large amount of information already available that should be collected.

"It is extremely difficult to convince the public at large of the merits of planning," Devitt said in his letters to the ministers. "I speak from experience inasmuch as I have just finished a term as chairman of the Cowichan Valley regional district where we've had considerable difficulty in selling the need for putting a regional plan together."

Devitt suggests that the Nitinat area be used as a demonstration area where research could be done that would have value for other forest land and also as an education tool for putting across a sound land-use plan with a completely integrated resource-use concept.

"The overlay system used by Canada Land Inventory would be a definite asset for demonstration and selling (a display located in the Provincial Museum for example would be of great benefit), Devitt said.

Devitt feels the study should encompass areas such as those set aside for fish and wildlife, reserved for ecological studies, recreation and timber management.

MEETINGS HELD

Devitt noted that towards the end of last year the Cowichan Valley regional district board held several meetings with industry and conservationists to discuss the Nitinat triangle. Directors also dicussed the matter with other regional districts.

"At that time there seemed to be the same general agreement for the principles put forward in the letter," he said.

In his letter to Kiernan, Chretien and Williston, Devitt pointed out that "such a plan I know would receive the support of the local regional districts and it could also be used as a means of putting the story across. To be successful it will require the cooperation of all levels of government as well as industry, recreationists and conservationists."

Salmon Derby Best Yet?

CAMPBELL RIVER — This summer's three-day Campbell River salmon festival will feature a salmon derby with an expected $25,000 first prize.

Festival committee director Rodger Meilke said Friday night more than 2,000 hopefuls cast lines in the 1971 contest and many more are expected this year.

Committee directors told a press reception here the festival will include the downtown parade, Indian canoe races, many rock festivals, continuous outdoor stage entertainment, arts and crafts displays and a kiddies' carnival.

Fired for Long Hair, Youth Pressures UIC

CAMPBELL RIVER — A long-haired young man went to Victoria this week to do battle with the Unemployment Insurance Commission and returned here with a partial victory.

Steve Brewer, 22, has been trying for more than half a year to recover unemployment benefits denied him because he refused to cut his shoulder-length sandy hair to keep a job as a forest firefighter last summer.

Brewer said his case for $210 in benefits now goes to the UIC appeal umpire in Ottawa for a final decision.

Brewer said he won the right to further appeal after his second hearing before the UIC board of referees in Victoria Wednesday was accepted by one of the three board members.

Although board chairman Logan Mayhew and management representative E. W. Brinkworth voted to oppose the original decision to hold back the money, the one dissenting opinion by labor representative Harry Anderson allows Brewer to take his case to the umpire.

UNEXPECTED VICTORY

"I got what I was after," said Brewer, "now a reporter for the Campbell River Upper-Islander. "I never expected to win in Victoria."

Two weeks after Brewer started working last summer for Surrey-based International Forest Fire Systems Ltd. in Campbell River, he and several other new workers were told not to come to work the next day without first cutting their hair.

Brewer and three others showed up the following day with their long locks intact and were promptly fired.

UIC accepted Brewer's subsequent claim for benefits but disqualified him from three weeks of payment at $70 a week, because the commission ruled he had lost his job through his own misconduct.

After losing his first appeal, Brewer wrote to Comox-Alberni MP Tom Barnett, who in turn wrote Labor Minster Bryce Mackasey. The minister ordered Wednesday's rehearing.

Brewer said Barnett has indicated he will represent him before the UIC umpire in Ottawa.

"I would hope," Brewer said, "that the umpire would look at the matter in the same light as the labor representative did — that I was denied my rights under the Canadian Bill of Rights because I was discriminated against because of my long hair."

FREE HANDYMEN FOR THE AGED

Senior citizens in limited financial circumstances will be able to get free labor for handyman jobs around the house through a non-profit federal local initiatives program.

Designed to employ 10 men, the project will be financed by a government grant that will cover the workmen's wages, as well as those of an executive and supervisor.

Electrical and plumbing repairs can't be undertaken but all other general repair work will be done, including exterior painting, providing it does not take too many man hours.

Applications for service can be made by writing Handyman Group for Help to Senior Citizens, Room 234, Spencer-house, 1951 Cook, or by phoning 383-7515.

The applicant will be contracted either by phone or a personal visit.

Art Dealers Launch Defence Fund

TORONTO (CP) — The Professional Art Dealers' Association of Canada has formed a defence fund as a result of charges laid against a Toronto gallery for a recent exhibition by Montreal artist Mark Prent.

The exhibition consists of epoxy and fibreglass depictions of sections of the human body.

An association official said the fund was established because of "the importance of the cultural issues being raised by this action."

Trustees Weigh Voter Turndown

CAMPBELL RIVER — School trustees here will meet Tuesday to assess Saturday's defeat of a $254,610 referendum with an eye to possible cutbacks in fall hiring of teachers, teachers' aides, the resource centre and kindergarten.

Transportation cuts are also a possibility.

The referendum was made necessary by a provincial government edict limiting school operating budgets to a 108 per cent financing formula.

Only 44.35 per cent voted yes to the spending, well short of the 60 per cent needed for the referendum to pass. Of the 1,961 persons who went to the 11 polling centres in the school district, 1,084 voted no, 864 yes and 13 ballots were rejected.

It was the first time in many years Campbell River and district voters have turned down an appeal for extra school funds.

The vote needed 1,169 yes votes to pass, falling short by 305.

Four of the polls in the elementary schools favored a yes vote by slim majorities but the more heavily populated areas of Campbell River and Willow Point were decisive in voting against the measure.

"We'll just have to cry in our beer and regroup," said school board secretary-treasurer Philip Sampson.

Trustee Mrs. Janey Evans, who campaigned for the referendum said, "I guess it's back to the drawing board."

Teacher Talks End

REGINA (CP) — Teachers in the Regina area will go ahead with plans for "study sessions" beginning Tuesday following postponement of scheduled teacher-trustee contract negotiations meetings during the weekend.

"Because of the absence of any significant progress on the major sections of (salary) grid and allowances and because the trustees' interpretations of the salary-agreement act limits what is negotiable, the committee has decided to proceed with ... study session," a spokesman said.

Spring Flowers Making Debut

Victoria gardens are noted for offering floral bouquets every day of the year so it's nothing new to see pansies, violets, winter crocuses, witch-hazel, jasmine, heaths and heathers from November to March.

But as the days rush towards the vernal equinox, March 21, we are aware of the true flowers of spring making joyous debut.

This is the quite common plant with what unkind gardeners call "huge cabbage leaves." But these are handsome enough in a winter garden and hardy to snow and wind, succumbing only to a devastating freeze.

Flower stems are thick and strong, their three inch length making them useful for small dish arrangements indoors surrounded with masses of sweet smelling violets.

Among the vast array of Cushion Saxifrages (and close relatives of the foregoing Bergenia), can be seen tight clusters of buds soon to lengthen with slender stems and airy jewels of yellow and white.

These are closely followed by other species and varieties of Cushion Saxifrages, offering pink, rosy purple and carmine flowers as spring hurries on its mission of Life.

Pulmonaria is a true herald of the spring equinox, the hairy dark green, silver mottled leaves making their appearance around March 1. A week or so later, the observant gardener has found the cluster of buds like a clutch of tiny green eggs, nestling in the centre of each leafy rosette.

An old well-loved plant, this has had many local country names bestowed — Lords-and-Ladies, Soldiers-and-Sailors, Lungwort, Bethlehem-Sage and Blue Cowslip being a few.

A charming plant whichever name is used, Pulmonaria saccharata is closely related to Borage and shares the lovely blue of its dainty flowers with it and Anchusa, another relative. In bud and flower, a stem of Polmonaria will give you both pink and blue coloring. Against the dark, silver spotted leaves and wet soil of spring, you will know my label of "charming" is not mis-placed.

An infallible sign of the approaching season is when the Crown Imperial begins its growth.

This is the Oriental Fritillaria imperialis, the largest of the genus. Ten days ago — bare soil; now the rosettes of soft green leaves are beginning their upward growth, for this Fritillaria bears its leaves on the same stout stem as its inverted bells of orange or yellow.

By Easter these will be blooming in sheltered gardens of Victoria.

Other, after blooming species of Fritillarias are found from Siberia to California, and most will accommodate to our climate.

SOLUTION TUESDAY

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

In all competitive endeavors, including bridge, the top-echelon player has learned never to concede defeat no matter how bleak his prospects may appear to be. After all, situations do arise in which even gifted adversaries have blind spots, get careless, or revoke. And, further, what often appears to the naked eye to be an apparently hopeless position is revealed by further examination not to be a hopeless one. The latter situation is illustrated in today's deal.

North-South vulnerable. North deals.

♠ 7 6 3 2
♡ J 5

WEST
♡ K Q 10 8 2
◇ K J 9 4
♣ Q 9 5 2

EAST
♠ Q J 10 4
♡ 7 6 4
◇ Q 8 3 2

SOUTH
♠ A K 9 8 5
◇ 6
♣ 8 6 4 3

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 ♠	2 ♡
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♡.

Had North elected to open the bidding originally, his bid would not have been subject to any criticism. However, he elected to pass. When his partner opened with one spade, North made the correct bid of four spades. Had he jumped to only three spades (after passing), South had the perfect right to pass. And, with his actual hand, South would almost surely have passed, for it would have been impossible for South to have visualized that North held the hand he actually did hold.

West's opening lead of the heart king was captured by South's ace, after which the ace of trumps was laid down. When West discarded the deuce of hearts, East became revealed as the possessor of two sure trump tricks. And, further, it appeared that a heart and a club would also have to be lost. But when play had ended, South had made ten tricks — and, after the opening lead had been made, the opponents could not have done a thing about preventing South from fulfilling his contract.

At trick three, South led a low heart, West winning the trick with his queen. A diamond was returned by West, the trick being won by dummy's ace. A diamond was next ruffed in the closed hand, after which South's remaining heart was trumped. A third diamond lead was then ruffed by South.

A club was now led to the board's king, and the ace of clubs was then cashed. South next trumped dummy's remaining diamond. And when declarer now cashed his king of spades, he had just made his tenth, and game-going trick.

With two tricks to go, the defenders had three theoretical winners: two in trumps and one in clubs. But with only two tricks to be played, all the law would allow them to make were two trump tricks.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

The boy nodded. "That's old. And the figures of his age add up to my age. What about that?"

Skaters Follow Script

Russians Win Dance Title

CALGARY (CP) — The script was followed closely, the Russians went home with most of the medals and the international figure-skating fraternity was left wondering what's going to happen next year.

The five-day 1972 world figure-skating championships ended Saturday night with a Russian couple winning the dance competition. Russians also were first and second in the pairs and second and third in men's singles. The only event in which they didn't score was the women's singles.

Ondrej Nepala of Czechoslovakia is the 1972 men's singles champion, Trixi Schuba of Austria is the women's winner, Aleksei Ulanov and Irina Rodnina won the pairs and Ludmila Pakhomova and Aleksandr Gorschkov won the dance—all of them defending champions.

Second place in the men's competition went to Sergei Chetveruckhin of Russia while Karen Magnussen of Canada was second in women's, Ludmila Smirnova and Andrei Suraikin of Russia were runners-up in pairs and Angelika and Erich Buck of West Germany were second in the dance.

The bronze medal in the dance went to Judy Schwomeyer and Jim Sladky of the U.S., who promptly announced their retirement from competition.

The only Canadian couple to compete in the dance finals, Louise and Barry Soper of West Vancouver, placed ninth in the field of 16.

Ulanov married Miss Smirnova shortly after the 1972 Winter Olympics at Sapporo, Japan, and there have been rumors he wants to skate with his wife instead of Miss Rodnina.

Such a split would deprive the team of a chance to become the first couple ever to win five championships. Five pairs have won four tournaments before this year's world championships.

The main problem, however, involves the International Skating union's rulebook. Rule 403 states that anyone who finishes in the top five in the world automatically gets to the next world championships. If Ulanov splits with Miss Rodnina he will be breaking up Russia's two top pairs and they theoretically would not be eligible next year.

The other major change coming up this season is caused by Miss Schuba's retirement after winning three world crowns. Until now, skating had been judged 50-50 on compulsory figures and free-skating but it will switch to a 60-40 emphasis on free-skating.

Both Miss Magnussen and Miss Lynn have indicated they will compete next year, dominating international meets. Who steps into third place?

A close battle is expected between ZsuZsa Almassy of Hungary, Sonja Morgenstern of East Germany, Jean Scott of Great Britain and Dorothy Hamill of the U.S., one of the most promising youngsters in recent years. They were fourth to seventh in the 1972 championships.

Although Nepela has indicated "I'm very tired" and would like to quit, it's felt that he will compete in 1973 because the world meet is in Bratislava, his home town.

The 1973 Canadian championships are in Vancouver in January, followed by the North American meet in Rochester, N.Y. in February and the world's in Czechoslovakia Feb. 27-March 4.

Pipers Tie Evergreens

Evergreens and Sandpipers battled to a 2-2 draw at Lansdowne Junior High School on Sunday to complete the Division II regular-season schedule of the Vancouver Island Women's Field Hockey Association.

Rebels won by default over Esquimalt in another scheduled Division II match.

University of British Columbia Thunderettes, top team in the Vancouver area, fell twice in exhibition matches at Beacon Hill Park Sunday, bowing 4-2 to Sandpipers and 1-0 to Mariners.

Penny Scott-Moncrief fired two goals for Sandpipers while singles were chipped in by Di Whittingham and Gill Hawkins. Caroline Penn scored for Mariners.

Both Victoria squads were from Division I, which completed its schedule on Saturday.

Title Taken By Vikings

University of Victoria Vikings captured the Victoria Men's Volleyball League playoff title Sunday with a 15-10, 15-5 victory over CFB Esquimalt in the final of the six-team, modified round-robin tournament at CFB Esquimalt gymnasium.

Vikings placed first in the preliminary round-robin section with a 5-0 record. Victoria "Y" and CFB Esquimalt finished with 3-2 records, followed by Royal Roads (2-3), Victoria Juniors (1-4) and Mt. Douglas (1-4).

CFB Esquimalt advanced to the final because of a victory over Victoria "Y" in the preliminary section.

NEW HEARING AID MICROPHONE
Victoria — Recent advances in electronics have led to the development of a miniature, wide range, capacatince microphone. This makes it possible to offer an all-in-the-ear hearing aid, featuring extended sound spectra, with reproduction previously unattainable in miniature heaning aids.

If you think you can't have luxury broadloom until the kids are older, think again! Wool-soft Servicetwist II is kidproof. Saves you $120 on 3-room coverage too.*

Wait no longer for your beautiful broadloom. You can get it today in Servicetwist II, the luxury carpet we designed with your kids in mind. We put 20% nylon in the nylon-Acrilan blend to give rugged durability and make Servicetwist II a natural for hard-wear areas such as stairs, hallways and kitchen. We heat set the handsome texture to make sure it stays in and gives years of additional wear. Double jute backing adds strength so rough 'n tumble won't show. It's mothproof, non-allergenic. And spills and stains just wipe up, little accidents are nothing to worry about.

Yet, tough as it is, we also made Servicetwist II lovely enough to enhance living and dining room. The 20% nylon is blended with 80% Acrilan for that toe-tempting showpiece richness you demand. 6 fashion colours let you choose the perfect background for entertaining. And at a saving of $3 sq. yd., it's the best friend your broadloom budget ever had.

The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want.

He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: He leadeth me beside the still waters.

He restoreth my soul: He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His name's sake.

Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil; for thou art with me: thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.

Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies: thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over.

Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever.

9 IN MEMORIAM

MORTON — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, William Morton, who passed away March 13, 1967.
Those whom we love go out of sight,
But never out of mind
They are cherished in the hearts
Of those they leave behind.
—Always remembered and sadly missed by his loving daughter Evelyn, son-in-law Allan, and Bob and Mari.

RANDALL — In loving memory of our mother and grandmother Jemima Randall, who passed away March 13, 1971. Also our father and grandfather David Randall who passed away February 23, 1970.
—Lovingly remembered and sadly missed by all the family.

There is a hole in our lives,
We just cannot fill.
We loved you so much
And we love you still.
God took a rose from this earth.
We just don't understand,
Why He chose to pick you
To hold in His hand.
It is a year since you left.
Your memory's held dear.
Your face and you're Still, oh, so clear.
Yes we think of you often
Our life and our love
We hope you are happy
In heaven up above.
—Love always, Walt, Gloria and Patty.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

New Interest in Acupuncture

A number of physicians in France and America are tremendously interested in the ancient Chinese method of acupuncture, which for 5,000 years has been used in Oriental medicine, and during the past 10 years, has been used as an anesthetic, or pain killer.

Recently, I saw on television some Chinese in Peking, sticking needles into people's tissues and vibrating them with their fingers. Then the doctor was able to perform an operation apparently without causing the patient any pain.

In a recent newspaper interview that great medical historian, Dr. Ilza Veith, of the University of California Medical School in San Francisco, who is the English translator of an ancient Chinese textbook on acupuncture, says that the technique is not a science. "It is more in the field of philosophy," she said. "It has nothing to do with the nervous system. But it works."

She says that some of the needles used are as fine as a human hair and that the penetration is very shallow — around five millimeters. This would explain why the punctures do not often cause serious illness or death.

Recently, Dr. E. Grey Dimond wrote an excellent article on "Acupuncture Anesthesia" in the Journal of the AMA. Dr. Dimond spent some time in China studying the medical practices there. He saw a number of operations performed on patients whose anesthesia seemed to be due to acupuncture. There may have been some effect from an electric current applied through the needles, although the chief of anesthesia at Canton, China, says the electricity is mainly a labor-saving method for avoiding having to twirl the needles by hand.

It may be that the patient was quieted by a bit of something like hypnosis. Many years ago a Scottish physician named Esdaile performed some 250 operations on patients in India. He hypnotized them so that they did not show any signs of feeling pain. Curiously, when Esdaile went back to Scotland and tried to operate on his countrymen under hypnosis, the strong willed and sceptical Scots did not succumb to the doctor's anesthetic efforts.

Interestingly, today, under the influence of Mao, the doctors of China are compelled to practice ancient Chinese herb medicines, plus some of the foreign scientific medicine which they learned at the splendid Peiping Hospital, built and staffed years ago by the Rockefeller Foundation.

Dr. Veith fears, as many doctors do, that there will be an outbreak of acupuncture quackery — especially in the treatment of cancer, which is the one disease the Chinese say they cannot cure by acupuncture.

A New York psychologist, Eileen Simpson, wrote in the Saturday Review that in spite of lack of scientific evidence in its favor, acupuncture is currently being practiced by some 2,000 doctors outside of the Orient. In France, acupuncture is being used to treat impotence in males and sexual frigidity in women.

HYDRO TO SHARE POLES

B.C. Hydro and B.C. Telephone have agreed to avoid duplication of poles throughout the province by sharing each other's poles where possible.

B.C. Tel has brought an interest in about 100,000 poles previously owned by Hydro but used to carry both telephone and electrical distribution. Hydro has bought similar interests.

In future the two utilities will plan so that no two separate lines are built where one could serve the needs of both electrical and telephone customers.

Both utilities will continue to co-ordinate their underground installations where possible.

Savings from joint use and ownership of poles is expected to help control rising operating costs.

Strike Vote Held

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver local of the Canadian Union of Public Employees decided Saturday to hold a strike vote this week. Talks between CUPE and the Municipal Labor Relations Bureau broke down last week. The union is demanding a 20-per-cent pay increase, and the MLRB has offered an increase of 9.5 per cent.

UBCM Condemns Bennett

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ernie Broome, president of the Union of British Columbia Municipalities, accused Premier Bennett of "supreme arrogance" and "damned officious interference" in municipal affairs.

Broome, a Vancouver alderman, criticized the premier following the introduction in the legislature Friday of an amendment to the Municipal Act which specifies that municipalities must use their $3 per capita grant for ambulances, tourism and industrial development and for no other purpose.

Broome said the UBCM was "completely opposed to Bennett putting any strings on the grant" and the amendment is "supreme arrogance on his (the premier's) part."

"It's unworkable, untenable and damned officious interference," Broome said.

All Re-Elected

VANCOUVER (CP) — Four officers of the Vancouver local of the International Woodworkers of America were re-elected by acclamation Saturday.

President Syd Thompson will serve his eighth term as head of the local. Financial secretary Doug Evans, recording secretary George Kowvel and warden Hector Perier were also acclaimed.

★ ★ ★

Protest Closure

VANCOUVER (CP) — The United Steelworkers of America said Saturday it will make efforts to prevent the closure of a power machinery plant in Richmond.

Vice-president Leon H. Bassett of the Skil Corp. announced that the Richmond plant would be closed in July — and its chainsaw manufacturing would be consolidated with its operations in Toronto and Chicago.

Angus McDonald of the steelworkers union said the union will ask the Canada Development Corp. step in and will also try for provincial government action to protect the 115 jobs provided by the plant.

★ ★ ★

Impaled on Stake

VANDERHOOF (CP) — A 20-year-old man was in satisfactory condition in hospital here after a freak accident at Takla Lake in northern British Columbia.

Police said the man, a surveyor on a Pacific Great Eastern Railway project, fell down a 50-foot embankment and was impaled on a six-foot surveyor's stake. He was not identified.

★ ★ ★

Man Charged

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police laid seven charges against a 28-year-old New Westminster welder Saturday following an incident at a rock concert at the Pacific National Exhibition grounds.

Ian Victor Neale was charged after the incident, in which five men attempted to assist a woman who was beaten and forced into a car on a PNE parking lot.

He is charged with attempted murder, criminal negligence, failure to remain at the scene of an accident, two counts of intent to wound, assault, and possession of an offensive weapon.

★ ★ ★

Brown Thrasher

WEST VANCOUVER (CP) — A brown thrasher, a species of bird not previously recorded in this area, has taken up residence at the home of a local resident.

The thrasher's identity has been confirmed by experts of the Vancouver Natural History Society, who said the bird has been recorded only once before in British Columbia — in the South Okanagan.

Medals Stolen

VANCOUVER (CP) — Officials at the Maritime Museum are considering offering a reward for the return of two medals and a small ivory carving stolen from a display case 10 days ago.

The medals were given to RCMP Supt. Henry A. Larsen, captain of the vessel St. Roch, the first ship to navigate the Northwest Passage in both directions. They were on loan to the museum by Larsen's widow.

A Queen Beats a King —Sort of a Love Story

It's surely just a matter of time now before the Canadian literary world will finally get around to fully recognizing the genius of Shirley Faessler, of Toronto, our finest writer of short stories. Shirley, herself, couldn't care less. "So who needs it?" she might say.

If Shirley aspires to any acclaim, I suspect, it would more likely be the recognition that she is the world's best player of the game known as Indian Poker. It is the tribute that I, the world's second best player of Indian Poker, intend to give her today. I'd give her roses, but I can't afford it.

Shirley's latest piece in The Atlantic is called "Can I Count You In?" a story that concerns the classic compulsion of the card player. It's nothing short of perfection. You couldn't add or subtract a word without bruising it.

Like Bernard Malamud, her idol, Shirley's writing seems so effortless, so direct, so simple, that, when you've come to its end, you sit there stupefied, wondering what in the world made you laugh and cry. It is the ultimate magic of writing, and it ain't easy.

She is a tiny little woman, a Jewish elf. She is either 110 years of age or maybe 42. It doesn't matter. She's beautiful. Guys fall hopelessly in love. She came late to writing after years of running a fabled theatrical boarding house, the motherlode for many of her stories. She has the heart of a lion, the tongue of a stevedore, the wit of a Rabelais. She is wise, intelligent, sentimental. "They threw away the mold when they made her," another writer once said. He was killed dead on the spot for the cliche, but it was true.

Only a woman with this incredible combination of gifts could possibly be the world's greatest player of Indian Poker. I should have realized it before I taught her the game, thus salvaging my ego and my bank balance. As it turned out, I lost both.

With mutual friends we'd played together in penny-ante games of seven-toed stud and so I knew that she was that rarest of creatures, the consummate female poker player. Then I fell off a train. My left leg was encased in cement all the way to the hip and I was consigned to my bed. Shirley was among the friends who dropped by occasionally to cheer me up. It was on one of these visits that I taught her Indian Poker.

The game is a sort of raw, even brutal distillation of the poker you know. As in orthodox poker the skill involved is in knowing when to stay, when to depart. As in orthodox poker the bluff is the weapon that, whatever the cards, makes a winner a consistent winner and a loser a consistent loser. It is poker so reduced to savage, naked confrontation that players must check their knives at the door. Yet it is a game that calls for all the subtle, intuitive, cerebral cunning that makes poker what it is.

I am the dealer. We alternate the deal with each hand. I deal just two cards, face down. One to you. One to me. We pick up our cards — without looking at them!— and we each hold our card up to our forehead, facing outward, the gesture that gave the game its name. Now, then. I see your card but I cannot see my own. You see my card, but not your own. High card wins. Since I dealt it is your first bet. The game has begun. May the better man emerge victorious.

Shirley's eyes hooded ever so slightly as I explained the rules. It may have taken her all of 30 seconds to grasp the ramifications of it.

"Sick," she said thoughtfully. "Beautiful, but sick."

"Make it a nickle limit." I shrugged, wondering if I ought to confess that I was the world's best Indian Poker Player, thinking of all the logging camps and military barracks where I had fleeced the patsies.

"A game worth playing is a game worth playing seriously," said Shirley. Her eyes were Little Orphan Annie's eyes. "We'll make it a quarter limit."

I dealt. Shirley held up a ten of spades. She bet a quarter. I raised a quarter, testing. She bumped back. I called. I had a nine. Delicately, sweetly smiling, she drew the dollar and a half to her side of the bed. She patted my cast. "You'll never be lonely again, Schnook," she said.

★ ★ ★

I think back now with a kind of child-like wonder upon that long Toronto winter when the shards of my leg fused together and the shards of my bank balance flew apart. I think of those countless times when I held aces or face cards and, looking deep into Shirley's honest eyes, read the unmistakable message that I held a four or possibly a five. I think of the times when, with manic bravado, I bulled the pot with raise after raise, only to find that I'd been betting with a three of diamonds at my forehead. I think of this tiny woman's range of histrionics, the small, revealing smile playing about the lips, the expression of uncertainty or confidence that could be either genuine or thespian, but never the same twice in a row.

Our last game was at a farm north of Coburg on Rice Lake — "Nice Lake," as Shirley chose to call it — where we spent Christmas with many friends. The whole festive tribal dance went on around us, but Shirley and I sat in a corner that weekend holding playing cards to our forehead, oblivious to what went on about us, locked in mortal combat.

It was all over by noon of Christmas Day. I raised myself on my crutches and announced to the assembly: "Shirley Faessler, ladies and gentlemen, is the greatest Indian Poker Player of all time. I make this statement freely before I go upstairs to open my wrists."

They knew I wouldn't, of course. Who'd be crazy enough to leave when there's another Shirley Faessler story to be read?

The PUBLIC Says 'No'

The BOARD Says 'Cuts Will Be Made Where They'll Hurt Least'

The OPPONENTS Say 'Quality of Education Is Never Equated With Money Itself'

Victoria Times
MONDAY, MARCH 13, 1972 19
SECOND SECTION

By BRIAN BUTTERS
Times Staff

Greater Victoria voters overwhelmingly rejected Saturday the school board's appeal for $412,000 in operating funds above the provincial limit.

Only 31 per cent of those who voted supported the extra spending, well below the 60 per cent needed to approve the bylaw.

School board chairman Allan McKinnon said today the $412,000 will be cut out of the 1972 budget within the next week and that the cuts will be made "with almost no exceptions" according to the formula agreed upon by trustees when the referendum was advertised.

Failure of the referendum leaves the school board with $22,218,131 for 1972 operating costs. This represents an increase of 5.61 per cent over 1971 spending.

Voter turnout Saturday was poor, with only 22 per cent of eligible owner-electors casting ballots. Greatest opposition to the extra spending came from the western part of Saanich and from Victoria where support for the referendum was only 26.2 and 27.9 per cent.

Esquimalt owner-electors voted 35.6 per cent in favor of the referendum, Oak Bay 34.6 per cent and the eastern part of Saanich 33.9 per cent.

In total, 8,816 persons voted against the proposed extra spending and 4,006 supported it.

McKinnon said he was not surprised with the result of the referendum but said he was surprised at the great amount of opposition. "I thought support would have been closer to 50 per cent," he said.

He said Greater Victoria parents need not worry about the effects of the decision. "We're not going to close any schools or have any classrooms with no teacher.

"The board gave great consideration to the areas where cuts would be made," he said. "They will be made in the areas where they will hurt the least."

McKinnon said the board will not be adamant in sticking with the cuts they proposed before the referendum, but that any changes will likely concern minor details.

F. E. Wright, the man who spearheaded opposition to the referendum, said today he is "absolutely delighted" by the referendum's defeat and said he is convinced the reduced budget will not seriously affect the educational quality of the school district. "I am sure the quality of education is never equated with money itself," he said.

Dr. George Stocker, spokesman for the School District 61 (Greater Victoria) Parents' Association, said the referendum's failure can be attributed to the public's disillusionment with elected officials.

He said this dissatisfaction extends from government in Ottawa through B.C. and on down to the school board level.

Plans are being made, he said, to keep the parents' group in operation as a liaison between the school board and the public. One of the group's biggest jobs is going to be to restore confidence in the school board, he said.

The school board meets tonight to discuss the referendum and the necessary budget cuts. A new budget will be submitted to the provincial government for approval, based on the amount of money the voters supported Saturday.

Going, Going, GONE?

Following is a list of the budget areas the Greater Victoria school board has proposed will be cut as a result of the defeat Saturday of the $412,000 referendum for 1972 operating expenses:

After Greenwood Win, a Call for Old Way

Mrs. Lavinia Greenwood was elected Saturday to the Greater Victoria school board, defeating her nearest opponent, Ted Robbins, by more than 500 votes.

Today, Robbins and another unsuccessful candidate, Joe Richards, issued a call for a return to the old system of representation by municipality on the school board.

Mrs. Greenwood, 687 Mount Joy, becomes the fifth trustee on the nine-member school board from Oak Bay municipality. She polled 3,553 votes to 3,010 for Robbins and 2,769 for Richards.

Frank Preston got 2,613 votes and Karel de Roo 837.

Voter turnout was a poor 19.4 per cent in the Saturday byelection, necessitated by the resignation in January of Dr. Donald Shorting. Mrs. Greenwood's term on the board is until Dec. 31 of this year.

Robbins and Richards said the byelection results indicate voters want a return to the old system of trustee elections.

Richards said he was pleased with the support he got from the polling stations in the western half of the school district but said the locations of the polling stations left something to be desired.

Richards led the polls in three of the five polling stations — Esquimalt, Victoria and the western part of Saanich — but still finished third. He drew little support in Oak Bay and the eastern part of Saanich, where Mrs. Greenwood and Robbins made solid gains.

"The results of Saturday's election give a strong indication that the voters of Greater Victoria school district wish to return to representation by municipality compared to election at large," Richards said.

Robbins said the fact there is now five trustees on the board from Oak Bay "is not healthy."

"The school board should recognize this and do something about it," he said.

The board voted in its February meeting to retain the at-large system of trustee elections.

Mrs. Greenwood said she was surprised that she had been elected and was especially surprised with the amount of support she got in Oak Bay.

She said she plans to promote public participation in education as much as possible but said she has "a lot to learn" about board activities.

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

An angry army of Oak Bay residents will storm Oak Bay council's B committee meeting tonight to demand action on what they consider a hazardous flooding situation on Henderson.

They are the residents of the 70-odd homes in the area that have been badly flooded, some as many as five times, this winter.

They've already asked retribution from council for the losses of expensive rugs and furnishings in the lower rooms of their homes.

Tonight they will be demanding something more — confirmation that they won't be stricken with disease as an aftermath of the flooding.

A visit to one of the affected homes substantiates that the residents have cause for concern.

Soaked rugs, lifting tiles and clammy chaos in the lower part of the house bear evidence of repeated soaking. So does an undefinable odor.

He has written Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, chief medical health officer for the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Health Board, asking the board to check out the situation.

His concern is that if the situation isn't remedied — and soon — the stage is set for an outbreak of typhoid, paratyphoid or hepatitis.

Whitbread said that he was considering asking his health inspector in Oak Bay to carry out an investigation.

"I have a little sympathy," he said, "but this year's storms are an act of God. People shouldn't be too upset if once in 10 or 15 years they get water in their basement."

New School Approved In Saanich

The doors will open in September, 1973, on the new McDonald Park senior secondary school in Saanich school district following approval by 61.8 per cent of the voters in Saturday's referendum for expenditure of $1.68 million on capital construction.

Saanich school board chairman Jack Armstrong expects work to begin this summer on the North Saanich school which will house grades 8 to 12.

Armstrong praised the efforts of referendum committee chairman, trustee Rubymay Parrott, and her hard-working co-worker, trustee Ann Foerster, who organized a busy eight-week session of public meetings to explain the referendum.

In former years, this school district has hired a public relations expert to "sell" a referendum but this time trustees and staff members were the salesmen.

Directed by Mrs. Parrott's commitee, each trustee was assigned a public relations job with information prepared by the district administrator's staff.

An army of 300 volunteers phoned every parent in the district just before voting day, every school student distributed pamphlets and Saanich Teachers Association volunteered public transportation on Saturday.

The first reports on the voting were negative with polling stations in Saanich and Central Saanich showing only 56.8 and 55.7 in favor of the bylaw.

Rubymay Parrott said the strain of waiting for results at the time was "like having a baby. But the gloomy picture brightened when North Saanich and Sidney pulled us out of the fire," she added.

North Saanich voted 66.8 in favor and Sidney, where school overcrowding is especially evident, voted 71.4 in favor.

Provision of the new high school on McDonald Park will allow the present North Saanich junior high to be converted to another elementary school serving students who at present bus out of Sidney each day.

Chest Report Action Near?

Action on a long-dormant report dealing with social service agencies in Greater Victoria was recommended Saturday by member agencies of the Community Chest, following a day-long seminar.

Delegates to the meeting agreed that as the provincial government does not appear to be acting on the report, prepared some 15 months ago, the chest itself should begin implementing some of its recommendations.

Commissioned by the Capital Regional Board in 1969 and published in December, 1970, the report dealt mainly with the feasibility of the board taking over social services in the region.

SOME OPPOSED

Among its recommendations were that the Community Chest, as much as possible, should stop providing funds for services which were also provided by the government: and that other agencies should be streamlined to avoid duplication of services.

Some agencies, notably the Family and Children's Service, opposed the recommendations, while Rehabilitation Minister Phil Gaglardi said flatly that administration of social services was not a function for regional districts.

The report has never been implemented.

However, Community Chest president Allan Cox said the 50 delegates to Saturday's seminar agreed that the chest has the "muscle" to persuade agencies to implement the recommendation, because it has control over the funds it allocates.

Cox said the chest will go through the Community Council report on an agency-by-agency basis, meeting with the appropriate officials to discuss the recommendations. But he stressed that the chest has no intention of going on a "witch hunt" against any of its member agencies.

Delegates also agreed the Community Chest funds should not be going to programs which are also provided by the government.

Elderly Man's Body Found in Harbor

An eight-week search for a partly blind, 83-year-old man ended at the weekend when city police identified a body found in the Inner Harbor as that of Stephen Campbell Bresenham, of 60 Bastion Square.

The badly decomposed body was found Friday night near the east jetty of Victoria Flying Services Ltd. Police said death appeared to be by drowning.

Bresenham, a pensioner and diabetic, last spoke to relatives Jan. 4. One of them was to pick him up at his residence Jan. 9, but Bresenham was not there.

Potash Found In East

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — The discovery of potash deposits near Sussex in southern New Brunswick could lead to a multimillion dollar industry directly employing about 400, Dr. R. R. Potter, director of the provincial mineral researches branch, said here Saturday.

Test drilling last year between Saint John and Moncton revealed four potash layers with a total thickness of 57 feet.

Seven mining companies will begin talks with the provincial government within the next few weeks.

John Worth, a geologist with the minerals branch, said the Sussex deposits, only 50 miles from Saint John, are close to seaports which would make New Brunswick mines competitive on world markets.

He said the Saskatchewan ore had a higher content of pure potash but was located at a depth of 3,200 to 3,500 feet, compared to a depth of 850 feet to 1,000 feet at Sussex.

Dr. Potter predicted potash deposits in France and the United States would be depleted within 10 years, leaving Canada as one of the largest suppliers.

Dividend Payments Down 8%

TORONTO (CP) — Dividend payments declared by Canadian companies dropped more than eight per cent during the first quarter of the year, Bongard, Leslie and Co. reports.

The three-month payout totalled $375,212,524, down from $408,213,261 in 1971.

The mining sector recorded the sharpest drop, primarily due to an $11-million dividend reduction by Inco.

Institution and trust company dividends also were lower. Industrials and utilities increased payments.

'Rupert Can End Congestion'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Prince Rupert should be established as a second major grain-exporting port on the west coast, Roy Atkinson, president of the National Farmers' Union, said Sunday.

Atkinson said in an interview that rather than concentrate shipping in Vancouver, the federal government should establish the port in the northern British Columbia city to bypass growing congestion here.

He laid the blame for the current bottleneck in grain deliveries on the railways, which "refuse to make sufficient cars available to keep the port supplied."

Atkinson said grain terminal operators in Vancouver admit to a maximum daily capacity of 800 carloads, amounting to a potential annual export of 400 million bushels.

Yet, he said, the greatest number of cars unloaded in the port in one day is 600 and the record year for grain exports from Vancouver was 1971 when 240 million bushels were handled.

"Without an increase in facilities here, the annual export total can almost be doubled," he said.

"The railways have the capacity, but they're not making the effort — they have sufficient rolling stock, but they're not being deployed efficiently."

Subsidy Helps Eastern Yard

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Hull No. 55 at nearby Port Weller Drydocks Ltd. slips into water next month, destined to carry British-made automobiles to Eastern Canada and return with 14,000 tons of newsprint.

It is one of the 20,000-ton, 683-foot vessels ordered by Burnett Steamship Co. Ltd. of Britain in a $30-million contract that should have President George Black of Port Weller smiling from ear to ear.

"Immediately after float-off of 55 we will be putting steel in the dock for 56," he said in an interview. "The ship (55) will be moved to our outfitting dock and we will immediately install the main engines and gear boxes."

The engines, 9,000-horsepower Pielstick medium-speed diesels, will be placed in what Mr. Black calls an unmanned machinery space.

FIRST IN CANADA

"These are sophisticated ships, largely because they are roll-on, roll-off vessels, the first if such type to be built in Canada, with special features for handling cars as cargo," he said.

"The innards of the ship are developed into an internal car park ramping system. Special temporary car stowage decks provide seven levels capable of carrying more than 2,000 cars."

The sharply-angled bow, described by Mr. Black as "a beautiful flared saltie bow," will be installed next week, with the bulbous underwater section to follow.

Port Weller drydocks, 1,000 miles from the open sea, won the contracts against international competition, and also qualified for money under the federal government's Shipbuilding Temporary Assistance Program.

"The 17-per-cent subsidy did not reduce our price to the level of a few European yards, but the owners decided to place the contract with us because of our capability of delivering earlier," Mr. Black said. "We will deliver the first vessel in mid-September this year and the second in early July of 1972."

EUROPEANS SET 1974

He said this compares with European delivery dates in 1974.

Mr. Black said that because of the order, the company has spent more than $350,000 to improve facilities, a drawing card for future contracts, the company hopes.

Mr. Black is not too optimistic about future orders.

"We are endeavoring to make every effort to get additional business to follow on here and give us continuity," he said. "We have, over the past couple of months, giving numerous budget figures and estimates without any success up to this time.

GEOFFROY EN ROUTE TO CANADA

MADRID (UPI) — Convicted wife-slayer Yves Geoffroy and his bride returned to Canada voluntarily today, 10 weeks after they skipped the country while Geoffroy was on a two-day leave from prison so they could marry.

Geoffroy, a 38-year-old notary, looked grim but his wife Carmen gave newsmen a smile as they boarded a Spanish airliner to fly back to Montreal, where Geoffroy was expected to continue serving a life sentence.

The plane was to land in Montreal at 1:45 p.m. Victoria time.

The couple was accompanied by six Canadian officials, including a crown prosecutor. A Canadian embassy official said they were returning "on their own free will."

BETWEEN THE SHOWERS on another grey, damp Victoria Sunday, three strollers and a dog enjoy a brief constitutional on the tide-lapped sands of Willows Beach. Although the clouds parted only occasionally the temperatures were up in the spring-like 50s and — who knows? — it may not be too long before tots in their teeny bikinis are scampering on these same sands.

Que. Deal 'Vote Ploy' —Bennett

Prime Minister Trudeau gave in to Quebec demands for baby bonus autonomy because "he's in trouble and he knows it," Premier Bennett said today.

Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa said in Montreal Sunday night the federal decision represents "a giant step forward and a triple victory for Quebec, perhaps a turning point in federal-provincial relations."

He said the agreement "recognizes Quebec's legislative paramountcy since we will be able to change the payments ourselves."

As for the other constitutional questions left hanging by Quebec's rejection of the Victoria charter, Bourassa said the Quebec government will decide when it is ready to discuss the constitution.

He said the family allowance issue was the only reason the Victoria charter failed.

NO FEUDING

Trudeau announced Sunday during a television interview that Ottawa had accepted the Quebec demand that family allowances be distributed under terms established by the province.

Trudeau said the move may have brought a new Canadian constitution closer to reality and hinted that the answers to several of the other points of contention were in the offing.

Bennett, who appeared to take the development calmly, said: "I do not want to get into a feud with Quebec and I have no comment to make on the subject."

Then he smiled, shook his head ruefully and added, "Trudeau is in an awful lot of trouble and he knows it. He is just playing games."

Holding out his crossed fingers he said: "Trudeau and Bourassa are just like that."

Again he repeated that he did not want a feud with Quebec.

"My objection to Quebec getting help is an economic one based on the fact that Quebec is a have province. It is not a have not province," Bennett said.

Bennett made much the same comment in an interview last week when he charged that Quebec's resources were being mismanaged under Bourassa and that he would support federal Social Credit leader Real Caouette in the next federal election.

Asked to comment on Bourassa's rejection last June in Victoria of a constitutional charter, until the family allowance demand was met, Bennett said: "All I will say is that Bourassa must have had a fast change of mind after he left here. He seemed to agree with it at the time."

ONLY PROVINCE

The charter rejected by Quebec — the only province to do so — would have created joint federal-provincial jurisdiction over social services. Quebec wanted provincial domination of these as well as of unemployment insurance and health services.

GRIT DEFECTOR CITES BLUNDERS

OTTAWA (CP) — Raymond Rock, 49, Liberal MP for 10 years, crossed the floor of the Commons today "with no regrets" to join the Conservative Party.

Rock said he could no longer support the Liberal government of Prime Minister Trudeau.

Other Conservatives put their arms about him and led him to a seat beside David MacDonald, two rows behind Mr. Stanfield.

Rock said he is turning Conservative because of "blunder after blunder after blunder" by the government. Foremost was in dealing with unemployment.

He described himself in an interview as a "free-enterpriser" who feels the prime minister's office is "out of touch." He was critical of "activist" projects supported by government.

His decision changes the standings in the 264-seat Commons to: Liberal 149, PC 72, NDP 25, SC 13, Ind. Liberal 1, Independent 2, vacant 2.

China Pact Signed

PEKING (Reuter) — Mainland China and Britain signed an agreement today to exchange ambassadors and close the British consulate on Taiwan.

The agreement raised the level of diplomatic relations between the two countries to embassy status for the first time since the People's Republic of China was founded in 1949.

It will also pave the way for exchanges of high-level state visits by British and Chinese government leaders.

Meanwhile, in Paris, U.S. Ambassador Arthur Watson and Chinese Ambassador Huang Chen met today for the first in the series of meetings they will hold to maintain contact between their governments.

CLOCK WAR LOOMS

CRANBROOK (CP) — People living in the southeastern corner of British Columbia are girding themselves for a threatened battle of the clocks with the provincial government.

For 40 to 50 years — no one really knows how long — this corner of B.C. has operated on Alberta time because of the close geographical and economic connection with the neighboring province.

The corner has operated on Mountain Standard Time during the winter, putting it an hour ahead of the rest of B.C. In the summer, it operated on Pacific Daylight Saving Time, which was the same as Mountain Standard — the name changed but the clock didn't.

Now, however, Alberta has decided to institute Daylight Saving Time, meaning that Mountain Time will be one hour ahead of B.C. all year round.

That makes it a bit difficult for that little corner of B.C. So to avoid confusion, the executive board of the East Kootenay regional district recently asked the B.C. government for permission to switch permanently to Mountain Time.

Frank Berjola, secretary and administrator of the regional board, said the board has been told by the attorney-general's department that it has no authority to operate on Mountain Time.

The board now plans to send a unanimous decision to Victoria of the full district board recommending the region use Alberta time.

"If they refuse or ignore us, most of the people I've run into are saying they'll just change their clocks anyway," he added.

NEWS BRIEFS

Head Declared

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Marshal Lon Nol, who this weekend quietly ended parliamentary rule in Cambodia, today declared himself president, commander-in-chief of the armed forces and president of the council of ministers.

Bus Drivers Strike

Homes Flooded

LIMA (Reuter) — More than 150,000 persons are reported homeless, at least 36 dead and about 200 injured in the month-long deluge that has swamped parts of Peru.

Trials Secret

PARIS (WP) — The Iranian government has banned all foreign journalists and jurists from attending a continuing series of political trials despite serious indications of torture and procedural irregularities, according to a French lawyer recently returned from Teheran.

Bodies Unearthed

Viet Attacks Up

SAIGON (AP) — Communist forces during the weekend made their largest number of attacks across South Vietnam in three weeks, while in eastern Cambodia, a new 5,000-man South Vietnamese drive made its first significant contact with Communist-command troops.

Davis Pledges B.C. Protection

Times News Services

American pleasure boat owners will have to pay for the privilege of fishing in B.C. waters and coastal areas will be "zoned" to control offshore oil drilling, Environment Minister Jack Davis said today.

In a hard-hitting speech to the United Fishermen's and Allied Workers' Union convention in Vancouver, Davis also charged that Atlantic salmon are becoming an endangered species because of the "greed of the Danes and the callousness of the Norwegians."

He described as an "ecological monstrosity" the proposed Moran flood-control dam on the Fraser River.

FISHING FEE

Starting April 1, American pleasure boat owners will pay a salmon fishing fee of $15 for under-15-foot class boat; $25 for boats 16 to 29 feet; $50 from 30 to 39 feet in length; and $75 for boats 40 feet and over.

There will be no charge to Americans if they are fishing from a Canadian-owned charter or rental boat.

American fish charter boats will pay the same licence fee, ranging from $100 to $400, as B.C. commercial fishermen.

Fees paid by U.S. boatowners will go into a fund to build fish hatcheries and spawning grounds in B.C., said Davis.

The federal and B.C. governments are making progress toward creation of a marine park in the Strait of Georgia. "We have raised our sights" to include islands as well as the sea bottom, he said. The islands referred to could be small uninhabited rock outcroppings in the strait.

U.S. officials are impressed with the proposal, he said, and are considering similar measures.

Davis suggested that the Point Roberts peninsula, part of the U.S. but attached to the Canadian mainland and cut off from U.S. services, could be made an international park.

EXTRA SCHOOL FUNDS REJECTED BY VOTERS

Greater Victoria voters Saturday turned down the school board's bid for extra 1972 operating funds with a paltry 31 per cent voting in favor of the $412,000 referendum.

In Saanich school district, a referendum for construction of a new secondary school and improvements to other schools was approved, but just. With 60 per cent needed to approve the capital referendum, 61.8 per cent of the Saanich voters said "yes."

Irvings Plead Guilty

When Judge John Cannella asked the 41-year-old writer to describe what he did, Irving replied:

"It was that I conspired to convince McGraw-Hill that I was in communication with Howard Hughes, when, in fact, I was not."

Conviction on the federal conspiracy charge could mean penalties of up to five years in prison and $10,000 fines.

Also scheduled to appear in court with the Irvings today was researcher Richard Suskind.

The judge asked Mrs. Irving: "What did you do that was a criminal act?"

Mrs. Irving, 36, speaking rapidly and with a German accent, said she had signed certain cheques from the McGraw-Hill publishing company made out to H. R. Hughes, and that she had used false documents.

"I put the money in and out," she said.

"Did you realize that you were part of a hoax?" the judge asked.

"Yes," she replied.

Mother Killed

BELFAST (AP) — A terrorist's bullet killed a 24-year-old mother Sunday night, shattering a new guerrilla ceasefire and marring blood-stained Belfast's first peaceful weekend for more than a year.

Bernadette Hyndman was cut down on the doorsteps of her home in a Roman Catholic section when gunman fired a volley of rifle shots at a British army patrol.

"She stopped a bullet meant for a soldier standing only a few feet away," an army spokesman said. "Our men did not fire at all."

HATE SEX WAY OUT

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — The problem of overpopulation could be eased by brainwashing people to dislike sex or by training people to hate children, a Queen's University biology professor said at the weekend.

Toronto Woman Alive; Buried by Snow 48 Hours

DOMODOSSOLA, Italy (CP-Reuter) — A Canadian woman was found alive today by tracker dogs almost 48 hours after being buried by an avalanche.

Police said she was saved by young pine trees which had been dragged down by the snow and had formed a small dome trapping enough air for survival.

Police named the woman as Margaret Randolph Laidlaw, 35, of Toronto and described her condition as "satisfactory" but said she was suffering from frostbite.

Rescue workers had been searching for her since Saturday and this morning one of the tracker dogs found the spot where she was buried.

CONDITION NOT BAD

Police added that she was suffering from frostbite to her feet and other parts of her body but her condition was not serious. A doctor was on hand when rescuers dug her free and gave her first aid, they said.

They said Mrs. Laidlaw and her husband John were among 500 tourists trapped in the skiing village of Macugnaga near the Swiss border for the last few days because of avalanches. Between 120 and 130 are Britons.

Saturday, the Canadian couple, who had by then been in the village three days longer than they intended, decided to try to get out despite warnings that they risked being crushed by avalanches, police said.

The couple drove out but found the road blocked by an earlier avalanche and began walking towards the nearest village, nine miles away.

Mrs. Laidlaw, who was walking behind her husband, was hit by the full force of the avalanche, but her husband, who was 20 yards ahead of her, was only brushed by the mass of snow, police said.

Macugnaga lies at 6,500 feet at the foot of the huge 15,000-ft Monte Rosa range of mountains. The tourists trapped there have plenty of food and medicines but bad weather is preventing helicopters from dropping mail and newspapers.

Indira Triumphs

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Supporters of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi won by landslide margins in 10 state assemblies today and led by wide margins in two others in what was turning into a personal triumph for Mrs. Gandhi in last week's voting for state governments.

The results were seen not only as a result of the widespread popular acclaim for her as result of last December's victory over Pakistan, but to a large extent an outgrowth of the iron-willed premier's campaign to strengthen and consolidate her organizational power in the states during the past year.

South Sprayed With Plutonium

WASHINGTON (WP) — A U.S. Navy satellite that burned up in the atmosphere eight years ago scattered traces of radioactive plutonium over 12 of the most populated countries of the southern hemisphere.

Worldwide studies just made public by the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission show that the amount of plutonium strewn over the lower half of the globe by the burn-up came to a little less than two pounds.

Even this small amount totalled one-sixth of all the plutonium that fell out over the southern hemisphere from the more than 300 nuclear weapons tests conducted in the atmosphere by the United States and Soviet Union.

"Weapons tests distributed most of the plutonium over the northern hemisphere, mostly because of wind patterns," said Dr. John Harley, director of the AEC's health and safety laboratory. "This satellite happened to burn up over Madagascar and so scattered most of its plutonium fuel over the lower part of the world."

Harley stressed that the mishap had not been a hazardous one, despite the fact that plutonium is one of the most enduring (half life: 80 years) and deadly radioactive poisons known to man.

The plutonium fell on at least 12 countries in the southern atmosphere: Brazil, Argentina, Chile, Peru, Equador, South Africa, Rhodesia, Kenya, Mozambique, Angola, New Zealand and Australia.

New Zealand got the most, almost four-tenths of a millicurie (a measure of radioactivity) per square mile. Brazil was second, with three-tenths of a millicurie per square mile and Argentina third with a dose of one-fourth of a millicurie per square mile.

"None of these readings is hazardous," Harley insisted. "The permissible concentrations for population are more than one thousand times these readings."

It's surely just a matter of time now before the Canadian literary world will finally get around to fully recognizing the genius of Shirley Faessler, of Toronto, our finest writer of short stories. Shirley, herself, couldn't care less. "So who needs it?" she might say.

If Shirley aspires to any acclaim, I suspect, it would more likely be the recognition that she is the world's best player of the game known as Indian Poker. It is the tribute that I, the world's second best player of Indian Poker, intend to give her today. I'd give her roses, but I can't afford it.

Shirley's latest piece in The Atlantic is called "Can I Count You In?" a story that concerns the classic compulsion of the card player. It's nothing short of perfection. You couldn't add or subtract a word without bruising it.

Like Bernard Malamud, her idol, Shirley's writing seems so effortless, so direct, so simple, that, when you've come to its end, you sit there stupefied, wondering what in the world made you laugh and cry. It is the ultimate magic of writing, and it ain't easy.

She is a tiny little woman, a Jewish elf. She is either 110 years of age or maybe 42. It doesn't matter. She's beautiful. Guys fall hopelessly in love. She came late to writing after years of running a fabled theatrical boarding house, the motheriode for many of her stories. She has the heart of a lion, the tongue of a stevedore, the wit of a Rabelais. She is wise, intelligent, sentimental. "They threw away the mold when they made her," another writer once said. He was killed dead on the spot for the cliche, but it was true.

Only a woman with this incredible combination of gifts could possibly be the world's greatest player of Indian Poker. I should have realized it before I taught her the game, thus salvaging my ego and my bank balance. As it turned out, I lost both.

With mutual friends we'd played together in penny-ante games of seven-toed stud and so I knew that she was that rarest of creatures, the consummate female poker player. Then I fell off a train. My left leg was encased in cement all the way to the hip and I was consigned to my bed. Shirley was among the friends who dropped by occasionally to cheer me up. It was on one of these visits that I taught her Indian Poker.

The game is a sort of raw, even brutal distillation of the poker you know. As in orthodox poker the skill involved is in knowing when to stay, when to depart. As in orthodox poker the bluff is the weapon that, whatever the cards, makes a winner a consistent winner and a loser a consistent loser. It is poker so reduced to savage, naked confrontation that players must check their knives at the door. Yet it is a game that calls for all the subtle, intuitive, cerebral cunning that makes poker what it is.

I am the dealer. We alternate the deal with each hand. I deal just two cards, face down. One to you. One to me. We pick up our cards — without looking at them!— and we each hold our card up to our forehead, facing outward, the gesture that gave the game its name. Now, then. I see your card but I cannot see my own. You see my card, but not your own. High card wins. Since I dealt it is your first bet. The game has begun. May the better man emerge victorious.

Shirley's eyes hooded ever so slightly as I explained the rules. It may have taken her all of 30 seconds to grasp the ramifications of it.

"Sick," she said thoughtfully. "Beautiful, but sick."

"Make it a nickle limit," I shrugged, wondering if I ought to confess that I was the world's best Indian Poker Player, thinking of all the logging camps and military barracks where I had fleeced the patsies.

"A game worth playing is a game worth playing seriously," said Shirley. Her eyes were Little Orphan Annie's eyes. "We'll make it a quarter limit."

I dealt. Shirley held up a ten of spades. She bet a quarter. I raised a quarter, testing. She bumped back. I called. I had a nine. Delicately, sweetly smiling, she drew the dollar and a half to her side of the bed. She patted my cast. "You'll never be lonely again, Schnook," she said.

★ ★ ★

I think back now with a kind of child-like wonder upon that long Toronto winter when the shards of my leg fused together and the shards of my bank balance flew apart. I think of those countless times when I held aces or face cards and, looking deep into Shirley's honest eyes, read the unmistakable message that I held a four or possibly a five. I think of the times when, with manic bravado, I bulled the pot with raise after raise, only to find that I'd been betting with a three of diamonds at my forehead. I think of this tiny woman's range of histrionics, the small, revealing smile playing about the lips, the expression of uncertainty or confidence that could be either genuine or thespian, but never the same twice in a row.

Our last game was at a farm north of Coburg on Rice Lake — "Nice Lake," as Shirley chose to call it — where we spent Christmas with many friends. The whole festive tribal dance went on around us, but Shirley and I sat in a corner that weekend holding playing cards to our forehead, oblivious to what went on about us, locked in mortal combat.

It was all over by noon of Christmas Day. I raised myself on my crutches and announced to the assembly: "Shirley Faessler, ladies and gentlemen, is the greatest Indian Poker Player of all time. I make this statement freely before I go upstairs to open my wrists."

They knew I wouldn't, of course. Who'd be crazy enough to leave when there's another Shirley Faessler story to be read?

The PUBLIC Says 'No'

The BOARD Says 'Cuts Will Be Made Where They'll Hurt Least'

Victoria Times

MONDAY, MARCH 13, 1972 19

SECOND SECTION

By BRIAN BUTTERS
Times Staff

Greater Victoria voters overwhelmingly rejected Saturday the school board's appeal for $412,000 in operating funds above the provincial limit.

Only 31 per cent of those who voted supported the extra spending, well below the 60 per cent needed to approve the bylaw.

School board chairman Allan McKinnon said today the $412,000 will be cut out of the 1972 budget within the next week and that the cuts will be made "with almost no exceptions" according to the formula agreed upon by trustees when the referendum was advertised.

Failure of the referendum leaves the school board with $22,218,131 for 1972 operating costs. This represents an increase of 5.61 per cent over 1971 spending.

Voter turnout Saturday was poor, with only 22 per cent of eligible owner-electors casting ballots. Greatest opposition to the extra spending came from the western part of Saanich and from Victoria where support for the referendum was only 26.2 and 27.9 per cent.

Esquimalt owner-electors voted 35.6 per cent in favor of the referendum. Oak Bay 34.6 per cent and the eastern part of Saanich 33.9 per cent.

In total, 8,816 persons voted against the proposed extra spending and 4,006 supported it.

McKinnon said he was not surprised with the result of the referendum but said he was surprised at the great amount of opposition. "I thought support would have been closer to 50 per cent," he said.

He said Greater Victoria parents need not worry about the effects of the decision. "We're not going to close any schools or have any classrooms with no teacher.

"The board gave great consideration to the areas where cuts would be made," he said. "They will be made in the areas where they will hurt the least."

McKinnon said the board will not be adamant in sticking with the cuts they proposed before the referendum, but that any changes will likely concern minor details.

F. E. Wright, the man who spearheaded opposition to the referendum, said today he is "absolutely delighted" by the referendum's defeat and said he is convinced the reduced budget will not seriously affect the educational quality of the school district. "I am sure the quality of education is never equated with money itself," he said.

Dr. George Stocker, spokesman for the School District 61 (Greater Victoria) Parents' Association, said the referendum's failure can be attributed to the public's disillusionment with elected officials.

He said this dissatisfaction extends from government in Ottawa through B.C. and on down to the school board level.

Plans are being made, he said, to keep the parents' group in operation as a liaison between the school board and the public. One of the group's biggest jobs in going to be to restore confidence in the school board, he said.

The school board meets tonight to discuss the referendum and the necessary budget cuts. A new budget will be submitted to the provincial government for approval, based on the amount of money the voters supported Saturday.

Going, Going, GONE?

Following is a list of the budget areas the Greater Victoria school board has proposed will be cut as a result of the defeat Saturday of the $412,000 referendum for 1972 operating expenses:

After Greenwood Win, Calls for the Old Way

Mrs. Lavinia Greenwood was elected Saturday to the Greater Victoria school board, defeating her nearest opponent, Ted Robbins, by more than 500 votes.

Today, Robbins and another unsuccessful candidate, Joe Richards, issued a call for a return to the old system of representation by municipality on the school board.

Mrs. Greenwood, 687 Mount Joy, becomes the fifth trustee on the nine-member school board from Oak Bay municipality. She polled 3,553 votes to 3,010 for Robbins and 2,769 for Richards.

Frank Preston got 2,613 votes and Karel de Roo 837.

Voter turnout was a poor 19.4 per cent in the Saturday byelection, necessitated by the resignation in January of Dr. Donald Shorting. Mrs. Greenwood's term on the board is until Dec. 31 of this year.

Robbins and Richards said the byelection results indicate voters want a return to the old system of trustee elections.

Richards said he was pleased with the support he got from the polling stations in the western half of the school district but said the locations of the polling stations left something to be desired.

Richards led the polls in three of the five polling stations — Esquimalt, Victoria and the western part of Saanich — but still finished third. He drew little support in Oak Bay and the eastern part of Saanich, where Mrs. Greenwood and Robbins made solid gains.

"The results of Saturday's election give a strong indication that the voters of Greater Victoria school district wish to return to representation by municipality compared to election at large," Richards said.

Robbins said the fact there is now five trustees on the board from Oak Bay "is not healthy."

"The school board should recognize this and do something about it," he said.

The board voted in its Febraury meeting to retain the at-large system of trustee elections.

Mrs. Greenwood said she was surprised that she had been elected and was especially surprised with the amount of support she got in Oak Bay.

She said she plans to promote public participation in education as much as possible but said she has "a lot to learn" about board activities.

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

An angry army of Oak Bay residents will storm Oak Bay council's B committee meeting tonight to demand action on what they consider a hazardous flooding situation on Henderson.

They are the residents of the 70-odd homes in the area that have been badly flooded, some as many as five times, this winter.

They've already asked retribution from council for the losses of expensive rugs and furnishings in the lower rooms of their homes.

Tonight they will be demanding something more — confirmation that they won't be stricken with disease as an aftermath of the flooding.

A visit to one of the affected homes substantiates that the residents have cause for concern.

Soaked rugs, lifting tiles and clammy chaos in the lower part of the house bear evidence of repeated soaking. So does an undefinable odor.

He has written Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, chief medical health officer for the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Health Board, asking the board to check out the situation.

His concern is that if the situation isn't remedied — and soon — the stage is set for an outbreak of typhoid, paratyphoid or hepatitis.

Whitbread said that he was considering asking his health inspector in Oak Bay to carry out an investigation.

"I have a little sympathy," he said, "but this year's storms are an act of God. People shouldn't be too upset if once in 10 or 15 years they get water in their basement."

New School Approved In Saanich

The doors will open in September, 1973, on the new McDonald Park senior secondary school in Saanich school district following approval by 61.8 per cent of the voters in Saturday's referendum for expenditure of $1.68 million on capital construction.

Saanich school board chairman Jack Armstrong expects work to begin this summer on the North Saanich school which will house grades 8 to 12.

Armstrong praised the efforts of referendum committee chairman, trustee Rubymay Parrott, and her hard-working co-worker, trustee Ann Foerster, who organized a busy eight-week session of public meetings to explain the referendum.

In former years, this school district has hired a public relations expert to "sell" a referendum but this time trustees and staff members were the salesmen.

Directed by Mrs. Parrott's commitee, each trustee was assigned a public relations job with information prepared by the district administrator's staff.

An army of 300 volunteers phoned every parent in the district just before voting day, every school student distributed pamphlets and Saanich Teachers' Association volunteered public transportation on Saturday.

The first reports on the voting were negative with polling stations in Saanich and Central Saanich showing only 56.8 and 55.7 in favor of the bylaw.

Rubymay Parrott said the strain of waiting for results at the time was "like having a baby. But the gloomy picture brightened when North Saanich and Sidney pulled us out of the fire," she added.

North Saanich voted 66.8 in favor and Sidney, where school overcrowding is especially evident, voted 71.4 in favor.

Provision of the new high school on McDonald Park will allow the present North Saanich junior high to be converted to another elementary school serving students who at present bus out of Sidney each day.

Chest Report Action Near?

Action on a long-dormant report dealing with social service agencies in Greater Victoria was recommended Saturday by member agencies of the Community Chest, following a day-long seminar.

Delegates to the meeting agreed that as the provincial government does not appear to be acting on the report, prepared some 15 months ago, the chest itself should begin implementing some of its recommendations.

Commissioned by the Capital Regional Board in 1969 and published in December, 1970, the report dealt mainly with the feasibility of the board taking over social services in the region.

SOME OPPOSED

Among its recommendations were that the Community Chest, as much as possible, should stop providing funds for services which were also provided by the government: and that other agencies should be streamlined to avoid duplication of services.

Some agencies, notably the Family and Children's Service, opposed the recommendations, while Rehabilitation Minister Phil Gaglardi said flatly that administration of social services was not a function for regional districts.

The report has never been implemented.

However, Community Chest president Allan Cox said the 50 delegates to Saturday's seminar agreed that the chest has the "muscle" to persuade agencies to implement the recommendation, because it has control over the funds it allocates.

Cox said the chest will go through the Community Council report on an agency-by-agency basis, meeting with the appropriate officials to discuss the recommendations. But he stressed that the chest has no intention of going on a "witch hunt" against any of its member agencies.

Delegates also agreed the Community Chest funds should not be going to programs which are also provided by the government.

Elderly Man's Body Found in Harbor

An eight-week search for a partly blind, 83-year-old man ended at the weekend when city police identified a body found in the Inner Harbor as that of Stephen Campbell Bresenham, of 60 Bastion Square.

The badly decomposed body was found Friday night near the east jetty of Victoria Flying Services Ltd. Police said death appeared to be by drowning.

Bresenham, a pensioner and diabetic, last spoke to relatives Jan. 4. One of them was to pick him up at his residence Jan. 9, but Bresenham was not there.

Symphony Expertise 'Brilliant'

Times Staff

It has become increasilgly apparent as this Victoria Symphony season progresses that the responsiveness and technical expertise of the orchestra has advanced to an impressive degree.

Plainly it is not the same orchestra it was even so little as a year ago.

The fact is being dramatically emphasized with the brilliant program previewed Sunday at the Royal Theatre and to be repeated tonight.

Benjamin Britten's Young Person's Guide to the Orchestra is to some extent a fun piece, on the face of it an orchestral ABC.

But it is much more. The Briten score, based on the Henry Purcell theme, is not uncomplicated and in fact the fugue finale is a positive challenge.

The variations open out the orchestra and expose its several parts in a sort of showcase. Thus exposed, weaknesses and flaws, if any, are also made evident.

But Sunday's performahce revealed only the complete competence of each section and highlighted the immensity of Maestro Laszlo Gati's achievement in bringing the orchestra to its present pitch.

Special guests for this concert pair are four charming lady harpists from Russia — Chitiri Arpi — and mezzo sporano Phyllis Mailing.

With the string orchestra they perform two baroque concertos — one by Handel and one a Vivaldi arrangement of a Bach concerto for four keyboard instruments.

BREATHTAKING

Superb flexibility and ensemble unity with the characteristic pure and crystaline tone of the instrument blended with the warm string tone of the accompanying orchestra to perfection.

This was baroque performance at its best, and alerted one to the fascinating possibilities of the quartet's recital in which a variety of styles and kinds of music will be played at McPherson Playhouse Wednesday.

The Bach D major Suite with which the program opens also features the chamber orchestra. Except for some imbalance and a tricky moment or two with the brass, this was a clean, spirited performance with some splendid support from Robin Wood providing continuo at the piano.

Manuel de Falla's ballet score El Amor Brujo, thickly scored for the entire orchestra with piano and a vocal soloist, is a pulse-stirring conclusion.

The many moods — languourous love, spectral fear, orgiastic ceremony and gypsy passion — were conjured by Gati and sensitively responded to by the orchestra, which was revealed as commanding a much extended range of color and rhythmic power.

Miss Mailing, Canadian mezzo, has the depth, and commandof phase

Miss Mailing, Canadian mezzo, has the depth, color and command of phrase which clothes her interpolations with the particular character of the Spanish song idiom. The artist also provides the narrative that accompanies the Britten number.

Tenure System Fails, Students Tell MLAs

University of Victoria students told the legislative committee in a brief on university tenure prepared for delivery today that tenure is not only an inadequate means of protecting academic freedom, but also "a deterrent to the development of the bestp possible teaching staff at the university level."

Representatives of the UVic Alma Mater Society presented a brief to the tenure committee in which they attack ed the concept of tenure and said it should be "an honorary position granted only to members of faculty the uni-d verity wishes to distinguih."

TWO YEARS

The students, Robert McDougall, Alastair Murdoch and Alan Turner, suggested that other non-tenured professors be hired on the basis of contracts ranging in length from two years upward. The length of the contract would vary with the university's evaluation of the performance.

Contracts should carry no automatic expectation of renewal, the brief said, and decisions on contracts should be based on teaching, research and certain specified "outside activities." The most important criterion is teaching it said.

The students said greater emphasis should be placed on the evaluation of teaching in the university. "The major method of this evaluation should be by a student poll appr d ved by the faculty and administration."

"Lack of degrees should not disqualify instructors from a renewal of contract for which he would otherwise by chosen."

The recommended that the committee which decided on contracts should be made up of faculty members, students and board of governors appointees. Recommendations to the committee should be made by a student committee and by a faculty departmental body.

Expropriation System Urged

A provincial expropriation board is, in principle, cheaper and faster than the existing system of settling disputes, Richard Gosse of the Law Reform Commission said today.

Gosse is primarily responsible for the commission's report on expropriation reform which is being studied by a special committee of the legislature.

Gosse, also a University of British Columbia law professor, told the committee he believes a single arbitration board to be a quick, efficient, expert and reasonably inexpensive way to settle disputes.

Under questioning from Highways Minister Wesley Black, Gosse pointed out the commission's proposals for settling disputes would not prevent the Crown from taking possession of the land.

The party seeking arbitration of the settlement proposed for expropriation of his property still would have to give it up, Gosse said.

He added that under federal law, expropriation hassles can go before the federal court of Canada, formerly the exchequer court, which has the expertise to hear these cases.

But the commission did not feel a similar court procedure needed to be instituted in B.C.

Gosse said under existing practice of creating ad hoc arbitration boards, the province could spend up to $250,000 a year not counting lawyers' fees just to consider 50 cases.

STICKUP MEN GET BIG STICK

"This is it," said one of two young men as he pointed a hunting knife at grocery store proprietor Reginald Lowe Saturday night.

But that wasn't "it" at all. Lowe picked up a stick and brandished it at the two youths, who ran out of the store at 1023 Cook Street and took off in separate directions.

Not only did the would-be hold-up men flee empty handed, but they were a few cents out of pocket. Twenty minutes before the attempt proper, apparently for reconnaisance purposes, they entered the store and bought a Rolling Stone magazine.

. . . QUEBEC

Trudeau said today the Ottawa-Quebec social services agreement now would be offered to all other provinces for their acceptance. He said it would allow each province to adopt its own family allowance plan.

MAY OPEN WAY

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark indicated Trudeau's decision may open the way for acceptance of the Victoria charter on constitutional reform.

"If this move has the effect of making the constitutional proposals acceptable, probably we would be prepared to go along with that," Loffmark said.

"It appears to be just a carry-over of the opting out situation in Quebec. So what else is new?" Black said.

. . . DAVIS

local real estate into the deal as well . . .

"I suggest that we include Boundary Bay along with Point Roberts to make the two together into an international park . . ."

On oil drilling, Davis said measures must be taken to protect not only the straits but areas further offshore.

"There are degrees of vulnerability. Some waters are more sensitive than others. This suggests zoning.

"Indeed, I would argue that we must zone most, if not all, of our continental shelf. We must zone it with a view to saying where the oil industry, for example, can operate and where it cannot."

"We will be zoning our vast underwater areas off the Atlantic Coast and in the Arctic as well."

MUCH SAFER

He noted that drilling rigs are much safer than oil tankers, which could produce catastrophic results if they discharge oil. There were established practices to minimize the possibility and effects of a drilling-rig accident.

In a brief reference to Fraser Valley flood control, he said a $60-million dike system under construction "will be able to break the back of the worst flood in history."

SOME WANT MORE

"Yet there are those who say that we should build a 700-foot-high dam at Moran in order to look after our flood problem. They would build a monstrous dam in the Fraser Canyon north of Lillooet at a cost of more than $1,000 million.

"A few low-level dams on some lakes in the upper Fraser is really all we need to supplement our diking program. Moran? It's irrelevant from the point of view of flood control. It is a monstrosity from the point of view of our ecology in B.C."

Airline Bomb Threats

NEW YORK (AP) — Bomb threats telephoned to National Airlines offices in New York and Los Angeles and to Texas International Airlines in Albuquerque, N.M., forced searches and led to some delays in service Sunday. No bombs were found.

In New York, an anonymous caller telephoned three times warning that explosives would be placed aboard a New York-to-Miami jetliner and demanding that $800,000 in ransom money be paid at a remote beach.

Police said the caller did not say which flight or airport was involved so terminals and aircraft at Kennedy, La Guardia and Newark airports were searched by officers and airline personnel.

In a second incident, a National Airlines DC-8 flying from Los Angles to Miami was searched during scheduled stopovers in Houston, Tex., and New Orleans, La., delaying its arrival in Miami by about an hour.

The caller to Texas International Airlines told officials that a bomb was planted aboard an airplane destined for Salt Lake City. He did not say which airline was involved.

The official said four planes heading for Salt Lake were diverted and three others, all belonging to Western Airlines, were searched on the ground. As in the other cases, no explosive was found.

GEOFFROY RETURNS TO CANADA

MADRID (UPI) — Convicted wife-slayer Yves Geoffroy and his bride returned to Canada voluntarily today, 10 weeks after they skipped the country while Geoffroy was on a two-day leave from prison so they could marry.

Geoffroy, a 38-year-old notary, looked grim but his wife Carmen gave newsmen a smile as they boarded a Spanish airliner to fly back to Montreal, where Geoffroy was expected to continue serving a life sentence.

The plane was to land in Montreal at 1:45 p.m. Victoria time.

The couple was accompanied by six Canadian officials, including a crown prosecutor. A Canadian embassy official said they were returning "of their own free will."

China Pact Signed

PEKING (Reuter) — Mainland China and Britain signed an agreement today to exchange ambassadors and close the British consulate on Taiwan.

The agreement raised the level of diplomatic relations between the two countries to embassy status for the first time since the People's Republic of China was founded in 1949.

The appointment of Addis as ambassador was announced at the same time.

The three-point agreement recognizes the government of the People's Republic of China as the sole legal government of China.

It will also pave the way for exchanges of high-level state visits by British and Chinese government leaders.

Meanwhile, in Paris, U.S. Ambassador Arthur Watson and Chinese Ambassador Huang Chen met today for the first in the series of meetings they will hold to maintain contact between their governments.

The meeting at the Chinese embassy lasted 50 minutes and Watson told reporters: "We had a very friendly and warm discussion, and we hope it is the beginning of many others."

Que. Déal 'Vote Ploy' —Bennett

Prime Minister Trudeau gave in to Quebec demands for baby bonus autonomy because "he's in trouble and he knows it," Premier Bennett said today.

Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa said in Montreal Sunday night the federal decision represents "a giant step forward and a triple victory for Quebec, perhaps a turning point in federal-provincial relations."

He said the agreement "recognizes Quebec's legislative paramountcy since we will be able to change the payments ourselves."

As for the other constitutional questions left hanging by Quebec's rejection of the Victoria charter, Bourassa said the Quebec government will decide when it is ready to discuss the constitution.

He said the family allowance issue was the only reason the Victoria charter failed.

NO FEUDING

Trudeau announced Sunday during a television interview that Ottawa had accepted the Quebec demand that family allowances be distributed under terms established by the province.

Trudeau said the move may have brought a new Canadian constitution closer to reality and hinted that the answers to several of the other points of contention were in the offing.

Bennett, who appeared to take the development calmly, said: "I do not want to get into a feud with Quebec and I have no comment to make on the subject."

Then he smiled, shook his head ruefully and added, "Trudeau is in an awful lot of trouble and he knows it. He is just playing games."

Holding out his crossed fingers he said: "Trudeau and Bourassa are just like that."

Again he repeated that he did not want a feud with Quebec.

"My objection to Quebec getting help is an economic one based on the fact that Quebec is a have province. It is not a have not province," Bennett said.

Bennet made much the same comment in an interview last week when he charged that Quebec's resources were being mismanaged under Bourassa and that he would support federal Social Credit leader Real Caouette in the next federal election.

Asked to comment on Bourassa's rejection last June in Victoria of a constitutional charter, until the family allowance demand was met, Bennett said: "All I will say is that Bourassa must have had a fast change of mind after he left here. He seemed to agree with it at the time."

ONLY PROVINCE

The charter rejected by Quebec — the only province to do so — would have created joint federal-provincial jurisdiction over social services. Quebec wanted provincial domination of these as well as of unemployment insurance and health services.

GRIT DEFECTOR CITES BLUNDERS

OTTAWA (CP) — Raymond Rock, 49, Liberal MP for 10 years, crossed the floor of the Commons today "with no regrets" to join the Conservative Party.

Rock said he could no longer support the Liberal government of Prime Minister Trudeau.

Other Conservatives put their arms about him and led him to a seat beside David MacDonald, two rows behind Mr. Stanfield.

Rock said he is turning Conservative because of "blunder after blunder after blunder" by the government. Foremost was in dealing with unemployment.

He described himself in an interview as a "free-enterpriser" who feels the prime minister's office is "out of touch." He was critical of "activist" projects supported by government.

His decision changes the standings in the 264-seat Commons to: Liberal 149, PC 72, NDP 25, SC 13, Ind. Liberal 1, Independent 2, vacant 2.

Davis Pledges B.C. Protection

Times News Services

American pleasure boat owners will have to pay for the privilege of fishing in B.C. waters and coastal areas will be "zoned" to control offshore oil drilling, Environment Minister Jack Davis said today.

In a hard-hitting speech to the United Fishermen's and Allied Workers' Union convention in Vancouver, Davis also charged that Atlantic salmon are becoming an endangered species because of the "greed of the Danes and the callousness of the Norwegians."

He described as an "ecological monstrosity" the proposed Moran flood-control dam on the Fraser River.

FISHING FEE

Starting April 1, American pleasure boat owners will pay a salmon fishing fee of $15 for under-15-foot class boat; $25 for boats 16 to 29 feet; $50 from 30 to 39 feet in length; and $75 for boats 40 feet and over.

There will be no charge to Americans if they are fishing from a Canadian-owned charter or rental boat.

American fish charter boats will pay the same licence fee, ranging from $100 to $400, as B.C. commercial fishermen.

Fees paid by U.S. boatowners will go into a fund to build fish hatcheries and spawning grounds in B.C., said Davis.

The federal and B.C. governments are making progress toward creation of a marine park in the Strait of Georgia. "We have raised our sights" to include islands as well as the sea bottom, he said. The islands referred to could be small uninhabited rock outcroppings in the strait.

U.S. officials are impressed with the proposal, he said, and are considering similar measures.

Davis suggested that the Point Roberts peninsula, part of the U.S. but attached to the Canadian mainland and cut off from U.S. services, could be made an international park.

CLOCK WAR LOOMS

CRANBROOK (CP) — People living in this southeastern corner of British Columbia are girding themselves for a threatened battle of the clocks with the provincial government.

For 40 to 50 years — no one really knows how long — this corner of B.C. has operated on Alberta time because of the close geographical and economic connection with the neighboring province.

The corner has operated on Mountain Standard Time during the winter, putting it an hour ahead of the rest of B.C. In the summer, it operated on Pacific Daylight Saving Time, which was the same as Mountain Standard — the name changed but the clock didn't.

Now, however, Alberta has decided to institute Daylight Saving Time, meaning that Mountain Time will be one hour ahead of B.C. all year round.

That makes it a bit difficult for that little corner of B.C. So to avoid confusion, the executive board of the East Kootenay regional district recently asked the B.C. government for permission to switch permanently to Mountain Time.

Frank Bertola, secretary and administrator of the regional board, said the board has been told by the attorney-general's department that it has no authority to operate on Mountain Time.

The board now plans to send a unanimous decision to Victoria of the full district board recommending the region use Alberta time.

"If they refuse or ignore us, most of the people I've run into are saying they'll just change their clocks anyway," he added.

Irvings Plead Guilty

When Judge John Cannella asked the 41-year-old writer to describe what he did, Irving replied:

"It was that I conspired to convince McGraw-Hill that I was in communication with Howard Hughes, when, in fact, I was not."

Conviction on the federal conspiracy charge could mean penalties of up to five years in prison and $10,000 fines.

Also scheduled to appear in court with the Irvings today was researcher Richard Suskind.

The judge asked Mrs. Irving: "What did you do that was a criminal act?"

Mrs. Irving, 36, speaking rapidly and with a German accent, said she had signed certain cheques from the McGraw-Hill publishing company made out to H. R. Hughes, and that she had used false documents.

"I put the money in and out," she said.

"Did you realize that you were part of a hoax?" the judge asked.

"Yes," she replied.

Mother Killed

BELFAST (AP) — A terrorist's bullet killed a 24-year-old mother Sunday night, shattering a new guerrilla ceasefire and marring bloodstained Belfast's first peaceful weekend for more than a year.

Bernadette Hyndman was cut down on the doorsteps of her home in a Roman Catholic section when gunman fired a volley of rifle shots at a British army patrol.

"She stopped a bullet meant for a soldier standing only a few feet away," an army spokesman said. "Our men did not fire at all."

Toronto Woman Alive; Buried by Snow 48 Hours

DOMODOSSOLA, Italy (CP-Reuter) — A Canadian woman was found alive today by tracker dogs almost 48 hours after being buried by an avalanche.

Police said she was saved by young pine trees which had been dragged down by the snow and had formed a small dome trapping enough air for survival.

Police named the woman as Margaret Randolph Laidlaw, 35, of Toronto and described her condition as "satisfactory" but said she was suffering from frostbite.

Rescue workers had been searching for her since Saturday and this morning one of the tracker dogs found the spot where she was buried.

CONDITION NOT BAD

Police added that she was suffering from frostbite to her feet and other parts of her body but her condition was not serious. A doctor was on hand when rescuers dug her free and gave her first aid, they said.

They said Mrs. Laidlaw and her husband John were among 500 tourists trapped in the skiing village of Macugnaga near the Swiss border for the last few days because of avalanches. Between 120 and 130 are Britons.

Saturday, the Canadian couple, who had by then been in the village three days longer than they intended, decided to try to get out despite warnings that they risked being crushed by avalanches, police said.

The couple drove out but found the road blocked by an earlier avalanche and began walking towards the nearest village, nine miles away.

Mrs. Laidlaw, who was walking behind her husband, was hit by the full force of the avalanche, but her husband, who was 20 yards ahead of her, was only brushed by the mass of snow, police said.

Macugnaga lies at 6,500 feet at the foot of the huge 15,000-foot Monte Rosa range of mountains. The tourists trapped there have plenty of food and medicines but bad weather is preventing helicopters from dropping mail and newspapers.

HATE SEX WAY OUT

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — The problem of overpopulation could be eased by brainwashing people to dislike sex or by training people to hate children, a Queen's University biology professor said at the weekend.

Dr. Rolf Harmsen, president of the Kingston chapter of Zero Population Growth, stressed that these were drastic proposals.

Indira Triumphs

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Supporters of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi won by landslide margins in 20 state assemblies today and led by wide margins in two others in what was turning into a personal triumph for Mrs. Gandhi in last week's voting for state governments.

The results were seen not only as a result of the widespread popular acclaim for her as result of last December's victory over Pakistan, but to a large extent an outgrowth of the iron-willed premier's campaign to strengthen and consolidate her organizational power in the states during the past year.

South Sprayed With Plutonium

WASHINGTON (WP) — A U.S. Navy satellite that burned up in the atmosphere eight years ago scattered traces of radioactive plutonium over 12 of the most populated countries of the southern hemisphere.

Worldwide studies just made public by the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission show that the amount of plutonium strewn over the lower half of the globe by the burn-up came to a little less than two pounds.

Even this small amount totalled one-sixth of all the plutonium that fell out over the southern hemisphere from the more than 300 nuclear weapons tests conducted in the atmosphere by the United States and Soviet Union.

"Weapons tests distributed most of the plutonium over the northern hemisphere, mostly because of wind patterns," said Dr. John Harley, director of the AEC's health and safety laboratory. "This satellite happened to burn up over Madagascar and so scattered most of its plutonium fuel over the lower part of the world."

Harley stressed that the mishap had not been a hazardous one, despite the fact that plutonium is one of the most enduring (half life: 80 years) and deadly radioactive poisons known to man.

The plutonium fell on at least 12 countries in the southern atmosphere: Brazil, Argentina, Chile, Peru, Equador, South Africa, Rhodesia, Kenya, Mozambique, Angola, New Zealand and Australia.

New Zealand got the most, almost four-tenths of a millicurie (a measure of radioactivity) per square mile. Brazil was second, with three-tenths of a millicurie per square mile and Argentina third with a dose of one-fourth of a millicurie per square mile.

"None of these readings is hazardous," Harley insisted. "The permissible concentrations for population are more than one thousand times these readings."
